One Killed As District Night Boat Hits Tanker

2 of 3 Injured In Fog Crash Off Old Point Comfort From This Area

A woman Labor Department employe was killed and three passengers, two of them from the District area, were injured early yesterday when the passenger boat SS. District of Columbia sideswiped an oil tanker off Old Point Comfort, Va.

At least 10 other area persons of 59 passengers aboard the night ship escaped injury. The low toll was attributed to the fact that most persons were at breakfast or on deck when the collision occurred.

Running in thick fog, the steamer had just cleared the Old Point harbor for Norfolk about 7:30 a.m. when the anchored Texas Company tanker Georgia was sighted dead ahead. Efforts to turn away were prevented by a strong tide, the steamer's master said.

Killed was Miss Marian E. McWhorter, 24, a member of the Atlanta (Ga.) regional staff of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, who was to begin work in Norfolk today after completing two weeks of special training here.

List of Injured

The injured, all in fair condition in Norfolk hospitals, were:

Lynwood Sartorius, 43, copartner of the Breslau dress shop, 614 12th st. nw., who suffered hip injuries. Sartorius lives with his wife and two children at 1704 Allison st. nw., and was on his way to visit relatives in Norfolk.

Nelson H. Walton, 40, construction engineer, of 4613 Old Dominion dr., Arlington, fractured arm. Walton, single, was reportedly on a business trip.

Earl F. Duke, 41, of Norfolk, possible fractured leg.

District area residents reported aboard the stricken steamer included Miss Sara Ausbon, 3217 Marsden st. nw.; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hunt, 2034 20th st. nw.; Lieut. J. H. Yates, USNR; and A. D. and James Adams, of 3102 N. 2d st., Arlington.

Others for whom no local addresses were immediately available, although believed to be area persons were: L. H. Hemingway and C. Bruneau. Also aboard were Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Speight, formerly of 416 N. Peyton st., Alexandria, who were returning to their home in Norfolk.

Ship Run Aground

Another passenger was Rear Adm. Thomas H. Robbins, jr., USN, who commands Carrier Division Seventeen. Admiral Robbins reportedly was to leave on overseas assignment.

After the collision, the steamer's master, Capt. Edward H. Eaton of 3602 Nichols ave. se., grounded the ship on a nearby sand bar to prevent her from sinking.

2 Virginia Cousins Killed as Rented Plane Crashes

Two cousins were killed instantly yesterday when their light plane crashed near Washington, Va., State police reported last night.

The youths were identified as Robert L. Huff, 22, of New Market, Va., and James Marshall Lillard, 24, town sergeant of Washington, and son of Rappahannock County Sheriff J. M. Lillard. They were first cousins.

The plane, rented from a New Market flight school, was piloted by Huff, who had recently completed a primary course in flight training and had been issued a license 10 days ago.

Observers said the plane circled low over a nearby farmhouse and then plunged suddenly to the ground.

Smog Deaths Rise to 20 in Donora, Pa.

32 Still in Hospitals; Resulting Pneumonia Epidemic Is Feared

Denora, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP).—The death toll in the smothering fog epidemic which hit this Monongahela River industrial town of 13,500 Friday, reached 20 late today.

The death of a 60-year-old man was the second today as the mixture of fog and smoke lifted from the town. At least 32 persons were still under treatment in nearby hospitals, with two of them in critical condition.

Dr. I. Hope Alexander, Pittsburgh health director who made a personal investigation, said he now feared a resultant epidemic of pneumonia in the area.

Rain Helps Clear Air

He said most of the deaths had occurred within two or three blocks of the zinc smelter plant which gives off fumes.

"The gas is a very toxic variety and had been escaping for years," Dr. Alexander said, "but because smog had not tied it down, it didn't cause any illness."

Rain began failing in the little community at 5:30 p. m. today, helping clear the air.

Several hundred asthma and heart sufferers remaining in the town were reported being evacuated tonight.

Since Thursday night, 18 men—all over 50—and two elderly women, gasped for breath and strained their hearts to the point of failure.

Smog Is Blamed

Rudolph Schwerha, member of the Donora Board of Health, said all the victims he knew had been under a physician's care previously. He added:

"The deaths seem to have hit people who were suffering from cardiac or asthmatic conditions. There's no doubt that smog has been the cause."

Dr. William Rongann, member of the city's board of health, called the deaths "plain murder" at an open meeting of the group this morning.

"There is just something here in the air over Donora—whether from the zinc mill or other mills—that is causing this and it's not right," he declared, adding:

"It's plain murder. These people were murdered by whatever was in the air."

The Donora Zinc Works of the American Steel & Wire Co., a United States Steel Corp. subsidiary, and one of the town's largest industries, ordered its smelter closed until further notice early today.

The smelter, in which zinc is manufactured, contributes a part of the smoke that customarily

Israelis Clear Galilee, Drive Into Lebanon

Arab Irregulars Of Fawzi El-Kawkji Crushed in 2 Days

Tarshiha, Palestine, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Israeli forces invaded Lebanon today after clearing the whole of Galilee in north Palestine and crushing Fawzi El-Kawkji's Arab irregulars in a two-day campaign.

United Nations headquarters in Haifa announced the Jews had penetrated into Lebanon. Observers there flashed word that Israeli units had taken Mardoun-es-Rabs and were advancing on Bint Jubeil, two miles inside the border.

Lieut. Col. Moshe Perlman, Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv, said the Galilee campaign, launched Friday at midnight, ended in total victory. Hundreds of Arabs were casualties or prisoners, he said, and Kawkji himself barely escaped.

500 Square Miles Taken

Altogether an area of roughly 500 square miles, including Kawkji's headquarters here in Tarshiha, was wrested from Arab control, Israeli sources estimated, and fighting, at least in Galilee, had stopped.

Except for the small Arab triangle of Jenin, Nablus and Tulkarem, Israeli leaders said they now occupy or control Palestine from "Dan to Beersheba."

White jeeps flying the U. N.'s colors criss-crossed Galilee's mountainous terrain today, the Biblical land of milk and honey, checking on observance of the cease fire. The observers said they found no sign of any violation after the 11 a. m. deadline accepted by both sides.

Confusion Over Deadline

There was apparent confusion on the U. N.'s cease-fire deadline and whether it had been violated. Brig. Gen. William Riley, chief of staff of U. N. observers in Palestine, ordered fire to cease at 4 p. m. Saturday (8 a. m. EST). Today's dispatches from Palestine put the deadline at 11 a. m. Sunday (3 a. m. EST).

The Israeli operation was commanded by a young South African Jew who served with the British army in World War II. He asked that his name not be used.

"It is still a mystery to me how Fawzi El-Kawkji was allowed to command the Lebanese army and irregulars," he said. "This is his third decisive defeat."

An estimated 25,000 Arab refugees huddled in olive groves. The Israeli command told local Arab officials the refugees will be unharmed if they return to their homes within three days; otherwise they will be regarded with suspicion.

Perlman estimated Jewish casualties at 10 killed.

Perlman said Kawkji himself re-

Red Soldiers Kill Vienna U. S. Official

Irving Ross, Aide To Marshall Plan Chief, Is Beaten To Death in Car

Vienna, Austria, Oct. 31 (AP).—An American Marshall Plan official was beaten to death early today in the Soviet zone of Vienna, and a girl companion told Austrian police four Russian soldiers were to blame.

The victim was Irving Ross, 38, special assistant to Westmore Wilcox, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) mission here. His wife and three children live in East Hardwick, Vt.

Ross' battered body was found in his automobile in the Soviet zone. Police said the girl told them she also was beaten by the Russian soldiers, two of whom forced their way into Ross' car about midnight. She is in a serious condition in a hospital, suffering from a skull fracture.

U. S. Awaiting Details

United States Army and State Department officials studied reports of the slaying, but said no official action would be taken until all details are known. Ross had been in Vienna about a year.

The girl, Anna Sutkena, an Austrian, told police she and Ross were stopped by the Russians near the South Railway Station in the Soviet zone. Two of the Russians forced their way into the car. When Ross resisted, she said, they beat him over the head with their rifle butts.

Girl Caught, Beaten

The girl jumped out, but she was caught and beaten. Later she jumped again from the car, or was thrown. She was found by Austrian police about 3 a. m.

Ross' car was abandoned in a field. The wheels had been removed, and all wires cut.

The Austrian police said Ross' skull had been crushed from behind by blows from a rifle butt. There also were wounds, police said, to indicate he had been bayonetted.

ECA officials said Ross' family had been expected to join Ross here early in November. Ross was with the Social Security Board, the State Department and UNRRA before joining ECA.

Soviet Press Publishes U. S. Denial of Charges

Moscow, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Soviet press published today the United States State Department's denial of Russian Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin's charges that the United States is building up the Japanese naval base at Yokosuka for use as an American naval base.

Pravda and other papers published substantially the text of Press Officer Michael McDermott's statement under the headline: "Attempt to Deny Declaration of Soviet Representative."

Get-Out-the-Vote Broadcasts Wind Up Campaigns Tonight; District Area May Poll 115,000

Weather Outlook Here a 'Tossup;' Rain Would Cut Down Turnouts

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Approximately 115,000 residents of Greater Washington will go to the polls Tuesday to help decide the presidential and congressional races and vote on local issues.

The prediction of the 115,000 votes comes from political observers in the nearby areas of Alexandria and Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., and from Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md.

But the large turnout, which in some sectors would set a voting record, is not expected to materialize if Tuesday is a rainy, bad day. The Weather Bureau yesterday said that the outlook for Election Day is "doubtful" and a "toss up" at this time.

The preliminary prediction of the weatherman for Tuesday is "cloudy and mild," with possibility of occasional rain for both Maryland and Virginia.

Different Effects Seen

Bad weather would have different effects in the nearby Virginia and Maryland areas, political observers believe. In Virginia, rain is expected to keep the Deweyites in, while in nearby Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties, bad weather is expected to be more of a boon to Republican hopefuls.

Regardless of the weather, local issues should bring out the voters in Arlington, where the county must decide whether to approve expenditure of $4,750,000 for new schools, and in Montgomery County, where the charter home-rule plan awaits the voters' decision.

Since 1940 Greater Washington residents have been "lucky" in having fair weather in which to cast their ballots. Weather Bureau records show that from their observation standpoint Washington had a very light rain on November 4, 1947, when some local contests were decided, and a light rain also on November 3, 1942, when there was a congressional race. No rain fell on the presidential election days of 1940 and 1944, according to Weather Bureau records, or on the 1946 congressional election day.

In additional to the presidential contest, Virginia voters are expected to reelect Senator A. Willis Robertson for the United States Senate over Republican opponent Robert M. Woods. Other senatorial candidates in the race are Howard H. Carwile, Clarke T. Robb and Virginia Foster Durr.

In the Eighth Congressional District, Howard W. Smith seeks his

The Gallup Poll

Final Poll Gives Dewey 49.5%, Truman 44.5% of Popular Vote

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct 31.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will win the presidential election with a substantial majority of electoral votes. Final institute figures showing the division of the national popular vote of the four leading parties follows:

Dewey, 49.5 per cent.
Truman, 44.5.
Wallace, 4.
Thurmond, 2.

These standings, based on balloting which extended up to Friday, do not include the popular vote for Norman Thomas and other minor party candidates. The combined vote of these candidates will be less than 1 per cent of the national vote.

Henry A. Wallace will poll about 4 per cent of the total vote. Even taking the Progressive Party's most optimistic estimate of voting turnout, the total Wallace strength will run below 3,500,000 votes and is likely to be nearer two million. He will not carry a single State.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, States Rights nominee, will poll about 2 per cent of the national vote. His chief support is concentrated in the deep South.

Governor Dewey holds a substantial lead in 20 States and President Truman in 9 States. There are 15 "battleground" States where neither Truman nor Dewey holds a marked lead. The advantage of the leading candidate in some of these States is so slight that the position of the candidates, in the actual voting, could easily be reversed.

A State-by-State summary of these 44 States follows.

States where Dewey has substantial lead:

State	Dewey	Truman	Wallace
California	52	43	5
Connecticut	52	44	4
Illinois	54	46	x

xNot on ballot.

In the four remaining States, confusing ballot situations will confront voters: In Alabama, the names of neither Truman nor his electors are printed on the ballot; in Louisiana, the traditional Democratic ballot symbol has been given to the State's Rights ticket; in South Carolina, there is no secret ballot; and in Mississippi, two sets of Republican and two sets of Democratic electors are listed on the ballot.

Consequently, the institute's figures for these four States are not to be regarded as forecasts of the vote. If the circumstances were normal, the figures below should represent, with a high degree of accuracy, the actual outcome of the vote:

State	Dewey	Truman	Wallace	Thurmond
Alabama	28	x	2	70
Louisiana	27	39	2	32
Mississippi	9	15	1	75
S. Carolina	9	38	xx	53

x-not on the ballot.
xx-less than one per cent.

During his three years in office, President Truman's popularity has swung up and down almost as dizzily as the tracks of a roller-coaster.

Upon taking office after the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt in April, 1945, Mr. Truman had the support and good wishes of an overwhelming majority of his fellow citizens. This was shown in Institute polls on the question, "In general do you approve or disapprove of the way Mr. Truman is handling his job as President?" In July, 1945, when the Institute first tested his popularity in a poll, 87 per cent of the Nation's voters said the new President was doing a good job in the White House. But the political "honeymoon" period was shortlived.

By the summer of 1946 the Truman popularity curve had nosedived to 43 per cent, during a period of confusion and uncertainty over price controls and the OPA. Then came further confusion over foreign policy when Henry A. Wallace, then a member of the Truman Cabinet, made a speech which seemed to contradict the policies of James F. Byrnes, the Secretary of State. The President dismissed Wallace. At the time of the 1946 congressional elections in November the Truman popularity curve was at a new low of 32 per cent.

A remarkable comeback followed. Early in 1947 the President recouped much of his lost popularity when he stood up to John L. Lewis in the mine strike, adopted a tougher policy in dealing with Russia, and appointed Gen. George C. Marshall as Secretary of State.

During the first half of 1947 the President enjoyed substantial popularity and, if an election had been held then, the story might have been far different from what it is today. In March, 1947, 60 per cent said they approved of what Mr. Truman was doing.

The President's popularity ebbed, however, as 1947 wore on. One reason was undoubtedly the growing deadlock between the White House and Congress. Mr. Truman was the choice of a big majority of Democrats for renomination, but before the 1948 campaign got started only about two-fifths of the Nation's voters said

Dewey Indicated As Winner With Control of Senate The Big Question

By Bert Andrews

All the campaigning is over, save for the traditional get-out-and-vote appeals that will be made tonight—and all the signs indicated that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will be elected President on Tuesday over President Harry S. Truman.

The one big uncertainty remaining was whether the Republicans would retain control of the Senate, which they now dominate by 51 to 45.

There seemed to be no doubt that the Republicans will be given a handy majority in the House of Representatives.

Both Sides Predict Victory

President Truman and his running mate, Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, continued—and will continue up to the last minute—to make predictions of victory.

So did Governor Dewey and his teammate, Gov. Earl Warren of California.

The President and Senator Barkley had, on their side, the hope that the whirlwind campaigns they have been making, plus the support of many leaders of organized labor, have stemmed the pro-Republican tide and will work a miracle on Tuesday.

Governor Dewey and Governor Warren have the knowledge that every public opinion poll and almost every political expert believe that the tide is still rolling, and that they'll garner at least 330 to 350 of the 531 electoral votes.

Democrats Question Polls

They think they may pick up even more if the trend shown by the opinion polls and the experts is transformed into a sweep.

The Democrats argue—as President Truman has repeatedly argued—that the polls and experts are wrong and that come Wednesday there'll be the greatest unpacking scene at Albany in the New York State capital's history.

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, Democratic national chairman, forecast, for example, that President Truman will get a minimum of 252 electoral votes, that the Senate will go Democratic by 3 to 5 seats, and that the Democrats will regain control of the House. Victory depends, he declared, on the size of the vote in the five big States of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and California. His belief is that a Truman majority in any one of the big States will push him over the 266 needed to win.

President Truman will take to the air tonight to appeal to the

Mrs. Roosevelt Broadcasts Plea for Truman

New York, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt made a special radio broadcast from Paris tonight urging the Nation's voters to return Harry S. Truman to the White House.

"President Truman has made his record clear," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "He has shown courage, but he needs the people's mandate to help him. If he is going to be our President, he must know that we want progressive Democrats in the Senate and in the Congress."

GOP Economics Of Crash Type, Reuther Charges

Detroit, Oct. 31 (AP).—President Walter P. Reuther of the CIO United Auto Workers accused the Republican Party today of "practicing the same kind of upside economics that led to the crash of 1929."

He said the GOP in the Eightieth Congress "refused to protect the average family from inflation, gave huge tax cuts to the wealthy and allowed corporations to collect scandalous profits of 20 billion dollars."

Reuther, in a radio network address, again urged the election of President Truman and his ticket.

Fallen City of 2 Millions

Mukden Awaits Red Conqueror; Panic Reported at Airfield

Nanking, Oct. 31 (AP).—The last distant echo of gunfire died in Mukden today, and the great Manchurian city lay in silent foreboding, awaiting its Communist conquerors.

(Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Moosa reported from Peiping that the Chinese Communist radio announced that Red attackers had broken through Mukden defenses and street fighting raged in the city.

(It was reported that government headquarters in Mukden sent a desperate appeal for planes to rescue officials trapped in the city. The fate of the Chinese armies defending the city was unknown. Arrivals in Peiping from Mukden told of panic at the Mukden airfield.)

The Chinese government continued to assert officially that a "great battle" was in progress, but the highest officials admitted privately:

"It's all over."

As the Reds closed in on Mukden, radio communication with Nanking continued until 5:30 p. m. Sunday. The latest message told of the gradual fading of the sounds of battle from the outskirts, followed by "deathlike silence."

It said the majority of the city's two million residents stayed indoors. Street violence had not materialized.

It broke off suddenly with: "Goodby."

A half-hour earlier, at 5 p. m., United States Consul General Angus Ward sent a radio report to the embassy in Nanking.

"There are no disorders and the sound of gunfire has not been audible since 6 o'clock this (Sunday) morning," he related.

Ward said 10 American Government personnel, including one woman and three dependents, a woman and two children, remained in Mukden.

The dependents apparently were Ward's wife and children, and the woman employe Miss Mary Eleanor Braden, 26, of Dysart, Iowa, consular secretary. A previous embassy report, however, had said

Confident Dewey Rests at Pawling Farm; Truman Also at Independence Home to Vote

Townspeople Greet Presidential Party

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Independence, Mo., Oct. 31.—President Truman came home to vote today after 22,000 miles of campaigning across the Nation.

He stepped off the presidential special at 7:30 a. m., at the little stone station where some 200 townspeople waited to greet him with waving handkerchiefs and a sign which read:

"Remember 32? We do. Vote Truman."

Mayor Roger Sermon shook hands with the President and told him "a lot of people are talking about your St. Louis speech." Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman were greeted by a small party of women who said:

"We're glad to get you back" and "You look wonderful after all you have been through." It was a neighborly affair and Mr. Truman responded in neighborly fashion.

"It's grand to be home," he said from the rear platform where he has stood to make so many fighting speeches since Labor Day. "I can't tell you how much I appreciate your coming down so early to see the country boy come home.

"I've been through a great campaign, going around the country telling the people the issues. I think I'm right, and when a home town turns out like this so early in the morning I'm sure of it.

"I think I know everybody here by their first names. That's what Pawling, N. Y., Oct. 31 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, weary from vigorous campaigning, went to church and rested on his farm in peaceful Pawling today.

He was avowedly confident of winning the presidential election Tuesday and seemed delighted at a chance to rest.

After services in the little red brick Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, he and Mrs. Dewey returned to the farm on nearby Quaker Hill. And there he will stay until Monday afternoon, when he will motor to New York for a short talk on a GOP-sponsored Nation-wide radio broadcast Monday night at 9 o'clock. He will urge

Truman Victory 'Desirable'—Royall

Secretary of the Army Royall balked at calling President Truman's reelection either "necessary" or "essential" to national defense yesterday, but declared it "desirable."

Royall was asked in a radio interview if he thought Mr. Truman's return to the White House was necessary in the interests of national defense.

"Necessary is a pretty strong word," he replied. "American defense will be all right, anyway. The word desirable I think is applicable, in my opinion, from the defense standpoint."

The questioner, Charles Parmer, Washington news commentator, then asked Royall if he thought it was essential that Mr. Truman be relected.

"Essential is too broad a word," Royall said. "I want to be fair about this. A change in the administration will not mean that our national policy and Administration policy will not be backed. But I'm convinced that it would be better not to have a change in the Administration—that it would give us a setback, and that to that extent it would be undesirable."

Royall said that "Russia is definitely looking for a chink in our armor." He added:

"We do not want to give them even the slightest opportunity to think that they may ever see a chink."

95 million citizens who are eligible to vote. A turnout of around 50 millions seems to be a good estimate.

President Truman's contention is that the greater the vote the better his chance to win, and so he'll talk on a vote-appeal broadcast from 10:30 to 10:45 p. m. (EST) over all networks.

[The Weather Bureau said last night that voters in most sections of the country will have fair weather for their trip to the polls, but it forecast some rain for the more populous States, east of the Mississippi.

[The Bureau said rain is expected for the upper Mississippi River Valley, the Ohio Valley, the southern Great Lakes region and the Appalachian Mountain area.

[Occasional rain was predicted for New England and Middle Atlantic States, with scattered showers in the Middle Gulf States.—Editor's Note.]

Other Scheduled Broadcasts

Senator Barkley will be among the Democratic big-wigs who will join in on his party's final broadcast.

Governor Dewey, Governor Warren and other Republicans will participate in a similar get-out-and-vote broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. over the NBC, ABC and CBS networks.

While the two men from whom the Nation will choose a President are busy, there will also be some last-minute campaigning and hoping from 10 other candidates for the Presidency, ranging from Henry A. Wallace, Progressive Party candidate, and Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of the States' Rights Democrats, on down through splinter groups to a brand-new candidate who popped up yesterday.

This last one was Roland C. Casad of Escondido, Calif., who said in Omaha, Nebr., that he was a write-in candidate in California. Chief plank in his platform—age pensions of $200 a month for everybody over 15 years of age.

The other presidential candidates are: Norman Thomas, Socialist; Dr. Claude A. Watson, Prohibition; Edward A. Teichert, Socialist Labor; Farrell Dobbs, Socialist Worker; John Maxwell, Vegetarian; John G. Scott, Greenback, and Gerald L. K. Smith, Christian National.

Wallace was the busiest of all. While the other candidates got in a Sunday of rest, Wallace kept at his campaigning in Brooklyn. He said he would keep on talking about his "peace candidacy" until the last possible minute. He will wind up with a talk from 10 to 10:30 p. m. tonight over ABC.

Governor Dewey, at his Pawling, N. Y. farm, made no personal prediction as to the size of his popular or electoral vote. President Truman, thanking a home-town crowd at Independence, Mo., for welcoming "a country boy" home, made no forecasts either.

Some of the claiming done by others, included:

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who lost the nomination to Governor Dewey—"The Republican ticket will have four to five million votes to spare." He said Republicans would retain control of both Houses. He said that if the unexpected happens, and the Democrats win a majority in the Senate, there will be enough anti-Truman Democrats to help the Senate "keep on doing its job."

Governor Thurmond—"A vote for either Mr. Truman or Mr. Dewey would be a vote for 'civil wrongs' and for the throttling of the South's progress."

Thomas—"The best that can be said of this political campaign is that it could be the worst."

Senator Barkley—"The fate of the Nation depends on the outcome of the election. The fundamental issue is whether the gains made by the people in the last 16 years are to be preserved or lost."

Recent Indications

Here are some of the factors that have become apparent in the last days of the campaign:

1. Neither Wallace nor Thomas will get any electoral votes. However, the consensus is that they will hurt Truman by taking more votes from him than from Governor Dewey.

2. At one time it seemed that Wallace might get as many as five million or six million votes. Now, most experts think his total may not amount to more than two million or 2,500,000.

3. Governor Thurmond may get at least 38 normally Democratic electoral votes in the Deep South, where the Democrats are still enraged by President Truman's espousal of a civil rights program distasteful to them.

4. President Truman's chances appear to have been all but ruined by the Civil Rights quarrel, the appeal of Wallace to normally Democratic voters in some large cities and—most important—by the upsurge of Republican strength and the indications that the voters want a change.

GOP COMEBACK SINCE '32—These maps show that the first early signs of a Republican comeback were present in the presidential election of 1936, at the county or "grass-roots" level. In 1940, although the Republicans lost the election, they showed a very large increase in number of counties carried, most of the increase coming in the Middle West. The trend continued in 1944. Counties carried by Republicans are shown in black they were planning to vote for him in the election itself.

Governor Dewey took a lead early in the race—Institute polls in April found him supported by 50½ per cent of voters expressing a choice. He stayed out in front during the entire campaign.

The probable turnout in tomorrow's election has aroused much speculation, particularly as to whether it will be greater or smaller than 1940. The 1940 total of 49,901,835 was the largest number of votes cast in any American election.

Tuesday's turnout would only have to run to some 50 millions to be hailed as setting a new record for number of votes cast. While it would indeed be the largest vote in our history, in proportion to population it would actually be a very low turnout.

A vote of 50 millions would represent only 54 per cent of the total number of citizens 21 years of age or more. The ratio would be only 57 per cent if the turnout were 53 millions.

This would compare unfavorably with 1940, when 63 per cent of the adult citizens voted. Even to equal the 1940 voting rate, tomorrow's turnout would have to be in the neighborhood of 58 millions because of the great increase in population in the past eight years.

The rate of voting in 1940 was, in itself, low when compared to earlier decades. In the year 1900, when only men voted, the total votes cast in the presidential election constituted 75 per cent of the potential voting population.

Readers studying election returns Tuesday night and Wednesday should, therefore, keep in mind that a turnout which exceds 1940 may in reality represent a low proportion of the greatly increased electorate.

The following table shows the number of votes cast in the last four presidential elections. It will be noted that the total vote dropped in 1944, a war year.

1940	49,901,835
1944	47,974,868*

This year marks the second election in recent history when the traditional Democratic pattern in the South has been broken up.

In 1928 when Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith were the opposing candidates, the Democrats last 7 of the 13 Southern States. Hoover carried Florida, Kentucky, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. This year the Democratic threat in the South comes from the States' Rights candidate, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, with today's poll showing him well in the lead in at least three States.

Besides Truman, Dewey, Wallace and Thurmond there are seven other candidates running for President this year, as follows:

Norman Thomas, Socialist Party; Edward A. Teichert, Socialist Labor Party; Claude A. Watson, Prohibition Party; John G. Scott, Greenback Party; Gerald L. K. Smith, Christian Nationalist Party; Farrell Dobbs, Socialist Workers Party, and John Maxwell, Vegetarian Party.

These candidates are not on the ballot in all States. Some, in fact, have qualified in only a handful of States. Altogether, these candidates will likely poll less than 1 per cent of the popular vote, as previously indicated.

The Republican Party, underdog for so many years, made its comeback since 1936 largely in the Middle Western section of the country that lies between the Ohio and the Rocky Mountains.

Of the 1056 counties in this region the Republicans carried only 121 in the smashing Republican defeat of 1932 which ushered in the New Deal. In every subsequent presidential election the GOP gained counties in the Midwest area until in 1944 it carried 818. Elsewhere the GOP gains were comparatively small.

In fact, in New England the Republicans actually carried fewer counties in 1944 than they did in 1932.

The trend of Republica sentiment between 1932 and 1944 as seen in the vote by counties, is shown in the accompanying maps. The counties that shifted from Democratic to Republican were primarily counties of a rural and small-town character.

Governor Dewey's popular vote percentage in today's final poll runs lower than the percentage of the winner in elections in the past 20 years.

In the Republican victory of 1928 Mr. Hoover polled 59 per cent of the major party vote. Mr. Roosevelt's victories, 1932-44, ranged between 54 and 62½ per cent.

The record follows:

Winner	*Pop. Vote	Electoral Vote
1928—Hoover	59%	444
1932—FDR	59	472
1936—FDR	62½	523
1940—FDR	55	449
1944—FDR	54	432

all eligible voters to exercise their franchise.

Dewey closed his campaign last night with a speech before 22,000 who packed Madison Square Garden.

Only a handful of people watched today as the Governor and Mrs. Dewey arrived at the church shortly before 11 a. m.

They sat alone in a front pew. Dewey's baritone voice ranged above the 57 others, including 10 reporters, who attended the services.

The Rev. Richard W. Wamsley, rector, noted the presence of the "distinguished guests" and said he was "very happy and proud that they have come to worship with us."

The Rev. Mr. Wamsley preached on immortality of the soul. He said belief in a life after death represented "a triumph of Christianity."

"Everything in the future depends on this basic doctrine," he said. "Faith in life after death makes us more alive to the things on earth."

He prayed that God would grant "to the President and all others in authority" both "wisdom and strength."

After services, the rector greeted the Deweys at the church entrance and stood chatting with them for a few minutes in the bright sunshine.

The rector asked Dewey how he felt.

"Awfully tired," he replied.

The Deweys will vote in New York Tuesday and await the election returns in their suite in the Hotel Roosevelt. With them will be their children, Thomas E., jr., and John M., who will take a day off from school at Albany.

Dewey's postelection plans are indefinite, assistant press secretary Herbert Campbell said. But it is believed he will return to Pawling later in the week. Folks here are arranging a big homecoming welcome.

This pastoral Dutchess County community is decorated with flags, bunting and pictures for the reception, which Mayor John A. Sheridan said would be held "just as soon after the election as possible."

makes you feel so good (hand on his heart) right here."

He and his family then entered an automobile for the short drive to the big gray house where he spent his boyhood. He was greeted at the door by Mrs. David Wallace, Mrs. Truman's mother.

It was not known today just what time the President would go to the polls Tuesday to cast the straight Democratic ballot he has so often urged in the past two months. Tentatively, it was understood, he intended voting about 10 a. m.

Mr. Truman has a busy schedule outlined for Monday, with three speeches in nearby Kansas City and a national broadcast from his home here Monday night. At 7:50 he is due to leave for a Red Cross breakfast at the Kansas City Club, aafter which he will retire to his suite in the Muehlbeach Hotel prior to attending a luncheon at noon and leading a Shrine parade at 1 p. m.

At 6 p. m. he will be guest at a dinner at the Kansas City Club and at 8 p. m. will leave to make a nonpolitical address at the Municipal Auditorium. His radio talk to the Nation, which will be carried by all four networks, will be made at 10:30 p. m. (EST).

The President spent a quiet day today, resting and talking with old friends here.

AMG Plans to Speed Returns to Germans

Berlin, Oct. 31 (AP).—The American Military Government has undertaken a program to make Tuesday's U. S. Presidential elections understandable to Germans. AMG intends to make the returns swiftly available here.

Throughout U. S.-occupied territory charts have been installed showing in graphic fashion just how Americans elect a President—the popular voting and the electoral college system. Photographs of the candidates also are displayed.

Election returns will be broadcast on German networks throughout the American zone Tuesday night.

tenth term in the House of Representatives. He is getting stiff opposition in the race from Tyrrell Krum, veterans editor for the Washington Times-Herald and chairman of the Fairfax County Republican Committee. Others in the race are Frank M. Hurst, Alexandria basketmaker, and Mrs. Sarah H. D'Avila, chairman of the Progressive Party in northern Virginia.

In the four-sided race for a post on the Arlington County Board, incumbent Alfred E. Frisbie may get nosed out by I. Lee Potter, running as an independent, who has come out openly for the school bond issue. Others in the race are Francis J. Clair, free lance writer, and Jacob Bechtel, 71-year-old retired carpenter.

There are no local contests in either Alexandria or in Fairfax County.

In addition to helping decide more crucial issues, Virginians also will vote on a proposed amendment to the State constitution which would abolish a General Assembly committee no longer needed to determine the necessity of local laws.

In Maryland, voters will state their choice on seven proposed State constitutional amendments and one State-wide referendum. Amendments are a proposal to limit the Governor to two consecutive terms; a provision barring Communists from State, county or local office; a proposal to hold annual instead of biennial General Assembly sessions; permit reorganization of county boundary lines by local referendum rather than State vote; and two other amendments peculiar to Baltimore City. The referendum will decide whether to reduce the term of the commissioner of motor vehicles from six to four years.

In addition to the presidential race, Montgomery County voters will decide on the charter and will name a member to the U. S. House of Representatives. Running for a fourth term is Representative J. Glenn Beall (R.), opposed by Democrat F. Byrne Austin.

In Princes George County, Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer is running for his sixth House term, and is opposed by Republican C. Maurice Weidemeyer.

Prince Georgians will vote also on establishing four fire districts, in the election districts of Oxon Hill, Spauldings, Seat Pleasant and Lanham. Proposed is a fire tax of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, to be given to the volunteer fire departments in these districts.

'Shooting Star' Powered by Ramjet . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

FIRST OF ITS KIND—Flames spurt from ramjet engines mounted on the wing tips of a Lockheed F-80 Shooting Star during a test flight for U. S. Air Force over southern California. Lockheed officials said the plane's regular turb-jet engines are used to get it airborne. Then the turb jets are turned off and the ramjets alone provide power required, making the F-80 first man-carrying aircraft to fly by ramjet alone

By the United Press

The Air Force revealed yesterday that Lockheed test pilots have made a number of successful flights in a plane propelled by ram-jet engines which theoretically can attain a speed of 5000 miles an hour.

Ram-jet engines previously had been tested in robot-controlled missiles, but never before by human pilots.

The tests have been in progress at Muroc and Van Nuys, Calif., for "nearly a year," the Air Force said. It did not reveal the speeds attained.

The plane used for the tests was a standard Lockheed F-80 Shooting Star with ram-jet engines mounted on its wing tips. The Air Force emphasized that the purpose was "to improve and develop the ram-jet engine" rather than to modify the F-80 itself.

The plane used conventional jet engines to reach a speed of 400 miles an hour. Then the ram-jets were cut in and the regular turbo-jet engines were turned off.

The Navy announced last January that a missile propelled by a ram-jet engine had "far exceeded" the speed of sound, about 760 miles an hour at sea level.

The ram-jet is known as the "flying stovepipe" because it operates on the same principle as the draft caused in a chimney by a roaring fire.

It consists of a big metal tube, open at both ends. The front end is slightly larger than the rear.

Up to speeds of about 400 miles and hour the ram-jet won't function at all.

At speeds above 400 miles an hour, the air is compressed inside the tube, or "rammed" there. The compressed air is hot enough to ignite a spray of kerosene shot into the tube.

The result is a terrific expansion of air amounting to a continuous explosion, which drives the ram-jet forward as if it were a rocket.

The faster the flying stovepipe moves, the greater the compression of air in the tube. The engineers say that will be true up to about 5000 miles an hour.

The ram-jet functions best at about 8 miles above the earth. But it would cease to function at about 16 miles altitude for lack of oxygen.

Truman, Warren Daughters Home After Aiding Campaigns

By The Associated Press

Two pretty girls whose smiles scored with the voters went home with their dads yesterday to await the election outcome after campaigning across the Nation with them.

They are Margaret Truman, 24, daughter of President Truman and Democratic candidate, and Virginia Warren, 20, oldest daughter of the Republican vice presidential nominee, Gov. Earl Warren of California.

They have been vote getters, old political hands say.

There have been moments when they stole a scene.

And the stars in the cast, President Truman and Governor Warren, loved it.

Mr. Truman beamed when crowds called out: "Where's Margaret?"

Governor Warren was the picture of paternal pride when a predominantly undergraduate audience on the University of Wisconsin campus whistled, cheered and shouted its approval of photogenic blond Virginia.

The audience demanded "We want Virginia" at the start and then kept the Governors of Wisconsin and California standing around for 40 minutes while getting her autograph.

It all led Governor Warren to threaten smilingly "to make her give the speeches." President Truman described Margaret "as my greatest asset."

Each girl is natural, friendly and unassuming. Neither has been affected by her father's prominence. Each has got a whale of a lot of fun out of it.

Margaret is the Trumans' only child. The Warrens have five others.

Virginia is still in college—an undergraduate at the University of California. Margaret is intent upon a vocal career and plans to venture into opera.

Marshall Closes London Talks on Atlantic Pact

London, Oct. 31 (NYHT)—George C. Marshall, United States Secretary of State, will fly back to Paris Monday after spending the weekend here.

It was reported today that Marshall conferred yesterday with Lester B. Pearson, new Canadian Minister for External Affairs, and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin on the plans for the United States and Canada to join the five-power Western European Union and make it into a North Atlantic defensive pact.

The London Sunday Times said they discussed plans for a seven-power conference to be held probably at Ottawa to work out details of the pact.

All States' Election Booths Open to Indians First Time

By The Associated Press

Tuesday—for the first time in United States history—American Indians in all States will be permitted to vote.

That's the word from the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Officials there say, however, that they have no way of knowing how many Indians will cast their ballots.

They think the number, as related to the total of eligible voters of their race, probably will be less than in the case of their white brothers.

One bureau official explained that recent court decisions granting the franchise to reservation Indians in New Mexico and Arizona removed what are believed to have been the last real barriers to Indian voting in the country.

This official said some other States probably still have laws, if fully applied, would take the vote away from numbers of Indians. He added, however, that they are not expected to be enforced to that extent.

Indians began to get voting rights after passage in 1887 of the general allotment law which authorized the grant of lands to individuals and allowed them title to their property.

China to Get 'Big' Military Shipment

By the United Press

The first "big" shipment of American military supplies to the Chinese nationalist government will be rushed to the Orient within the next two weeks, it was disclosed here.

The cargo, originally intended for shipment in December, will be carried in Army and Navy vessels, so it will not be delayed by the West Coast shipping strike.

A State Department spokesman said the Government now has transferred 105 million dollars in military aid funds to the Chiang Kai-shek regime. That is 85 per cent of the 125-million-dollar the Eightieth Congress voted.

William C. Bullitt, former American Ambassador to Moscow, and special emissary to China, will leave November 9 for Nanking. He has been an outspoken advocate of more military aid for Chiang.

North China Collapse . . .

Associated Press Wirephoto Map

STUNNING DEFEAT—Reported fall of Mukden (arrow) to Communists was latest and most stunning in series of north China setbacks for Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist forces. Dates mark site of other major recent Communist victories. Shaded area is all territory Nationalists still hold in this north China area. Defeated government troops in Mukden are believed trying to reach evacuation ports to the south of Hulutao and Yingkow

Fallen Mukden Awaits Reds

Miss Braden had been flown out. Ward, a naturalized American, was born in Alvinston, Ont.

An embassy spokesman said Americans living in the Peiping and Tientsin areas of north China would be urged officially Monday to get out while they could. The spokesman said this was not an order but a warning. There are about 600 Americans in Peiping and 200 in Tientsin.

Gen. Wei Li-huang, government commander for Manchuria, was reported at the south Manchurian port of Hulutao. He apparently was on the return trip to Mukden after conferring with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in Peiping during the past week.

Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, former National Defense Minister, came to Nanking from his central China headquarters at Hankow.

Chiang, on his sixty-second birthday, conferred privately with heads of his executive departments. Some official sources said he described the military situation and indicated some optimism on ability to retrive the situation.

[The United Press said Chiang summoned an emergency meeting of his leaders here and was authoritatively reported to have told them that the fate of the entire civil war would be decided in the next three months.

[Word reached Nanking also the Communists had routed five government armies which were trying to retreat westward into Jehol Province. Their two commanders, Gen. Tu Yu-ming and Gen. Liao Yao-hsing, veterans of the Burma campaign, were reported missing.

[A high government source said the 200,000 remaining Nationalist troops now in Manchuria were considered lost. It was feared, he said, that north China proper could not hold out long.]

Heavy Losses Possible

If Communist claims are true, Chiang has lost all but a handful of the 39 first-line divisions trained and equipped by the United States during the last years of the Japanese war.

The government may have lost more than 250,000 first-line troops plus 100,000 local militia in two weeks.

In addition Chiang probably has lost more arms than can be purchased with all the $175,000,000 American military aid grant.

Scanty news from the fighting fronts today said the Communists still were driving hard against Taiyuan, surrounded capital of Shansi Province, while government forces had advanced 25 miles south of Paoting along the broken Peiping-Hankow railway in north-central China.

Bunche Offers U. N. New Plan On Palestine

Paris, Oct. 31 (U.P.)—Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, United Nations mediator, has submitted to members of the Security Council a completely new three-point plan for permanent peace in Palestine, authoritative sources said tonight.

If adopted, the Bunche plan would virtually kill, simply by ignoring, the peace plan of the late Count Folke Bernadotte, which the Arabs as well as Jews bitterly oppose, informants asserted.

Bunche's plan, submitted secretly to Security Council members, provides:

1. A settlement of outstanding truce problems.

2. An armistice which would include either the demobilization of Jewish and Arab armies or else their separation by neutral zones to prevent further fighting.

3. An Arab-Jewish agreement to negotiate permanent peace either directly or through the U. N.

Bunche also has sounded out Arab and Jewish delegates here.

It is expected the Security Council will meet probably on Wednesday, to vote on a resolution calling for a withdrawal of Arabs and Jews to positions they held in the southern Negev area of Palestine before the recent fighting.

U. N. delegates believed that Russia will solve the confusion over the resolution by vetoing it.

There is growing sentiment for another special U. N. Assembly session here on Palestine, probably late in January after the administration to be elected in the United States Tuesday has taken office. Some Arab delegates already have extended their hotel reservations here.

jected the cease-fire order on the grounds that his forces were irregulars and not bound by the Lebanese decision accepting the order.

The Israeli leader said Germans, Yugoslavs and Poles were among the Arab prisoners taken.

For the first time, he said, Arab troops attached themselves to the Israeli army and fought with them throughout the campaign. He identified them as Druze, reputedly better fighters than the Moslems, and Circassians, implacably vindictive.

Arab sources in Haifa said Fawzi decided to attack the Jews in north Palestine while the bulk of the Israeli army battled Egyptians in the Negev.

Train Wrecks Station

Edgerton, Kans., Oct. 31 (AP).—Thirty-three cars of a fast Santa Fe Diesel-powered freight were derailed and thrown into the Edgerton station early today. The front of the frame building and a parked car were demolished. No injuries were reported.

Greek Cabinet Test Postponed Until U. N. Acts

Athens, Greece, Oct. 31 (U.P.)—Party leaders agreed today to postpone a showdown in the current cabinet crisis until the United Nations completes action on the Greek case.

Sophocles Venizelos, former vice premier and deputy leader of the Liberal Party, promised King Paul that he would not ask parliament for a new government until Foreign Minister Constanti Tsaldaris returns from Paris after the U. N. hearings.

Debating Russian Request

The U. N. political committee is debating a Russian request that all foreign troops, including American military aid advisers, be withdrawn from Greece.

Dissatisfied with the way the Liberal-Populist coalition formed in September, 1947, is prosecuting the war, Venizelos was expected to press his campaign for a new government when Tsaldaris gets back.

But rather than face a vote of confidence in parliament, Premier Themistocles Sophoulis, nominal leader of the Liberal Party, was expected to resign as premier.

Observers believed he would then be asked to form another coalition government.

Vie for Liberal Support

Meanwhile, Sophoulis and Venizelos started a tug-of-war for Liberal Party support. Venizelos claimed that most Liberals agreed that coalition with the Populists was "useless."

Sophoulis, however, had telegrams of support from at least 40 Liberal parliamentary delegates.

"Venizelos is acting the fool playing politics during a civil war," one American official here said. "If the Greeks want a government change, it is none of our business, but this maneuver is only jockeying for position within political groups."

German Reds Ask Ministers' Parley

Berlin, Oct. 31 (NYHT).—The German Communists declared in a statement today that "in order to retain world peace" the Council of Foreign Ministers must be convened immediately to conclude a German peace treaty.

The statement, issued by the "peace committee" of the German People's Council, a Communist group, appeared in all Russian-licensed newspapers here.

Renewing the propaganda campaign for withdrawal from Germany of all occupation forces, the statement said the occupation should end within a year after a treaty was concluded. It said Prime Minister Stalin's statement last Thursday showed that "the behavior of the Western powers hinders reestablishment at Berlin of normal conditions," and that Western powers, "by violation of four-power agreements, have lost all legal basis" for their continued stay here.

The statement said further: "The presence of occupation troops in Germany is justified only by the need to demilitarize the country and make preparations for a peace treaty. The Western powers are preventing conclusion of a peace treaty. Therefore, continuation of the Western occupation merely means colonial annexation of German territory."

Soviet Exports To U. S. Mount

By The Associated Press

Russia has been stepping up shipments of war-vital goods to the United States. She shows no signs of retaliating for a six-month-long trade rebuff.

The Soviet response so far to a virtual ban against getting industrial goods it wants from us has been a sizable increase in shipments to this country.

This increase has been due largely to bigger shipments of manganese and chrome ore—two industrial metals considered so vital by U. S. military men that we are stockpiling them against a war contingency. Russian shipments of them have risen even during the tension of the Berlin blockade.

Also striking is the fact that Russia is the only great power that has attained a "favorable" balance of trade with the U. S.—in the sense that her shipments here are worth more than what she gets from this country.

Only half a dozen sizable countries in the world are creditors to the United States on trade. The others are Colombia, Chile, British Malaya, and India and Pakistan, taken together, and Australia.

Why Russia—which often deals blow for blow—keeps on sending this strategic stockpile material to the United States is just one more Russian enigma.

A guess by one official is that the Soviet might be figuring that by filling all United States orders it may cause the United States to forget about trying to develop other sources of supply.

One United States plan has been to develop alternative supply sources—so manganese and chrome ores can't be shut off in an emergency case. This scheme calls for getting more of the metals from South America, India, Cuba, and Brazil, among others, though their ore is more costly than Russia's.

hangs over this bustling community 30 miles from Pittsburgh.

Donora has been blanketed by the mixture of smog and smoke for the last five days. A similar condition has existed in much of western Pennsylvania for several days with low river areas hardest hit.

The majority of the physicians gave the cause of the deaths as heart failure. One said the victims were strained to beyond their endurance in an effort to breathe and that their hearts had simply stopped beating.

A doctor who asked that his name be not used said today he had treated a baby of 4½ months and a woman of 85 years. He said, however, all the deaths were among elderly people.

He said the eight doctors in the town treated at least 400 cases over the weekend. Most of the victims were asthma and heart sufferers.

Hospitals in this heavily industrial area had been filled to capacity and beds were moved into halls to take care of the overflow. Superintendent James Law of the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital made shuttle trips to Pittsburgh in the heavy fog to bring oxygen tents and tanks to his stricken townsmen.

He said most patients responded to oxygen and injections of adrenalin.

In addition, fire departments from several distant points rushed life saving equipment to Donora.

At a meeting of the town's board of health, State health officials and executives of the American Steel and Wire Co., a spokesman for the steel firm, said the company voluntarily "closed the smelter because "that removes the objectionable fumes."

He identified the gas as zinc oxide fumes.

Burgess August Chambon said: "It isn't just one plant, it's an accumulation of five days of everything."

Describing the mass tragedy Health Board Chairman Charles Stacey said:

"This thing hit us fast. I never saw anything like it."

At his Indiantown Gap, (Pa.) home, Gov. James H. Duff said:

"We will make an immediate investigation by the Department of Health to ascertain if what happened was the result of any preventable cause."

In Philadelphia, Dr. Norris W. Vaux, State secretary of health, said he had sent the bureau's "entire force of industrial hygienists" into the community. The force of nine men is headed by Dr. F. C. Schilen, head of the Industrial Hygiene Bureau.

Dr. Schilen, upon arrival here, said he would start tonight making an analysis of the air over Donora. Similar tests also were being made for American Steel & Wire by an independent firm.

The firm's spokesman added that there had been no change in the plant's operation in the last 32 years and that there had been no previous indication the fumes might be deadly.

Fatal Smog Recalls '30 Belgian Epidemic

Brussels, Belgium, Oct. 31 (AP).—The fatal smog which blanketed Donora, Pa., for two days recalled for many Belgians today the mysterious Meuse Valley fog which caused more than 70 deaths in 1930.

A thick fog settled on the industrial area between Liege and Juy, in southeastern Belgium, December 1, 1930. Residents were seized suddenly by a strange illness from which many died.

An official commission published a report in January, 1931, concluding the fog was mainly responsible for the casualties, which occurred only among those over 55 or sufferers from heart and asthmatic disorders.

The temperature was around freezing, and humidity was heavy. The total absence of any wind had made possible the concentration at ground level of sulphuric acid fumes produced by the oxidation of hydrogen sulphide fumes from industrial and domestic furnaces.

Atmospheric conditions in the valley changed after about six days, and the mysterious smog disappeared. It has never returned.

U. N. Assembly Far Behind Its Agenda

By John G. Rogers

Paris, Oct. 31 (NYHT).—The 1948 United Nations General Assembly is approximately half over and already it is obvious that some of the items on its crowded agenda will have to be postponed for a year or taken up at a special session early in 1949.

The Assembly opened just 40 days ago. The numerically strong Latin American bloc is likely to insist on adjournment about December 10, so the Assembly has approximately 40 more days to go.

The important political committee has completed action on two items—atomic energy control and a peace appeal to the Big Five.

It now is wallowing around in the propaganda-plagued Balkan question. It still has to take final action on a disarmament resolution, Palestine, Korea, Spain, the veto, memberships, Little Assembly, and Italian colonies.

The social committee started with an agenda of 13 items and it is only about one third of the way through the second of these.

Starting soon the Assembly committees will probably hold night as well as day sessions but their chances of completing all schedules by adjournment time are slight.

French Police Clear 2 Mines; Prices Cut

Paris, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Police cleared strikers out of two more coal mines in central France today as the government announced new price cuts in its program to end the labor war.

At Montceau-le-Mines Communist-led workers left the mines without resistance when police moved in. Authorities estimated that more than half the nation's mines have now been regained.

Minister of Agriculture Pierre Pflimlin announced a cut in clothing prices of 2 to 8 per cent and in wine of 10 per cent.

Meat and fish imports will be increased to reduce prices, Pflimlin said.

The Communist-controlled Confederation of Labor had no comment, but non-Communist labor chiefs said the cuts were not enough.

Pflimlin made it clear more wage increases will not be allowed.

At Le Havre, where Communists tried to block off coal imports, 400 soldiers protected by 150 gendarmes unloaded coal without interruption all day.

Military Cabinet Sworn in Peru

Lima, Peru, Oct. 31 (AP).—Peru got a new, all-military cabinet today.

It was sworn in by Gen. Manuel Odria, leader of last week's bloodless revolt which ended in the overthrow of President Jose Luis Bustamante's government two days ago. With the exception of a few experienced politicans, the cabinet consists of young men who are newcomers on Peru's political scene.

Bustamante, who refused to sign a resignation, left the country and has taken up residence in exile in Argentina.

Odria is 52 and a former interior minister. He has announced he will organize a provisional government pending a new national election.

U.N. Palestine Role Called Good Red 'Propaganda'

Paris, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—The role the United Nations has played in Palestine has proved the "best possible propaganda for Russia," Henry Morgenthau, former United States Secretary of the Treasury, said today.

Morgenthau, newly returned from a 10-day visit to the Holy Land as general chairman of the 250 million dollar United Jewish Appeal Organization, said:

"It is most fortunate President Truman took action to change American policy concerning Palestine in the U. N. this week.

"It is high time the United States declared its independence of the British Foreign Office and made its own policy toward peace."

Morgenthau said Palestine Jews neither like nor want communism, but, he added, they feel as if they have no friends in the world.

Escaped Korean Chiefs Expected To Keep Fighting

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 31 (AP).—The main strength of the south Korean rebellion of October 20 has been put down, but many Americans and Koreans said today that savage small-scale fighting would continue sporadically throughout the winter.

Most of the rebel leaders apparently escaped.

American advisers voiced fears that up to 10 per cent, or 5000, of the Korean armed forces are potential insurgents, giving secret allegiance either to the Soviet-sponsored north Korean Communist government, or to southern extreme rightists.

Premier Lee Bum Suk said Communists and rightists worked together in the recent uprising.

Tito Is Expected to Complete His Break With Cominform

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Oct. 31 (AP).—Yugoslavia appears to be about ready to drop her pretense of good relations with the Cominform countries.

Diplomatic circles expressed the belief the patience of Premier Marshal Tito became exhausted with the latest expulsion of Yugoslav diplomats from Hungary.

Up to now Tito has hesitated to break with the Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) because he did not want Yugoslavia identified with the Western anti-Soviet countries.

There is a possibility, diplomatic sources said, that Yugoslavia may soon break off diplomatic relations with Hungary. The Yugoslav ministry of foreign affairs said yesterday the Yugoslav Charge d'Affaires and several other diplomatic officials had been given 24 hours to leave Hungary.

The official Communist newspaper Borba today said Hungary had failed in its alleged campaign to force Yugoslav diplomats in Budapest to betray their country and their leaders.

Relations between Yugoslavia and Albania also were reported deteriorating because of Premier Enver Hoxha's campaign to rid the country of pro-Tito elements.

[The Belgrade correspondent of The New York Herald Tribune said he had learned that considerable unrest and excitement prevail in Tirana, the capital, of Albania where a purge of "Trotskyists and Tito's friends" has resulted in the downfall of Interior Minister Koci Xoxe and five other top Communist leaders, including Pandi Christo, a member of the Politburo.

[Reports from Tirana indicate Albania rapidly is becoming a Russian outpost on the Mediterranean. Following the break in economic relations with Yugoslavia last July and the expulsion of Yugoslav advisers, Albania became completely dependent on Russia and was quickly invaded by Soviet engineers and technicians. There are now more than 3000 Russians in the country.

[Albania today is isolated almost completely from her Balkan neighbors. The Yugoslav frontier is tightly closed. Three Russian planes arrive each month from Moscow via Budapest and Belgrade, and the only other contact with the outside world during the last three months has been the arrival at Durazzo of five Russian ships and a Bulgarian freighter.]

Danes Adopt U. S. Arms

Draft in Big Cities Finds 72% Unfit

By the United Press

Selective Service officials in the Nation's 10 largest cities reported yesterday that an average 72 per cent of the 24 and 25-year-olds called up for preinduction physical examinations are unfit for military service.

The rejection rate ranges from 87.5 per cent in New York City to 37 per cent in Los Angeles. Psychoneurotic disorders and heart ailments were the major causes.

The rejection rate during World War II, from November 1940 to August 1945, was 35.8 per cent. During that time, 17,954,500 men were examined.

However, draft officials pointed out that, with veterans exempted from the peacetime draft, most of the men being called were 4-Fs during the war or held essential jobs. They estimated that roughly 10 per cent of the wartime 4-Fs have recovered from their disabilities.

Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said the rejection rate among the 24-and-25-year-olds was just about what he and his aides had expected, and maybe a little better.

He recalled that, after Congress decided not to draft veterans, Selective Service recommended registering only youths 21 or under, where the rejection rate would not be nearly so high.

16 Face Prague Trial In 'Plot' to Oust Reds

Prague, Oct. 31 (AP).—Sixteen men will go on trial before the Prague State Court Wednesday, charged with plotting to overthrow Communist control of Czechoslovakia with the aid of "the American C. I. C."

[The American C. I. C. in Germany is the Counter Intelligence Corps of the United States Army. The charges do not specify the Army unit as such. Army authorities in Germany have called the charges false.]

Air Force, Navy Feud Is Reopened

Grosse Isle, Mich., Oct. 31 (U.P.).—A high Navy official today brought into the open again the long-smouldering Navy-Air Force fight over which should do the chief long-range bombing job in event of another war.

Rear Adm. D. V. Gallery, director of the Navy's guided missile branch, said here it would be cheaper and easier for carrier-based Navy bombers to "reach the heart of any continent in the world."

He said the projected 65,000-ton super-aircraft carrier, which will be able to launch planes big enough to carry atom bombs, "will cost less than the system of airfields ashore necessary to conduct a heavy bomber offensive."

Gallery was dressed down publicly by Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan some time ago for writing a memo urging the Navy to hurry and get into strategic bombing along with the Air Force. Sullivan said Gallery's memo did not represent Navy policy.

The Air Force has long claimed the right to do all long-range, or "strategic" bombing. The feud was supposedly settled late this summer at a Newport, R. I., conference of top armed force officials, with the Air Force given the predominant role in strategic bombing and the Navy's air arm assigned priority in anti-submarine work.

Gallery said the Air Force would have to operate from overseas air bases which "we may not get . . . without fighting for them." In an atomic war, he added, "our present friend may be forced to be neutral."

21st Degree Mason Conferral Nov. 9

Conferral of the twenty-first degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry has been postponed until November 9 due to the National election falling on Tuesday of this week.

There are 114 candidates in the fall class. The thirty-second degree will be conferred December 7.

First 7 D. C. Draftees Begin Duty Tuesday

The first District draft registrants to be inducted under the peacetime Selective Service law will begin a 21-month tour of duty in the Army on Tuesday.

Seven Washington men, all 24 and 25-year-olds, have been ordered to report to the Army and Air Force recruiting station, 403 10th st. nw., at 8:30 a. m. November 2 for induction. They will be the vanguard of Greater Washington draftees.

Following them on Thursday will be five draft registrants of Silver Spring Draft Board No. 53, who will be inducted at the Silver Spring recruiting station. Additional men from nearby Maryland and Virginia will be drafted later in November.

The District, with a quota of 55 men to fill this month, already has enough 1-A registrants to meet the call, plus a reserve of "about 50 per cent," according to Lieut. Col. Walter S. Welch, chief of the manpower division. Through November, District men will be inducted on each Tuesday.

According to Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, Second Army commander, all draftees from the District, Maryland, Virginia and other Middle Atlantic States, will be sent to Camp Pickett, Va., for basic training.

An Army spokesman yesterday, however, said that greater Washington inductees may be sent later to nearby Fort Belvoir, Va., and Fort George G. Meade, as well as Camp Pickett.

Meanwhile, the clerk of Fairfax County Draft Board No. 39 yesterday reported that only one man has been found so far to meet the county's three-man November quota.

Mrs. Irvine Chapman, the clerk said that of nine Fairfax County men who have taken preinduction physical and mental examinations, only one had passed.

Board 39 now is awaiting results from another ten men who have been examined, Mrs. Chapman said, but the results must reach the board no later than today if any of the ten men who took the tests are to be applied against the November quota.

Fairfax County men are to be inducted November 22 and 24 at the Army and Air Force recruiting station in Alexandria, along with three Arlington County men. A small number of Alexandria men will also be drafted then.

Student Deferment Plans to Be Ready in '49

Plans, at least "on paper," for setting up a deferment system for college students studying scientific subject, are expected to be ready next spring or early summer.

This was announced yesterday by Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, following publication of an advisory report by the American Council on Education here.

The report, second to be released by a national organization on the controversial scientific deferment question, will go to committee study Thursday, General Hershey said.

He explained that seven committees, set up under the director of Selective Service with the cooperation of the National Security Resources Board and the National Research Council, will take the ACOE recommendations under advisement Thursday along with those filed earlier by the Interdepartmental Committee on Research and Development, headed by Alexander Wetmore.

Members Are Specialists

The committee members are specialists in the medical sciences, physical, biological, agricultural and social sciences and in the humanities.

The problem of draft deferment must be decided before the 1949-50 school terms begin, it was pointed out. All college students have been deferred for the present year.

The Westmore report allegedly calls for long-range plans for maintaining a steady supply of students in all branches of science, possibly 50,000 a year. One proposal would permit science students to be deferred in reduced numbers over a period of years, screening out the less bright students along the way.

The American Council on Education's report, prepared by its committee on relationships of higher education to the Federal Government, has as one of its principal recommendations the establishment of colleges or universities in the role of the local draft board.

The university then could certify a student for continuous deferment until his training was completed, unless the student no longer "gives promise of superior progress in his training."

Job Analyses Planned

The report also calls for "the development of a complete collection of technically accurate job analyses, both civilian and military, appropriate for normal times and for various periods of emergency."

General Hershey said yesterday he would withhold his judgment on both recommending reports pending action of the advisory scientific committees. He said he was "disappointed" that the reports do not give any factual basis for establishing the number of scientists estimated to be needed in each field.

Under the plan advanced yesterday by the ACOE, college students would be granted at least two years' deferment to continue scientific studies, and longer periods of deferment if they showed promise.

"A fundamental difference may develop on this point," said General Hershey, "for Selective Service has the feeling that, practically, it must start its selection earlier, or face the prospect of missing out on military needs.

"Somebody has to go into the armed forces, and it shouldn't be the person who because of money or for other reasons can't go to college. We might founder quickly if we proceed on that basis."

Progress on 43 Prince Georges Projects Reviewed

A progress report on 43 major improvement projects in Prince Georges County was made yesterday by the Advisory Board to Prince Georges County Commissioners.

The board said a program involving installation of 744 lights along almost 14 miles of streets is nearly completed, and more lighting is being planned.

Plans are almost ready for improvement of Hamilton st. from Ager and Queens Chapel rds. to Rhode Island ave. Further extension under Rhode Island ave. and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks by underpass to the Baltimore blvd. is in the final plans stage.

Improvements on River rd. from the B. & O. to Edmonston rd. have been delayed by right-of-way difficulties.

Preliminary plans for a cross county highway from New Hampshire ave. to the proposed Washington-Annapolis Freeway at Ardwick and thence to the Annapolis pike and eventually to Largo are almost finished and Federal and State funds are being sought to aid in defraying the $5,500,000 cost.

Improvement of Marlboro pike from Southern ave. to Walker Mill rd. probably will begin at the start of the next construction season. Right-of-way problems are holding up the Arundel rd. improvement from 30th st. to Rhode Island ave. along the Northwest Branch.

Channelization programs for a dozen entrances to the District are in preparation. Already completed is the Decatur st. improvement from Baltimore blvd. to Edmonston rd. at a cost of $86,724; Sheriff rd. from Eastern ave. to Palmer hwy., $153,000; LaSalle rd. from the intersection of Queens Chapel rd. and Eastern ave. to Chillum rd.,

Now under construction is Riverdale rd.-Finn's lane from Edmonston rd. to Defense hwy., which has been held up by rights-of-way adjustments and weather; Addison rd. from 49th ave. to Palmer hwy.; Whitfield rd. from Ardwick to Landham probably will be completed next year.

In addition, 11 playground sites are to be purchased in Capitol Heights, Seat Pleasant, Fairmount Heights, Cheverly, Cottage City, Mount Rainier-Avondale, Riverdale, University Park, College Park, Lakeland and Berwyn Heights.

The Weld that Saved the Day... with a friendly hand from Nickel Welding Rod
What a tough break! To have the engine of your car freeze up and crack. And you just married, with honeymoon lane stretching ahead.
And what a lucky break, when you find out that the village welder can fix it.
"You have yourself some lunch," the welder says, "and I'll have you ready for a fresh start by three."
While you're gone he gets to work, using a new kind of Welding Rod. Made with Nickel, it makes tough welds easy.
So, with the help of "Your Unseen Friend," Nickel, he welds the break so it will never bother you again.
When you get back, he's finished the job. He tells you why it's as good as new. And how he could do it without heating the block first or taking the engine out of the car, because this new kind of Nickel welding rod is so easy to handle.
"What do they call it?" you ask.
"They call it 'Ni-Rod,'" he says, "but me ... I call it 'My Rod'!"
"Whatever you call it," you say, as you drive away, "it sure is a friend in need."
Every day, in many a way, Nickel is your friend in need. From your morning bus to your evening radio, it helps things serve you well. But you rarely see the Nickel because it's usually combined with other metals....

Glass Labor Gains Hint Peace Trend

By the Associated Press

The labor peace gains of a big plate glass industry—once bedeviled by strikes and sitdowns—prompted a national study group yesterday to conclude a trend may be on.

Up have gone profits for the company and take home pay for workers, and a pattern of labor relationships may be emerging for other mass production lines, the study report observed. It was made by a National Planning Association committee on the causes of industrial peace under collective bargaining.

It analyzed the 15 years of relations between Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co. and the CIO Federation of Glass, Ceramic and Silica Sand Workers.

Both Had Enough

After the last of two big strikes—a 13-week shutdown over the first round postwar wage demands in 1945—both sides shook hands, it was found, and said:

"We will do everything possible in the future to avoid a repetition."

And the NPA committee of 29 labor-relations experts headed by Clinton S. Golden, formerly of the CIO-United Steelworkers, concluded that promise has been kept.

The study noted good day-to-day relations. It found that the company acepted the union, and the union kept out of management affairs, top people did the bargaining shunning "legalism," and the negotiations dealt with concrete problems instead of abstract principles.

To Release Other Reports

Other similar studies and reports will be released in the next few months. The whole survey of good labor relations is being financed by John Hay Whitney. The NPE is a nonprofit, nonpolitical organization devoted to planning in America.

The glass workers have 30,000 members, of whom 7500 are employed at the eight plants of Libbey-Owens-Ford in Toledo, Shreveport, Charleston, W. V., and Ottawa, Ill.

The company, like the automobile, steel, rubber and other mass production industries, has had its share of industrial strife, the committee remarked. It has had sitdowns, slowdowns, stoppages, and the two prolonged company-wide strikes in 1936 and 1945.

U. S. Building Hits Record

A record billion dollars was spent on new homes, apartments, industrial plants and other privately financed construction projects during the three months ended September 30, the Federal Works Agency reported yesterday.

Another $1,299,000,000 went into hospitals, airfields, roads and other strictly public projects.

Increase of Fifth

The agency reported in the current issue of Public Construction that the dollar volume of privately financed building increased nearly one fifth during the three-month period. The value of public works was up a little more than one-fourth, it said.

Officials stated the increases primarily were attributable to a bigger volume of work, but also reflected higher labor and material costs.

Residential construction accounted for more than half the four billion dollars privately financed figure. That was an 18 per cent increase during the three-month period to an over-all dollar volume of $2,055,000,000.

Commercial Increase

Despite a "leveling off" in new plant construction, commercial and other nonresidential building rose 18 per cent to reach a dollar volume of one billion. Railroads and other utilities and farms accounted for the other 945 million dollars, an increase of 22 per cent.

Highway construction showed the biggest gain, in public works, 43 per cent. It reached a total valuation of 574 million dollars. Hospital construction was up 28 per cent to 64 million dollars.

Also, the Commerce Department reported that output of building materials broke all records in August, hitting a total 4 per cent higher than the previous high of October, 1947.

Maryland-D. C. Hospital Group to Meet Here Nov. 8

Some 500 administrators, department heads and other hospital workers will meet here for two days, beginning November 8, for the eighth annual conference of the Maryland-District of Columbia Hospital Association.

The sessions, at Hotel Statler, will be led by J. G. Capossela, administrator at Emergency Hospital here and president of the association. He will be succeeded during the conference by President-Elect Benjamin W. Wright, superintendent at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Md.

Scheduled speakers include Joseph G. Norby, of Milwaukee, president of the American Hospital Association; Rev. Edmond A. Walsh, S.J., vice president of Georgetown University, and Dr. William G. Torpey personnel consultant with the Navy Department here.

'Hamlet' Material Being Displayed At Folger Library

The Folger Shakespeare Library, E. Capitol and 2nd st., is starting a series of special exhibits with a showing of "Hamlet" material, beginning today.

Also being shown is the first edition, dated 1604, of the full text of "Hamlet," one of the three only known copies.

The Folger exhibition gallery is open from 11 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Murphy said the suit was filed at Vicksburg yesterday and charged that a 76-day-old strike here was a breach of contract and had caused a $500,000 loss due to a complete shutdown of the plant.

Atom Commission Seeks UEW Suit Dismissal

By the United Press

The Atomic Energy Commission will ask for dismissal of the United Electrical Workers (CIO) suit for one million dollars damages growing out of the commission's blacklisting of the union, a spokesman said yesterday.

"That goes without saying," he said. The commission also will ask for dismissal of that part of the suit which would prevent the commission from barring the union from atomic plants.

Puerto Rico Holds Election Tuesday

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Nearly 875,000 Puerto Rican voters will elect their own Governor for the first time Tuesday.

They will also decide by ballot whether Puerto Rico's future political status should be independence, statehood or continuation of the present territorial status.

The Charter Issue

The presidential race and control of the Senate occupy secondary places in the minds of many voters of neighboring Montgomery County. Their primary concern is approval of the charter by which they can obtain home rule and a modernized county government. Charter government is an old issue in the county, but the draft charter that will be voted up or down tomorrow is new. Most of the weaknesses of the charter that was voted down four years ago have been corrected. The new charter has survived a legal attack on what its foes believed to be its most vulnerable point, and it appears to have the support of the most progressive groups in the county.

The aims of this movement are basically the same as those of the charter movement in the District. A board of experts elected by the people two years ago have written a charter that would transfer local policy-making from Annapolis to Rockville. The proposed seven-member county council would then decide how local tax funds should be spent and how such vital functions as public works and public health should be managed. Since five of these councilmen would be elected from the present commissioner districts and two at large, they would doubtless be more representative of the people than the present board, which is dominated by the county's rural areas.

No less important would be the concentration of administrative responsibility in a county manager. As a sop to the charterites, the Maryland Legislature created the office of county supervisor a few years ago and it has been helpful in bringing efficiency into the local government. Unfortunately, however, this position was grafted onto an obsolete system under which the county commissioners function as both policy-makers and administrators. Only by a complete changeover to a county-manager form of local government can the full advantages of this highly paid executive be realized.

Ridiculous charges are heard to the effect that the charter would throw Republican officials out of office. A few years ago, when the Democratic Party was in control of the county, the charter was said to be a device for bringing the Republicans into power. The simple truth is that it would permit the people to choose their own policy-makers, whether the majority is Republican or Democratic. The absurdity of that complaint is exceeded only by the fantastic warnings against "dictatorship" under the charter. The opponents ought to realize that they insult the intelligence of the people when they pretend that there is any similarity between home rule and dictatorship. It will be surprising indeed if the charter does not win by a substantial majority.

Rustem Vambery

The events in Hungary were past stomaching by Rustem Vambery when he resigned his post as Hungary's Minister to Washington last May, though the official reason for his resignation was Budapest's refusal to relieve the burden of his responsibilities by adding to his staff. Vambery from then on was an unhappy man, his quondam spryness gone. He had compromised himself too deeply with the Russians and their Communist stooges in Hungary to be acceptable to the Hungarian exiles in the United States. Thus it seemed like a blessed release for the 77-year-old Vambery when he died in relative obscurity in a New York subway. Nevertheless the wide circle which knew him will mourn the courtly and cultivated Vambery of those days before the state became a religion when civilization was in flower.

Vambery was one of the exemplars of that civilization. The son of one of the greatest Orientalists who ever lived, a man upon whom the British government lavished honors for his philological labors in making the Northwest frontier peoples known to the British Raj, Rustem Vambery had a remarkable inheritance, and he adorned it. His work in the field of international law gave him a European and then a world reputation. But he was no cloistered scholar, and strove to realize in action the respect for law and liberty which he expounded, doing it with a wit and charm which mellowed his erudition and authority and made both persuasive.

The ironical postscript to a life which before a cloud descended over it burned with passion for freedom is that the man he defended successfully on a charge of treason—having come out of the classroom to do it—became the evil genius of his country, the obnoxious and ape-like deputy—Premier Matyas Rakosi. Some of the worst personal tragedies of this tragic age are the tragedies of the disillusioned liberals of the Victorian age.

Happy Thoughts

President Truman's Friday night speech in Brooklyn has been interpreted as evidence that he is in the process of gestating another "happy thought" for the solution or assuagement of our difficulties with Soviet Russia. The birth pangs, no doubt, are genuine. Mr. Truman, whatever one may say about his tactics, is quite right in feeling in a state of constant "siege," as Mr. Warren Austin would put it, to stabilize Soviet-American, meaning Soviet-Western, relations. To what other end could statesmanship properly be directed than to use American power in developing an equilibrium with Russia? Its duty in the present crisis of uneasy instability with Russia is to work for a general compromise which avoids appeasement on the one hand and warmongering on the other, and at the same time to stand forever ready to discuss agreements on specific issues, as, for example, Austria. We hope that the next President, whoever he may be, will be similarly "seized" with this determination.

For the great danger is that American diplomacy might get into a groove in its relations with Soviet Russia. This would be a cardinal and fateful mistake. The polarization of world power between the United States and the Soviet Union puts a special responsibility upon this country—so long as Soviet Russia keeps on acting like a grasshopper in the world—to pursue a settlement with Moscow directly as well as in common with America's Allies. This does not mean that on any issue which the United Nations has taken under its competence, the United States must create a diversion, and embark upon parallel conversations without any warning to its Allies and without any consideration for the United Nations. That sort of thing as instanced in the Vinson-to-Moscow thought was a blunder worse than a crime. However, the impulse animating the President, when dredged of its content of politics, was commendable, and this should not be forgotten in the heat of the reaction to it, and in the fear of a repetition. If automatism takes possession of American diplomacy toward Soviet Russia—that is to say, a restriction of negotiations to the United Nations or to collective action—American influence in developing an equilibrium is bound to be hampered.

What is apt to keep American diplomacy rigid and collective in approach is fear of the susceptibilities of our Allies. Take, for example, the so-called revolving door episode of last spring. When the United States handed a statement to the Kremlin re-emphasizing the pacific purposes of our policy toward Russia, a note of wonderment came out of London as to whether a Munich might not be contemplated in Washington. The implication was that Western Europe was in danger of being double-crossed. The worry, of course, was nonsense, and reflected no credit upon the officials who expressed it. In other places a similar query was voiced, especially among exiles and among dissidents in threatened or enslaved countries, some of whom regard a Russo-Western war as a lesser evil than their present condition. It would be foolish to allow the querulousness or the defeatism in other countries to put a brake on a positive American diplomacy. The United States must act not only as an equal, but as the first among equals, if we are going to have any American statesmanship; and that means there must be no hesitation in the exercise of leadership or even of solitary—though not secret—action when it offers the chance of results.

Certainly direct action by America entails a risk of misunderstanding by the Allies, but it is a lesser risk in terms of the stakes involved than strict conformity to a pattern of joint action. American policy is now clear enough, surely, to be an assurance to the free world of American intentions. No country that wants to stay out of war can wish to see American diplomacy lacking in initiative, but must hope that, with the advantage of consultation with all interested parties, it will always be on the alert to seize the right moment and the right opportunity to deal with the Kremlin.

Garbage Man

That aroma of garbage which Andrei Vishinsky detected in the councils of the United Nations Assembly came from closer to home than the Balkans. If Mr. Vishinsky were a little more adept in his sniffing, he would know that the odor more precisely resembles that of a glue factory, and that it arises from the concoction with which the Soviet Union is trying to stick the United Nations in the case of the Greek civil war.

What Mr. Vishinsky describes as a "pile of garbage" is the report of the United Nations Balkan Commission condemning Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria for aiding the Greek guerillas. The best answer is in the record. The charges were made only after a painstaking on-the-spot investigation. Russia was offered representation on the investigating commission, but refused to participate. Each of the three countries named in the indictment refused to admit the commission within its borders, a defiance of the international organization which in itself made them suspect. Mr. Vishinsky is kidding no one as he demands abolition of the Balkans Commission after the four remaining members of the Big Five have requested its continuance. The existence of the commission undoubtedly has had a salutary effect in forestalling all-out intervention in Greece by Russia's Communist satellites.

But, irrespective of Mr. Vishinsky's inability to detect the source of the odor, there is nothing in Greece to be complacent about, especially now that a government crisis has been forced by the threat of Premier Sophoulis to resign. Recent reports place the number of guerillas today at more than when the civil war began. Several thousand insurgents have escaped behind the lines. With nearly 750,000 Greeks living as refugees from battle zones, conditions for the ordinary citizen are becoming, as the Times of London observes, "scarcely tolerable." This in the face of a year and a half of extensive American aid.

About the best that can be said of the Sophoulis government is that it appeared to be trying hard. There are still plenty of examples of sybaritic luxury, but the government has made increasing efforts to collect taxes from persons who heretofore have escaped them. The army is fighting well enough, when it fights. But the overwhelming difficulty seems to be lack of spirit, lack of conviction to rally the people. Political jockeying continues, and some Americans report a feeling on the part of the Greeks that they can hijack this country for anything they wish. The treadmill that has developed raises a question of whether military aid without political pressure is either practicable or wise; but, beyond this, it indicates a failure to demonstrate to the Greeks that their own unity is the only real answer to the external threat. As long as the Greek peasant can be lured into believing that the Communist promises offer him more hope than can the legitimate government, the guerilla problem will remain insoluble.

Mr. Lewis' Brainstorm

It is not easy to surmise the motives that led to Mr. John L. Lewis' demand that the Administration intervene on the side of the French coal miners in their present conflict with the government of the Fourth Republic. Even more difficult to understand was the original statement by President Green of the American Federation of Labor that he was "rather sympathetic" to Mr. Lewis' view of the matter. Mr. Lewis had proposed to Mr. Green that he urge President Truman to use the power given him through his control of the Marshall Plan funds to oblige the French government to cease its efforts to break the strike "with American guns and American bullets." Mr. Green's response was all the more astonishing since he has his own able observer in Europe, Mr. Irving Brown, to keep him well-informed about what is happening in French labor. Doubtless it was after consultation with Mr. Brown that Mr. Green changed his mind about Mr. Lewis' proposal, and announced that he could not support the French coal-miners because the orders for the strike had originated in Moscow.

Mr. Lewis, of course, was very well aware of that fact. He knew that those miners' unions which are not under Communist control are remaining aloof from the strike. He knew that the real purpose of the strike is to produce a condition of industrial anarchy leading to the defeat of the Marshall Plan and to the downfall of the government. Or if he did not know these things when he issued his demand, he was promptly instructed in them by M. Leon Blum, the Socialist leader. However, it still served Mr. Lewis' purpose to pretend that if the starving miners were given a pay increase that would enable them to "put food into their shrunken stomachs," they would promptly expel their Communist leaders. It seems hardly reasonable to suppose that Mr. Lewis, after his own experiences with Communists, could be so naively unaware of the methods whereby their control of trade unions is consolidated and maintained.

Probably Mr. Lewis even understood that whatever relief from their present miseries the French coal miners might obtain from another wage increase would be at best temporary and brief. That the miners, and the French working classes generally, are suffering acute hardships, there is no doubt; but the immediate cause of their sufferings is the headlong inflation which another wage increase at this time would only aggravate. Inflation means an excess of currency over the volume of purchasable goods, and without a resumption of production the government is powerless to control it. Under the terms of the Marshall Plan, American aid is conditional upon a regeneration of the French economy; but the Communists by paralyzing the industry upon which all others are dependent hope to make the regeneration impossible, thereby reducing the workers to a state of complete desperation.

All this being so, we may conclude Mr. Lewis' recent outburst was less out of solicitude for the French miners than for purposes of domestic politics. Its effect, however, seems to have been to strengthen the power and prestige of the French Communists at a moment when they were flagging badly, and thus to prolong the disastrous strike which, before Mr. Lewis spoke out, showed signs of collapsing.

WHEN A TALL DREAM FALLS

Who would think a dream could die
So quietly as this;
A dream so tall it nudged the sky,
A dream so bright it smote the eye?
Who would think a tower of bliss
Could reel against a frown,
And silently come tumbling down?

Who would think it? Yet now I know
That nobody hears a dream.
Nobody hears it break and go;
Nobody hears it crash below.
Nobody sees a gleam.
In a roomful of people, nobody calls:
Nobody warns when a tall dream falls.

"Academic Illiteracy"

Your October 25 editorial on academic writing was timely and well put.

The deplorable state of our educational writing may be traced back to the failure of our educational system to maintain the standards that were prevalent a generation or so ago.

This has had its impact in a wide area. High school teachers complain that most of their pupils can't read, spell or write. College teachers lament that their English students are unable to write a grammatical sentence or string together coherent ideas, let alone spell common polysyllabic words. Graduate schools admit persons who, a generation ago, would not have obtained a high school diploma because of their sheer failure to write decent English prose. The result is that we have bred a host of learned persons who do not measure up to the standards of literacy.

All editors of book companies have become familiar with a prevalent type—the learned illiterate, the man who has a mastery of a field of knowledge but cannot expound his ideas in a coherent, and sometimes not even in a grammatical, fashion. The result has been a great proliferation of ghost writing. Many nonfiction books—and magazine articles, too—are not written by the people who sign them. An army of ghost writers is abroad in the land—nameless and unsung—who correct the miserable prose of others, who patch up defective ideas and make silk purses, literally speaking, of sow's ears.

It is encouraging to find Dr. Dixon Wecter exhorting publishers not to spare the blue pencil on the "turgid" prose of college professors. Following is an example of the "obscurity and pretentiousness" which readers are forced to suffer when editors are tender:

"The talisman of 'planning' which the economic shocks and innovations of the thirties invested with new magic, might cast its spell over the breadth of a region or else contract to the microcosm of a family, foreseeing the future of child and oldster."

It is from The Age of the Great Depression, author, Professor Wecter. Publisher, Macmillan. It can be matched by dozens more from the same volume. Fie, Macmillan!

Montgomery Charter

The proposal to adopt a charter for Montgomery County presents a simple question. The existing form of government in the county was set up when the county was first established and was made up of large plantations without a single village or town within its boundaries. It was designed to fit a rural community. The population, which was then small in numbers, has now grown to an estimated 140,000 and the county is now faced with a multitude of problems unknown to former generations.

The proposed charter will give a form of government to meet the changed condition. The form is one that is based on recommendations of the Brookings Institution, a nonpolitical body of trained experts on governmental questions. This body spent $30,000 in making a careful study of the county government and made its recommendations to the County Commissioners in response to their request.

The form of government offered is one that has been developed over a period of years and is now in effect in more than 800 cities and counties within the United States. The results have been increasingly satisfactory, from the standpoint of efficiency and economy, to the communities where it has been put into effect. Unquestionably, Montgomery County is entitled to a form of government which will take care of changed conditions.

It has been suggested that the charter proposal comes from newcomers to the county. I presume I am one of them for I have lived in the county only 20 years. There are something like 100,000 of us and we believe we are entitled to express our views. We want a government which will meet present-day conditions, and we shall get it under the proposed charter, and therefore, we are voting "yes."

"Fighting Irish"

In looking over the line-up of Notre Dame, the "Fighting Irish," I find a series of Hibernian surnames of ancient repute. From Connaught stock came Cipelli, Oracko and Zanijewski; from the Hills of Wicklow were descendants of the highland stock of Budynki, Lesko, Sitko and Zaleski. Ancient Kerry folks were represented by the names of Coutre, Grothaus, Saggau, Panelli and Wallner, and the neighborhood of Ballybunion showed Swistowicz, Espanan and Tripucki.

It has been my experience in sport and war that Irish are real fighters as Irish, and it is my opinion that the sports writers can do better than continuing a label, which while true and descriptive in past seasons, is now the subject of derision among those interested in football.

Voting Interest

It is bad enough to be disfranchised as a resident of the District of Columbia; it is bad enough for a citizen to pay a poll tax to exercise his inalienable right; but it is a downright shame when we, as free citizens of this great country do not exercise that privilege heartily.

We take a great deal of pride in our democracy. Fundamentally, what does it mean? The word democracy is a derivation of two Greek words—demos, "people," and krateo, "rule"—or "rule of the people." We cannot have a rule of or by the people when we do not exercise the privilege of free voting. It is the inherent right of every American citizen to exercise that right. Have we fully exercised that inherent right in the past? Let statistics speak:

Election Year	Per Cent of Eligible Voters Who Voted
1928	52.1
1932	52.7
1936	57.1

The periods between the four presidential elections of 1932 through 1944 are considered by social scientists as the crucial years in our history; yet, on the average, nearly 45 per cent of our eligible citizens failed to vote. Why? Simply because we have failed to arouse public interest and to capture their imagination.

The fault partially lies with our educational institutions, with our various information dispensing agencies, with our political parties, with the candidates, who, in most cases, deal in trivialities instead of important public issues, and lastly, with the large percentage of the indifferent citizens who deceive themselves that an efficient government can be had without their performance of their duties as free citizens.

During this coming important election it is imperative that we exercise our inalienable right carefully and select the candidates wisely and judiciously. These candidates must meet the test of coming important internal and world events. In this free country, our representatives are the servants of the people, and we, their masters. On election day, we are the kings. Let each be a king on that important day.

Calories Are Not Enough

Dr. Norman Wright, of Britain's Ministry of Food, is reported (in your issue of October 28) as saying: "The people of Britain . . . are still maintaining health and vigor on a ration of about 2850 calories apiece."

This is doubtless accurate in the light of the ministry's academic theories, but the theories themselves are not in accord with the facts of life in Britain. Such statements, therefore, are unfortunate and unfair to the British because they tend to conceal one of the central problems and grim realities of Britain's struggle for recovery: most of the people of Britain are not getting enough food of the right kind for full mental and physical vigor.

About a year ago, a leading British authority, Dr. Nevil Leyton, published a survey of Britain't nutrition (which has not noticeably improved since) and stated:

"Let us explode once and for all the myth of mathematics which tries to prove us the best-fed country in Europe. Personal experience makes me certain that, from a practical point of view, we are one of the worst . . . To increase production we must add a good deal to the protein and fats in the diet of the worker. They should be more than doubled."

This, of course, is in accordance with the views of American dietetic experts who maintain that calories are not enough and that the nature of a diet, such as its protein and fat content, is important for maximum energy. It tallies, too, with the practical experience of many of the British, especially of those who have noted a marked lift in energy after a short exposure to American diet.

By glossing over this serious problem, the Ministry of Food makes no contribution to its solution, however admirable its intentions. Few in Britain, however, have confidence in the ministry's theories, and derisive laughter greets such statements as the following, which appeared in a ministry advertisement:

"Did you know this? Whether you buy beefsteak from the butcher or cod-steak from the fishmonger, you get the same quantity as well as the same first-class quality body-building food. Weight for weight, fish is the equal of meat as a body-builder and all fish are alike in this." (My italics.)

If this statement is correct, some American authorities must be crazy!

The Fallacy Of Reason

WHAT IS MAN? by C.-F. Ramuz; translation by Gouverneur Paulding; introduction by Albert Beguin. (Pantheon Books, $2.75.)

Some years before his death, Charles-Ferdinand Ramuz, a Swiss novelist writing in French, had, after a long period of neglect and obscurity, become recognized as one of the most vigorous and original talents of his generation. The distinguishing marks of his work are a simplicity of style, a beauty of form, and a depth and nobility of emotion. American readers were given some taste of these qualities when a translation of his story, Derborence, was distributed last year by one of the great book clubs. The present work, however, is not a novel, but a compilation from his published reflections on the social and political crisis that in the latter years of his life was engulfing the whole western world. His attitude to the great problems of our age was that of the artist rather than the intellectual; that is to say he wished to deal with them in terms of direct experience rather than of abstract reason.

Ramuz, indeed, appears to have considered that rationalism, or trust in the efficacy of ideas, is at the root of the whole modern sickness. It merely confuses the distinction between thought and being; for what a man thinks, or thinks that he thinks, has no necessary relation to what he is. "Ideas," said Ramuz, "do not express man; if they did, you would recognize the atheist in the street, and also the man with a faith . . . Ideas are a ready made suit which a man puts on to cover his nakedness, a suit which he does not buy, but which he simply rents. You see him dressed by turns in red, in khaki, in brown. Man, nowadays, is nothing but a shirt." We acquire ideas, it seems, not by the painful processes of thought, that is by matching them against our vital experiences, but by picking them up uncritically from our families, from acquaintances, and from books and newspapers, accepting or rejecting them according to our current necessities and changing them as rapidly as our needs and interests require. But the great evil of bourgeois rationalism, according to Ramuz, is its rupture of the personality. It has separated the individual from the human being. Individuality is what makes a man distinct from all other men; humanity is what he shares with all other men. What all men share, over and above their physical needs and their mortality, is the knowledge that they suffer, and the desire that, since suffer they must, it shall be to some purpose. Each is hungry for assurance that his sufferings are somehow important to the universal scheme; each, in short, requires a sense of greatness to make his suffering tolerable.

Now the crime of rationalism, or the quantitative view of the universe, Ramuz tells us, is that it destroys this sense of greatness in man. Taught to believe only in what is tangible and measurable, and to be distrustful of his inward experience, the modern man becomes more and more cruelly aware of his own insignificance in relation to the universe. Hence the antithesis of art and science. Man is aware of two orders of greatness or beauty, one that exalts him by an appeal to his faith and emotion, and one that crushes him by an appeal to his calculation. In the world of purely quantitative realities we find ourselves cast into the terrifying abyss, where numbers progress in both directions toward that total absence of finality which we call the infinite and in relation to which the greatest as well as smallest numbers lose all significance." The man who has learned to apply quantitative values to the universe, presently applies them also to himself. He perceives "that he is hungry while others eat their fill; that he has no room to himself while others live in palaces; that his clothes are old and shabby, while others wear new clothes." By the same process of measurement he discovers that those who like himself have nothing are more numerous, and therefore more deserving, than those who have much. Thus communism is the legitimate child of bourgeois rationalism, since it was the capitalists who in their glorification of material possessions first applied the quantitative measure to the purposes of human life.

Communism, then, has its appeal to those who have been humiliated by the values and conditions of a quantative society, who have been deprived, as it were, of their humanity by the bourgeois ideal of mankind, which may be realized only in circumstances of wealth and leisure. For this ideal the Communists substitute another abstraction of man, which is to be realized only under circumstances of absolute uniformity. The communist universe, says Ramuz, is a vast sum of quantities, in which each man is only a unit like every other and is valued or disparaged to the degree that he approaches or deviates from the standard type. In this, as in all matters, communism is inspired by a hatred of nature which delights in variety. Objective nature becomes an enemy to be conquered and enslaved. The intimacy and collaboration with nature, characteristic of all peasant societies, is proscribed; the machine is substituted for the tool and production for creation. Thus the worker is deprived of direct contact with his materials and of opportunity to infuse them with his own imagination and emotion.

But because communism is its enemy, nature, which includes human nature, will in the long run rebel against it because of the intolerable tensions engendered by a purely mechanistic concept of life. This concept, moreover, is dependent upon the notion of an inert matter, which itself is already out of date, and so those who live by quantities may perish by quantities.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Pressure On Dewey

DURING the past week Mr. Dewey has been under pressure from Paris. The Associated Press reports that "high authorities" in the American delegation say that Mr. Dulles is "noncommittal", and are urging Mr. Dewey, if he becomes President-elect, "to announce quickly his stand on the policies" of the delegation, and "to put down in black and white just where he stands."

LIPPMANN

Failing that, they feel that the Assembly "might just as well adjourn until the United Nations can find out which way the United States is going."

THIS IS NOT, as we all know, an easy problem to deal with under the American system of government. But some things at least are plain at this time. There is no issue before the Assembly which is so critically urgent that Governor Dewey must announce his position in detail immediately—before he has had time to recover from the fatigue of the campaign and to weigh his decisions carefully on the basis of much fuller knowledge than he can possibly have now. Berlin, Palestine, the Italian colonies, Korea, Greece, atomic energy have been with us for a long time, and there is no reason to think that another hasty and unconsidered announcement about any of these issues would do any good.

There have been more than enough announcements, and declarations, and black-and-white statements on all these issues. The world might well be better off if many of them had never been made, and one of the great advantages of a change of Administration at this time is that the new President and the new Cabinet do not have to regard all the words uttered by their predecessors as sacrosanct. They will be a new Administration, and they will be able to take a fresh look at a great many things.

THE POSITION, after Mr. Dewey's election, will be something like that of a great estate involved in all sorts of complicated law suits, when the owners decide to appoint new managers and new lawyers. Between the outgoing and the incoming men there is no disagreement that the interests of the estate are to be preserved, defended, and promoted. But that does not mean the new management will be identical with the old, or that the new lawyers will take over all the old briefs, and be unable to write their own.

THE BIPARTISAN foreign policy covers those policies and programs in which the two parties have in fact collaborated, which a bipartisan majority of Congress has approved after public debate. Participation in the U. N., the Marshall Plan, rearmament, and the Vandenberg resolution are indisputably in the bipartisan foreign policy. The North Atlantic Pact, with its corollary military lend lease, will be developed within the bipartisan understanding.

But no bipartisan understanding can do away with the fact that a large part of the conduct of foreign relations is inevitably and of necessity the responsibility of the President and of his Administration. That responsibility cannot be shared equally by the two parties.

FOR NO matter how sincere and earnest the consultation, those who are not on the inside can do little more than approve or disapprove proposals which they do not initiate and are not administering. Thus Mr. Dewey and Mr. Vandenberg and Mr. Dulles have not had, and could not have had, equal responsibility for the formation and management of policy in Berlin, or in Germany, or in Japan, Korea, or Palestine, or in Greece, the Mediterranean, or in respect to the Italian colonies.

They should not be asked to assume responsibility greater than the power they have in fact exercised. Insofar as it is possible to avoid it, they should not be expected to take responsibility until they can exercise power. Mr. Dewey should not be pressed to throw away, on the pretext that there is a crisis in the Assembly, the most precious of all things which he has won—power to bring into the old quarrels a certain freedom of choice.

IT IS, of course, true that the course of events cannot be halted for three months until Mr. Dewey has been inaugurated. There will be need for common sense, good will, cooperation. There will be need for that unity which Mr. Truman as a candidate has found so objectionable. For once he is President again he will find it indispensable during the remainder of his term.

In smoothing out the difficulties of the interval between the two Administrations, Mr. Truman, Mr. Marshall, and also our partners abroad, have at least as much to contribute as Mr. Dewey. They should avoid even the appearance of trying to stampede the President-elect into premature decisions and commitments. It is by no means evident that a postponement of some of the issues before the U. N., that a policy of temporizing with others, that even an adjournment, would not be better than anything now in prospect by forcing issues hurriedly to a showdown.

JUDGING by the tornado of speeches, interviews and what not that have been blowing from all quarters—from the Kremlin, the House of Commons, the railroad trains, the Palais du Chaillot and the Paris hotels, a cooling off period for the statesmen, their advisers, their spokesmen, and their people would seem to be just what the doctor ordered.

Now that Mr. Truman has compared Mr. Dewey with Hitler, now that Mr. Wallace has compared Mr. Truman with Lady Macbeth, now that nearly everyone has called someone else a liar and a warmonger, a little short silence would be very eloquent. Even a brief interlude, in which at least one responsible man was thinking and not talking, would be an act of mercy to the weary and harassed people of the world.

Secret Houdini Code Word Is Heard After 22-Year Wait

New York, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—For the first time in 22 years of patient waiting, a committee for psychic research last night heard one word of a secret code message prepared by the late Magician Harry Houdini before he died, Committee Chairman Joseph Dunninger announced.

But Dunninger, well-known mind reader, magician, and head of the Universal Council for Psychic Research, said he was certain the word was not transmitted by any supernatural means, and was not pronounced by Houdini.

Seven members of a committee met last night, as they have met each year on Halloween since Houdini died in 1926, to await direct word by spiritual means from him. Houdini had promised to try to "get through" if he could.

While they waited at a secret meeting place, the telephone rang, Dunninger said, and when he answered a mysterious voice said, "This is Houdini."

The voice then said a four-syllable word that is part of the 10-word message prepared by Houdini, Dunninger reported.

Asked for the complete message, the voice said, "As soon as I'm strong enough you'll get the rest of it," Dunninger said.

Admitting he was "greatly mystified," Dunninger, who was a close personal friend of Houdini, said the voice was not that of Houdini. It seemed to be the same voice that telephoned while the committee was meeting last year, he said.

Dunninger said he did not see how anyone outside the researchers who have been guarding the secret message could have learned even part of its contents.

The voice made no effort to claim the long-standing $10,000 reward offered to any spiritualist or medium who could transmit Houdini's secret words, Dunninger said.

Charter Foes Fight to Last

An intensive last-minute campaign against the proposed Montgomery County Charter was voted last night by a group of 50 Republican and Democratic precinct workers.

The group met in the office of Samuel E. Bogley, 7004 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, who was named spokesman and treasurer for the campaign.

The opponents of charter will go on the air today and will stage a half-hour television broadcast at 6:30 p. m. over station WTTG, Bogley announced. Approximately 35,000 sample ballots showing voters how to vote against charter have been printed and will be distributed by the workers of both parties who attended.

Brooke Johns, president of the Board of Montgomery County Commissioners, was one of those present and announced his opposition to the charter.

"We are proud of the record of the present Board of Commissioners," declared Johns, "and we can see no reason for trying out an entirely new form of government here."

Wesley I. Sauter, county commissioner from Bethesda, urged the precinct workers to "explain the fallacies of the charter claims to the voters."

Bogley declared that once "the charter is fastened upon the county there is no way of removing it, even though the proposed charter has a clause for repeal.

The group formed a "Coalition of Republicans and Democrats to Defeat Charter."

Besides Johns, Sauter and Bogley, others selected to handle the group's campaign were: James C. Christopher, Francis O. Day, Thomas E. Hampton, Roger J. Whiteford, William H. Prescott, all former Democratic officials, and John R. Reeves, Republican member of the House of Delegates.

Eleven Romanians Plead Guilty to Plotting With West

Bucharest, Romania, Oct. 31 (AP).—Eleven Romanians pleaded guilty today to charges of plotting with American and British representatives to overthrow the government. A verdict will be handed down on Tuesday.

A twelfth defendant, Max Ausnit, a Romanian industrialist now reported to be in New York, is being tried in absentia.

The 11 defendants threw themselves on the mercy of the court which is hearing high treason charges against them. Conviction carries an automatic penalty of life imprisonment at hard labor.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Why Has It Been So Dull?

EVERYONE IS GLAD that the campaign is about over, mainly because the campaign has been a bore. It is strange that it should have been a bore—this contest in a time of crisis for the most powerful office in the world. Yet it has been a bore. It is important to try to understand why.

One reason is that the front runner, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, has waged a notably unexciting campaign. In part this has been by design. But in part it has resulted from the quality of the man himself.

A speech by Dewey is a curious experience to the listener. His speeches have been, on the whole, fine speeches, admirably written. Moreover, Dewey's timing, the rise and fall of his voice, his gestures, are almost perfect. To hear such a man in such times as these should be a moving experience. Yet it is not. There is something oddly disappointing about the experience, something mechanical, over-rehearsed, a trifle chilling.

THIS SUGGESTS Dewey's gravest weakness, a weakness which is also a fact of very great political importance. For all that Dewey is the odds-on favorite for the Presidency, he still lacks the quality (which such men as Franklin Roosevelt, Wendell Willkie and Al Smith so notably had) which fires the imagination and captures the personal loyalty of masses of the voters. A very high proportion of Dewey votes will really be anti-Truman votes.

If Dewey is to become the kind of President he clearly wants and intends to be, this must be changed. In the troubled years which lie ahead, the job of the Presidency will not be confined to oiling the creaking wheels of Government, important as this task may be. The next President will have to make decisions—such as the rearmament of western Europe—which will be immensely unpopular with a great many immensely important people, including a large proportion of the Republican leadership. And he will have to make these decisions stick, in the face of bitter opposition in Congress and out.

To do this more will be needed than competence, more than the genius for political organization which Dewey and his staff have consistently displayed. It will require first that the vaguely progressive words which Dewey has been speaking in this campaign be transformed into concrete progressive actions, over the strident opposition of a considerable proportion of Dewey's party. And this in turn will require a loyal mass following of voters convinced not only that Dewey has their interests at heart, but also that he has a heart.

It will, in a word, be essential that Dewey achieve some human and intangible quality which, despite his manifest virtues, he still lacks. Yet one thing is true. Dewey has grown in personal stature in recent years as much as any man in public life. And the Presidency forces growth on a man, as surely as growth is forced on plants in a hothouse.

THE TRAGEDY of Truman is simply that, despite the best of intentions, his capacity for growth is sharply limited, and the voters have sensed as much. This, too, has contributed to the tedium of this dull campaign, for it has all but completely robbed Truman of a chance of reelection, and has thus destroyed the suspense of the contest.

Yet in another way, the fashion in which Truman has made his fight is both interesting and politically significant. He has tried desperately to appeal, as his predecessor knew so well how to do, to the emotions of the voters. And what is meaningful is the obvious fact that in this attempt he has been moving consistently further and further to the left. In his public statements he has now taken a stand well to the left of Franklin Roosevelt, and very far, one suspects, to the left of himself.

The attempt has largely failed. Nobody has really believed the dire presidential warnings about the wicked plots of the "gluttons of privilege," largely because the voters have suspected that Truman has not really believed himself, or indeed, entirely, understood what he has been saying.

Yet the sharp left turn which has been forced on Truman in his desperate search for votes has a perfectly obvious meaning. Despite the Republican upsurge, the country is still far from deeply conservative. This meaning is confirmed by the Senate races, where extreme reactionaries are everywhere in trouble, and it is something which the Republicans will disregard at their peril. And the Truman campaign means further that the Democratic Party, to survive, has already inescapably become, and must continue to be, the party of the left.

Yet though the division between right and left is more clearly marked than ever before, there is still no issue which deeply divides the American people. There is almost total agreement on foreign policy, as the Wallace fiasco demonstrates. And at home, in these booming times, there is no real bitterness, Taft-Hartley or no Taft-Hartley. Perhaps that, more than anything else, accounts for the dullness of the campaign. And it is something for which the price of a little boredom may thankfully be paid.

Cinderella Tops Cocker Club Show

Cinderella Star Design, a dignified 2-year-old black cocker spaniel, was awarded best-of-show honors yesterday in the Capital City Cocker Club's quarterly match show at the Alexandria Armory.

Cinderella, owned by Mrs. Dorothy Jones of Cabin John Park, Md., was singled out for the show's top award after being selected as one of three winners in best-of-variety classes for black, ascob and parti-colored dogs and bitches.

Other best-of-variety winners were Kincaine's Sweet Sue, owned by J. V. McWilliams of Baltimore, in the ascob class, and Westwood's Boy Berry, owned by Miss Dorothy Blackburn of Fairlington. Kincaine's Sweet Sue also was selected as the show's best dog of opposite sex to the best-of-show winner.

Cinderella Star Design's victories in the best-of-show and best-of-variety classes gave the Capital City club a big boost toward the team championship of the match show. The District fanciers compiled 85 points to 48 for the Maryland Cocker Club; 32 for the Chesapeake Cocker Club and 5 for the Virginia Cocker Club.

Points toward the team totals were awarded on the basis of first, second, third and fourth places in all breed events.

In a special dog handling class for children, which did not count toward the team standings, top honors were taken by a brother and sister team from Falls Church. Jim Greiner, 15, was chosen as the best boy handler under 16 years of age, while his 11-year-old sister, Mary Anne, won the same honor for girls.

Couple Wed For 50 Years Repeats Vows

In a mock wedding ceremony similar to the real thing just 50 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Silvers of 1053 N. Nelson st., Arlington, repledged their love at a wedding anniversary party yesterday at the Jewish Community Center, 16th and Q sts. nw.

With all but one son, now stationed with the Army in Korea, the seven children and 13 grandchildren were on hand with friends and relatives to observe the occasion.

The secret of wedded bliss, according to the Silvers, is a large, closely knitted family and a thorough understanding of one another. They were married in Philadelphia but came to Washington nearly 40 years ago to raise and educate their children.

Mr. Silvers, who has operated his own scrap iron business in southeast Washington for 37 years, is still its active manager. They moved to Arlington two years ago.

Cafritz to Build Theater on 14th St.

By Richard L. Coe

MORRIS CAFRITZ, the housing Hercules, is about to be issued a permit to build a theater on 14th st. just above K . . . Hold your horses, folks, it's a movie theater . . . Wouldn't it be swell if this active leader of Washington community and social life could have his plans redrawn to include a stage with sufficient paraphernalia to give the living theater back to the city? . . . Those plans aren't public yet; perhaps the architect will release them this week . . . But since they've not been revealed in print, it's a pleasant Blue Monday day dream to thing what might be done . . . Changing plans and building a legitimate theater would cost more money, but it would certainly solve the snag . . . Mr. Cafritz would have no trouble in leasing such a theater, even if the size of the lot limits its seating capaciy . . . Only last week two New Yorkers were down here looking for a 600-seat house where an acting company could be joined by top stars on a two-week run scheme . . . If the size could approximate the National's, touring shows could again come here . . . If the venture didn't pay, the conversion to movies wouldn't be so difficult as the National's, where, believe it or not, some people still seem to expect to find plays . . . And if the National's Marcus Heiman, in his other role, as head of the United Booking Office, refused to book plays into the Cafritz house, several good lawyers have told me there's a pretty good case for an antitrust suit . . . All this day-dreaming, of course, depends on Mr. Cafritz, but as a man whose vision has done so much for the National Capital, maybe he'll consent to dream about the idea for a while, too . . . I wish you would, Mr. Cafritz, and so do a lot of us.

A TIGER, as a review in these crowded columns would have told you last week, is the soul and body of the Metropolitan's "Man Eater of Kumaon." . . . Though Sabu, Morris Carnovsky, Wendell Corey and a pretty lass named Joanne Page are in it, it's the tiger of the title that makes this one . . . The story is hardly inspired: a sasiety doctor goes to the jungle to nurse his mind; somehow he shoots a claw off a tiger and there's your story . . . The setting is the Himalayan foothills, some trick photography which doesn't hold a candle to the Himalayan magnificence of "Black Narcissus." . . . But the tiger's real enough.

A RABBIT has a birthday today . . . It's "Harvey's" fourth and tonight it will play its 1688th consecutive performance in New York's 48th Street Theater, though you can officially add four special benefits. . . . This makes Brock Pemberton's hit the fifth in the American theater's long-run race; "Life With Father," "Tobacco Road, "Abies Irish Rose and Oklahoma' are up in front. . . . Though there have been seven Elwood P. Dowds (Frank Fay, Bert Wheeler, James Stewart, Jack Buchanan, James Dunn, Joe E. Brown and Producer Pemberton), there has been only one Mrs. Chauvenet in 48th Street Frederica Going hasn't missed a performance. . . . Genial Pemberton has been ailing lately, but he's getting his strength back for a trip to London to supervise a West End cast headed by Sid Field, the stage and music hall fellow who first dreamed of doing the part several years ago. . . . Birthday cheers, then, to "Harvey" and to its warm-hearted producer for a bon voyage.

A BULLFIGHTER comes to town today for a visit, Ron Randell, of the Warner's "The Loves of Carmen." . . . Strictly speaking, Randell's a picador in the Rita Hayworth picture, playing Lucas, with whom she dallies at the bull ring to Glenn Ford's murderous disgust. . . . In the Bizet opera the Merimee character had his name changed to Escamillo, the fellow of that toreador song.

"MAN-EATER OF KUMAON," a Universal-International picture produced by Monty Shaf and Frank P. Rosenberg, directed by Byron Haskin, screenplay by Jeanne Bartlett and Lewis Meltzer, adaptation by Richard G. Hubler and Alden Nasy from the book by Jim Corbett. At the Metropolitan.

Sanitarium Fund Drive Is Headed By Connaughton

The general chairmanship of the $200,000 fund-raising campaign of the Washington Sanitarium Mission Hospital, 6th and N sts. sw., was accepted yesterday by John H. Connaughton, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The campaign, opening November 22, aims to complete the new hospital and clinic at Nichols ave. and Forrester st. sw., now more than half finished. Connaughton joins Dr. Henry G. Hadley, medical director; Dr. Clarence L. Purdy, Dr. H. A. Wood and Clifford H. Newell in drawing up plans for the drive. E. C. Giddings, Capital Transit Co. vice president, will advise on publicity and public relations.

The new three-story building will embody the latest design and equipment in major and minor operating rooms, radiographic and fluoroscopic examination rooms, laboratory, delivery room, eye, ear, nose and throat rooms, deep therapy and hydrotherapy rooms and other features. With 60 beds, the hospital aims at keeping costs for hospital and medical service at less than half the usual charge but with highest standards of performance, Dr. Hadley declared.

JUST THE FLIGHT TOGS!—This is Mrs. America—Maria Strohmeir, of Philadelphia—who'll be here today for a few brief hours at the behest of Joan Fontaine to tell the world about Joan's latest film, "You Gotta Stay Happy," costarring Jimmy Stewart. the early bird who caught the worm!

It takes a great showman to come the long way you've traveled from breakfast with the big white bear to buying your cigarettes by the carton.

Washingtonians are going to miss your Virginia ham humor that always managed to leave a good taste and brought home the bacon...your "Too Fat Polka"-faced kidding, and others on your list of egg-timing, coffee-making, front-door-slamming, bus-catching, platter-chatter...now that you have given up your local early A.M. Shows in favor of network opportunities.

I might comment more seriously about your big heart and the way you took over for any needy cause, but By Godfrey, how high can you heap praise on the fellow who so successfully ribbed the advertisers instead of the public?

So...as one who's been sharing the early A.M. listeners with you these many years but is still in the Casbah of the Capital (plug - every morning 6 - 9:00 on WOL-Mutual) I wish you a network Hooper that rises daily with the sun, - and happy landings.

From the bottom of my heart,

Art Brown

Baugh Hurls 4 Touchdowns; Skins Frolic, 59-21

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

GRIFFITH STADIUM, Oct. 31.—The Boston Yankees, owned by Ted Collins of radio fame, take the field against the Redskins, owned by George Marshall of inter-com fame. The Redskins are in second place in the Eastern division, but are leading the league in head sets.

POVICH

It's a perfect day for football, but the Redskins' football is something less than perfect in the opening minutes. They're leading the Yankees in fumbles, 2-0, and the Yanks are acting eager with the ball on the Redskins' 27-yard line.

7-0, Yankees, and the only break the Redskins are getting at this point is that their embarrassment is being watched by the smallest crowd of a half-dozen years. From the 17-yard line, Bill Paschal took the ball and two Redskins into the end zone on his fourth try.

7-7. The Redskins get even on a 78-yard pass play from Sammy Baugh to Dick Todd, who caught the ball at midfield and got away from two Yankees and one field judge. His speed got Todd away from the Yankees but he had to fake the official out of position.

14-7, Redskins. They score on a 35-yard pass play from Roy Zimmerman of the Yankees to Dan Sandifer of the Redskins. On the 15-yard line Sandifer makes a U-turn to elude Zimmerman, and at the 5 he does a hit-and-run job against Muehlheuser of the Yankees.

14-14. Zimmerman takes the Yanks to a touchdown on three passes from his own 45-yard line. The final pitch is a 22-yard toss to Paschal in the end zone over the head of Howie Livingston, who was bought from the Giants for his pass defense talents that are now somewhat suspect.

Sammy Baugh gets off a pass for the Redskins and immediately he wishes he had it back. Crisler fumbles the throw and Tyree races with it to the Redskins' 10, where Baugh presents him with the latest thing in neck-pieces and saves a touchdown.

Touchback, Eagles. Zimmerman completes another pass to Sandifer in the end zone; it can be truthfully said they're playing on different teams together.

21-14, REDSKINS. Air Force Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, who is among those present, just saw the latest thing in airlifts. Baugh gassed up and sailed one to Joe Tereshinski who went 76 yards down the corridor.

Make it 28-14, Redskins. Baugh pitches another one from the Yankees' 49, and Hal Crisler's deceit pays off. He neatly fakes Nelson away from the ball and snatches it for himself with the goal line only 15 yards away.

35-14, Redskins. Baugh, who hadn't completed a touchdown pass for more than five minutes, lets one fly and Dick Todd scrambles 38 yards with it. Hot Toddy!

35-21. Zimmerman, who was throwing punts earlier in the game, reverts to short passes and takes the Eagles 46 yards with six completions in nine throws. The last is a 13-yarder to Golding who is in the end zone with nothing to do but catch the ball.

THE YANKEES DRIVE back to the Redskins' 15 after Batinski recovers Farmers' fumble, and at that point Zimmerman pauses for lunch. Finding no pass receivers, he is forced to eat the ball with McKee smearing him for an 18-yard loss.

38-21. The Redskins are getting chinchy, and call on Dick Poillon to kick a field goal, which he does from the 42-yard line.

45-21. Baugh, who is making more records than Decca, attempted a 2-foot touchdown pass to Turley, and when that failed he sent Poillon through tackle on a 2-foot plunge.

The Yanks are going nowhere, and Zimmerman punts on third down, a wonderful piece of strategy if you're trying to protect a 24-point deficit.

THE REDSKINS go into a six-man line after Poillon punts out of bounds on the Yanks' 1-foot line, and the inter-com is busy among the Redskin coaches. The upstairs coaching department is doubtless cautioning Turk Edwards to beware of a 99-yard quarterback sneak.

52-21, Redskins. They catch the Yankees by surprise with a running play. Rookie Howard Hartley finds a 26-yard blocked in Dick Poillon and goes 26 yards off tackle for a touchdown.

59-21, Redskins. The great passing team of Zimmerman and Sandifer clicks again, and Sandifer goes 48 yards with another pass Zimmerman wishes he'd never thrown. At this point, deep in the fourth quarter, the Redskins look like winners.

Eagles Clout Steelers as Thompson Stars, 34-7

By Duke Moran

Pittsburgh, Oct. 31 (AP).—Tommy Thompson's passes seemed radar-directed and Steven Van Buren ran like a berserk bull today as the Philadelphia Eagles rolled over the Pittsburgh Steelers, 34-7, before about 30,000 fans in the haze of Forbes Field.

Thompson completed 16 out of 22 tries. One was for a touchdown.

Bosh Pritchard completed the Steeler rout by running 55 yards with a punt for one touchdown and 18 yards with a recovered Pittsburgh fumble for another.

Fourth in Row for Eagles

It was the Eagles' fourth straight victory against a loss and a tie, and tightened their grip on first place in the Eastern division.

The Steelers figured in the contest only briefly in the second period. After a 42-yard field goal by Cliff Patton in the first period gave the Eagles a 3-0 lead, Pittsburgh put together an 81-yard scoring march. Fullback Jerry Shipkey bounced over from a half yard out and Joe Glamp kicked the extra point to give the Steelers a brief 7-3 lead.

But the Eagles wiped that out in a hurry—with two touchdowns in 4 minutes and 45 seconds of the second period.

The first came on an 80-yard drive from the kickoff. An interference ruling on a 30-yard Thompson heave to Pritchard gave the Eagles the big lift here. Then Van Buren took a lateral from Pritchard and ran 20 yards for the score.

A fumble by Ray Evans, recovered by Alex Wojciechowicz on the Steeler 37 set up the second Eagle touchdown of the second quarter. Thompson hit Pritchard for 30 yards and a first down on the Steeler 7. Then Tossin' Tommy rammed one home to End Jack Ferrante for the touchdown.

The third period was scoreless. But in the opening minute of the final frame, Pritchard set off on his touchdown gallop with a punt by Bob Cifers. Late in the period Pritchard picked up a fumble off an interception by Tony Compagno and scampered for the last Eagle touchdown.

DON'T FIGHT, BOYS—And Paul McKee, of the Redskins, and Joe Golding, right of the Boston Yanks, didn't although they wrestled each other for the football yesterday. McKee finally came up with this 25-yard Sammy Baugh thrown pass in the third quarter. Yank Joe Domnanovich (34) halted him. The Redskins socked the Yanks, 59-21, at Griffith Stadium

Smallest Home Crowd Sees Sammy Gain 446 Yards For Record

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The Boston Yankees lost a Baugh game yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

There was no stopping Slingin' Sam as the Washington Redskins rolled up a 59-21 victory to retain second place in the Eastern division, National Football League.

He threw four touchdown passes, good for 78, 76, 49 and 38 yards in that order. He completed 17 of the 24 passes he tried. And to his numerous other league records he tacked one for most yards gained by passing in a single game—446. The old mark belonged to the Bears' Sid Luckman, 433 yards amassed in 1943 against the Giants.

The Redskins' highest point total of all time, just four short of a league mark during the regular season, was a dazzling thing to watch—for everybody except the Yankees.

A crowd of 29,758 paying customers, smallest of the pro season here, saw the torrent of eight touchdowns, as many extra points, and a 43-yard field goal just for good measure.

When Baugh wasn't hurting the Yankees, rookie Dan Sandifer or somebody else was. The big former L. S. U. star was intercepting passes by Roy Zimmerman, former Redskin quarterback, all afternoon and twice he carried them for scores. His runs were for 35 and 48 yards.

Dick Todd, Baugh's sidekick from Texas, caught five of The Slinger's tosses and carried two of them for touchdowns with some of the fanciest running you ever saw. Joe Tereshinski, a defensive standout at all times, switched to offense long enough to figure in Baugh's 76-yard touchdown heave, and rookie Hal Crisler was on the receiving end of Sammy's 49-yard job.

Then there was Dick Poillon, most versatile man on the field. Among a lot of other brilliant things, he contributed all eight of Washington's conversions, its single field goal, and by way of changing the script he plowed over from the 1-foot line for a fourth period touchdown.

3 Touchdowns Called Back

Finally, to name everybody, except the hard-charging line, involved in the touchdown parade, there was Howard Hartley, a newcomer from New York who made one of his infrequent trips with the ball, a 26-yard scoring play.

Not that it mattered, but the Redskins, who were supposed to win by a mere 13½ points, had three six-pointers called back.

All cost Baugh something. His 17-yard strike to Hugh Taylor was nullified by a holding penalty, his 7-yard slant to Crisler was voided by more of the same, and lastly, his quarterback sneak for about 7¼ inches and a TD was canceled by an offside penalty.

For one half it looked like a close game. Washington even trailed, 7-0, after it fumbled and lost the ball the first two times it gained possession. Boston's scoring punch was provided by big Bill Paschal, who hit the line four times from 18 yards away and finally made it on a 2-yard power dive.

78-Yard Pass Play

But the Burgundy and Gold trailed for a mere minute, using three plays after the next kickoff to even matters. The big one was a Baugh-to-Todd creation, passed 28 yards and run 50 more. Dick was leaving Joe Domnanovich far in the rear at the end.

The suddenness of that score was overshadowed by Washington's next one. Boston was moving nicely up to its own 25 when Zimmerman, trying to find a receiver, came up with Sandifer. There were three Yanks barring Dan's 35-yard scoring trip and all were faked off their feet.

Zimmerman hit some of his own men as he paced Boston on the 80-yard trip that tied the count for the last time. At the end was a 22-yard lob that sailed over Howie Livingston's head and into the arms of Paschal in the end zone.

Another Zimmerman-to-Sandifer interception for a touchback gave Washington the ball as the second quarter started. Three plays gained 24 yards, a holding penalty cost 15,

Tied for Lead

Baltimore Loses, 35-17, To Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 31 (AP).—The Buffalo Bills elevated themselves into a tie for first place in the Eastern Division of the All-America Football Conference today by trimming the leading Baltimore Colts 35 to 17 before a crowd of 23,694 in Civic Stadium.

The two teams now have identical four-won-and-two-lost records.

Mutryn Scores Three

Chet Mutryn, the Bills' all-conference halfback, scored three touchdowns to bring his season's point aggregate to 66, and George Ratterman tossed two touchdown passes.

The Bills went 89 yards on a sustained drive to tie, Bob Steuber driving across from the 3 and converting.

Buffalo went ahead, 14-7, in the second quarter on Billy Gompers' 43-yard run, but the Colts tied it after Aubrey Fowler had intercepted a pass on the Bills' 23. Charley O'Rourke sneaked for the final foot.

Grossman kicked a 30-yard field goal, his eighth of the year, shortly after resumption of play in the second half, ending the Colts' scoring. Tittle, their freshman passing star, did not play in the last two quarters because of an injured knee.

Long passes from Ratterman to Bill O'Conner moved the ball 60 yards for Buffalo, and Mutryn

Cards Lead, 27-3, Barely Win, 27-22

Los Angeles, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—The powerful Chicago Cardinals snuffed out a desperate second-half rally by the Los Angeles Rams today to register a squeaky 27 to 22 National Football League victory before 32,149 fans at Memorial Coliseum.

The hard-earned win kept the Cardinals tied for the western division lead with the Chicago Bears.

The defending-champion Cardinals ran up a convincing 27 to 3 lead before the habitually late-starting Los Angeles team came to life.

Relying solely on passes, the Rams connected for their first touchdown in the waning minutes of the third period, added two more in the final quarter and were halted only after reaching midfield on their fourth drive with two minutes to play.

Starring for the plucky Rams were Quarterback Jim Hardy and a sure-fingered pair of ends, veteran Howard "Red" Hickey and rookie Tom Fears. Hickey scored all three Ram touchdowns.

The first was on an 11-yard pass after Kenny Washington set up the tally by chalking up 43 yards on a flank pass from Hardy.

In the final period, Hickey twice out-maneuvered the Chicago safety man and hauled in long Hardy passes for touchdowns. One was good for 43 yards and the other 69.

The Cards opened the scoring with Pat Harder's 36-yard field goal. After Los Angeles retaliated with a 35-yard field goal from the toe of Bob Waterfield, Chicago went to work.

The Cards moved 81 yards for their first touchdown; Pat Harder scoring. Elmer Angsman flashed over for the second, and Harder for the third, both following long drives. Harder booted another field goal with five seconds remaining in the first half to complete the Chicago scoring.

Minneapolis, Fort Wayne, Indianapolis and Rochester, all former members of the National Basketball League, are the new teams in the pro loop.

Baltimore, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, and Washington are in the East. The Western half will be composed of Minneapolis, Rochester, Chicago, St. Louis, Fort Wayne and Indianapolis.

Rangers Finally Win

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—The underdog New York Rangers broke into the National Hockey League victory column today by whitewashing the baffled Boston Bruins, 2-0, before 14,768 fans in Madison Square Garden.

Bears Sock Giants, 35-14; McAfee Stars

Chicago, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Chicago Bears blended a slashing ground attack, including Noah Mullins' 74-yard touchdown sprint and two payoff passes, for a 35-14 National Football League triumph over the New York Giants at Wrigley Field today.

The Bears rolled up their fifth win against one defeat before 41,608 fans.

George McAfee counted three of Chicago's five touchdowns.

The Giants were blanked until the final period, when Charley Conerly connected on two touchdown passes to Bill Swiacki.

In the entire first half the Giants pitched 12 passes without connecting once.

The Bears, besides Mullins' thrilling run, also scored overland on a 16-yard dash by McAfee and a 1-yard smash, also by McAfee, for the final Bear touchdown.

Johnny Lujack, who converted after all five Chicago scores, fired a 14-yard touchdown pass to Ken Kavanaugh to give the Bears a 7-0 lead in the first period.

The other Bear aerial score was tossed by Sid Luckman on a 25-yard shot to McAfee, which handed Chicago a 28-0 lead as the third period closed.

The Giants finally came to life in the closing period. Conerly flipped a 13-yard scoring pass to Swiacki and a few minutes later connected again on a 15-yard toss to the former Columbia star end.

Len Younce added both points and the Giants trailed 28-14 with about 10 minutes left. Chicago's 64-yard march with McAfee bowling over from the 1, however, chilled New York for keeps.

The Bears again used their three passing quarterbacks, Lujack, Luckman and Bobby Layne, who combined for 10 completions in 23 tries. Luckman connected on 7 of 14 tries.

Bisons Swamp Lions, 10 to 0

Buffalo, Oct. 31.—The Buffalo Bisons rolled up their largest total of the season as they defeated the Washington Lions, 10-0, before 7500 fans tonight at Memorial Auditorium.

Murdo McKay, fleet center, and little Connie Dion were the heroes of the decisive triumph. McKay achieved hockey's "hat trick," pumping in three goals, while Dion came through with his second shutout of the season.

After the first few minutes it was hardly any contest. The Bisons netted three goals in the first period, three more in the second, and two in the third before calling it a night.

The 10-0 victory tied the biggest shutout record in local history. The Bisons duplicated that score against Hershey in the 1942-43 playoffs.

It's Up to Navy to Decide Whether Bartos Joins 'Skins

Although Redskin Owner George P. Marshall has said that Quantico's Joe Bartos will be in his backfield next season, it seems the Navy Department has other ideas.

Bartos, Marine second lieutenant who was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1947, has submitted a letter of resignation with the understanding that it would be accepted next June.

Marshall, who said the 'Skins already have Bartos signed, expected him to join his pros at training camp and even added, "I'm willing to bet he will be a star with us."

Yesterday at Marine Corps Headquarters, it was learned that the Secretary of Navy now expects Academy men to serve at least three years of active duty. The recent change of policy ups the tour of duty by one year.

Maj. John D. Wiggins, USMC, officer-in-charge of the press section, explained that each resignation case is judged on its merits. He added, however, that there are few exceptions to the general rule.

If an exception isn't made for Bartos, he wouldn't be permitted to resign until June, 1950. And Marshall would have to wait a full year before getting the services of the hard-running 205-pounder.

At 17, Bartos was Navy's regular fullback and played a stellar role in Navy's memorable effort

Carolina, Terps Could Settle Sugar, Orange Bowl Plans

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Bowl-conscious Maryland and bowl-bound North Carolina could solve 50 per cent of the plans of the Orange Bowl and Sugar Bowl committees when the two teams clash at Griffith Stadium November 13.

After its 14-7 victory over Tennessee in Knoxville Saturday, North Carolina was informed it could make plans to be in New Orleans January 1, IF it won the rest of its games.

An Orange Bowl official, who saw Maryland's 27-13 victory over Miami Friday night, told this reporter "if Maryland beats North Carolina we would almost have to bring Maryland in here for the Orange Bowl game.

"Whether they lose one of their remaining games or not, Carolina seems assured of a Sugar Bowl bid. If Maryland beats Carolina, we could boast of having the team that beat a Sugar Bowl team playing in our game."

Carolina people think their Tar Heels got over the hump Saturday by trimming Tennessee. They don't see how the all-conquering Tar Heels could be upended by either William and Mary, Maryland, Duke or Virginia.

Even if the Tar Heels lose one

Dobbs Paces Dons Over Dodgers, 17-0

By Joe Reichler

Brooklyn, Oct. 31 (AP). — Glenn Dobbs, Los Angeles' great triple threat back, saw onl three minutes of action today, but found time to spark the Dons to a 17-0 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in an All-America Football Conference game today.

Dobbs, still nursing several bruised ribs he received last week, was used in only nine offensive plays. He attempted five passes and completed all of them to account for one of Los Angeles' two touchdowns and to set up another score.

The former Tulsa star made his first appearance late in the second period. He threw three straight completed passes to put the ball in midfield. From there, Ben (The Toe) Agajanian booted a 50-yard field goal to put the Dons ahead 3-0.

Dobbs came back for a half minute's action in the third period, and with two accurate bullet throws accounted for a score to put the Pacific Coasters ahead, 10-0. A blocked kick by Bob Rienhard gave the Dons the ball on Brooklyn's 17-yard stripe. Dobbs came in and rifled the pigskin to Right End Lenford, who caught it on the 4. On the next play he whipped a short bullet pass to Joe Aguirre over the goal line.

The Dons added another touchdown in the final period when Walter Clay, Colorado fullback, climaxed a 7-yard drive with a line buck from the 1-foot line.

A disappointed crowd of 12,825 watched the game in perfect football weather.

Lions Snap Eight-Game Loss Streak

Detroit, Oct. 31 (AP).—Coming from behind after spotting Green Bay a 7-0 lead, the Detroit Lions cracked an eight-game losing streak by beating the Packers, 24 to 20, today for their initial National Football League victory under Coach Bo McMillin.

It was Detroit's first NFL victory since the Lions beat the Washington Redskins, 38 to 21, on November 21, on November 16, 1947, under the guidance of Coach Charles E. (Gus) Dorais and Detroit's first win over a Western Division club in three years.

Green Bay		Detroit
17	First downs	17
159	Yards gained rushing	208
14	Forwards passes attempted	27
6	Forward passes completed	11
147	Yards by forward passing	175
3	Forward passes intercepted by	0
56	Yards gained runback int. passes	0
51.5	Punting average from scrimmage	41
94	Total yards all kicks returned	48
2	Opponents' fumbles recovered	2
78	Yards lost by penalty	53

Detroit struck twice from outside the 50-yard line for last half touchdowns that snapped Green Bay's up-and-down regularity of winning every other game this year. It was the second straight loss for the Packers, who now have won three and lost four.

The Packers were leading 14-10 late in the third period when the Lions cashed in two "thriller" plays for touchdowns that put them in front to stay.

Little Halfback Joe Marguccl grabbed Clyde LeForce's 55-yard pass for the touchdown that gave the Lions a 17-14 lead.

Three minutes later rookie Quarterback Fred Enke broke through a hole in the line, shook off tacklers when he twice appeared stopped, lateraled to LeForce and blocked out Green Bay's Ollie Wilson to clear the way for LeForce to complete a scoring play that covered 71 yards.

Center Merv Pergulman booted all three points after Detroit touchdowns and also place-kicked a field goal from the 27.

Packer Fullback Ted Fritsch, who missed four field goal efforts, stole the ball from Detroit's George Grimes and stepped across from the 6-yard line for the first Green Bay touchdown.

Enke Hurls Touchdown

Tony Canadeo's 9-yard scamper around end counted the touchdown that put the Packers in front 14-7 late in the first half and Halfback Ralph Earhart caught Irv Comp's pass from the 50-yard line for the last Green Bay score. Ed Cody made two of three conversion attempts.

Besides making the winning touchdown possible on his "picture" play with LeForce, Enke tossed 7 yards to End Bob Mann for Detroit's first score.

The Lions outgained Green Bay, 208 yards to 159, on the ground and 175 yards to 147 in the air, to win before 16,174 fans, the smallest Detroit crowd this year.

Canadeo, the league's leading ground gainer, picked up 64 yards in 10 running tries but was outshone by Detroit's Fullback Camp Wilson, who gained 93 yards in 23 carries.

Indian Jack Jacobs of the Packers averaged 51.5 yards on his four punts.

Chicago Passed Dizzy

Pete Layden Leads New York To 42-7 Win Over Rockets

By Harold Claassen

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Chicago's Rockets had no pass defense today and New York had two exceptional passers with the result that the Yankees won an easy 42 to 7 All-America Conference football victory.

So futile were the Rockets on offense that they crossed the midfield stripe only three times—twice in the fourth period.

Their lone score came late in the fourth period on a 65-yard play. It started as a pass from Jess Freitas to Bob Perina, who lateralled Floyd Simmons.

It was Pete Layden who did the damage to the Rockets. The former Texan personally gained 332 yards for the New Yorkers—116 on rushing and 216 on nine completed passes.

All the six Yankee markers came as the results of passes.

Layden and Jack Russell combined on a 59-yard scoring play at the start of the second period. Four minutes later Layden and Buddy Young teamed up on a 27-yard thrust.

Four minutes later the Texan tossed a 20-yard aerial, then sprinted 21 yards on the next play to put the ball on the six where Lowell Tew took it over.

Tew also counted the only touchdown of the third period after Layden had sent the score up with a pair of passes.

Young caught a screened Layden pass and Journeyed 41 yards for the fifth Yankee touchdown that came in the final period. Then Tom Casey came in to toss a scoring heave to Van Davis for the finale.

Harvey Johnson converted all six to carry his unbroken string to 60 consecutive successful extra point tries.

The Yankee management announced that only 13,239 of the 79,000 seats in the stadium were occupied.

Chewning Still Leads Virginia College Scorers

Richmond, Va., Oct. 31 (AP).—Hampden-Sydney's fast-stepping Lynn Chewning was still at the top of the Virginia college scoring heap today, more so than ever.

The Tigers' little All-American nominee galloped for touchdowns twice Saturday, and it certainly was no fault of his that Hampden-Sydney bowed to Sewanee, 20-13. Chewning's tallies came on sprints of 29 and 60 yards, and raised his season's point total to 54.

Jack Cloud of William and Mary pulled into a tie for second place with Floyd Tayloe of the University of Virginia. He and Tayloe have 36 points apiece.

Next is Randolph-Macon's Halfback Bill Caldwell with 10. Just a shade behind is Virginia's Johnny Papit and Emory and Henry's Bob Miller with 30.

Lio's Field Goals Beat Richmond

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 31 (AP).—The Paterson Panthers took over undisputed possession of first place in the American Professional Football League today defeating the Richmond Rebels, 20-14, before 9,862 fans in Hinchliffe Stadium.

In handing the Rebels their second loss in as many weeks, Paterson benefitted by the strong right foot of Line Coach Augie Lio, former guard at Georgetown and an all-National League choice on three occasions.

Lio kicked two field goals, one of them a 42-yard boot and the other 12 yards.

Baugh Has A Day, 'Skins Romp, 59-21

and it was Tereshinski's turn for Baugh's attention. Joe grabbed Baugh's offering on his own 45 and was losing a goalward race with Boston's Bill Chipley. The last defender, however, missed his tackle five yards from the goalline and Tereshinski was over.

Crisler Goes Over

It got to be 28-14 for halftime when a Boston sub, Dan Ryan, fumbled and Hartley recovered on Washington's 39. In five tries the 'Skins picked up a first down, but were still 49 yards away from a touchdown. The sixth play involved Baugh and Crisler, and that was it. Crisler went into the air with Halfback Frankie Nelson for Sammy's pitch at the 18. He came down with his legs churning and that was all Nelson saw of him for the time being.

Baugh's production came to a halt soon after the second half started after the 'Skins took the kickoff and went 72 yards with it. Paul McKee got a 22-yarder from Sammy for a first down and the ball was at Boston's 38 when the lightning struck.

Todd took a 30-yard toss on the 8-yard line, gingerly circled around Chipley, and went into pay territory standing up. The count was a pretty convincing 35-14.

The invaders wound up their scoring efforts of the day immediately thereafter. They marched 43 yards, with Zimmerman pitching like crazy, to the 'Skins' 13. Tommy Mont was covering somebody else when lanky Roy heaved one to Joe Golding behind the posts.

Poillon Boots Field Goal

It was after a touchdown had been called back that the game's only field goal occurred. Poillon made it 38-21 with a perfect boot that just cleared the crossbar.

The Tribe's trio of fourth-period scoring excursions got their inception a period earlier when Zimmerman kicked into the end zone. Starting with the last play of the third quarter, Baugh connected on six straight passes, the last going to Crisler for one of the six-pointers that didn't count.

Baugh's seventh straight completion went to Todd, and Todd went to Boston's 1-foot stripe. After Baugh had been denied a touchdown for himself with his quarterback sneak, Poillon did it the more orthodox way on fourth down.

The whole gory business was wound up in a few plays midway of the final frame. Poillon's 49-yard kick out of bounds on Boston's 1-yard line started it. Zimmerman kicked back and Crisler, normally an end but capable of playing safety, ran back to the Yank 26.

Hartley got one touchdown on the Redskins' first offensive play, with Poillon clearing a corridor for him. After the kickoff, Sandifer got the final T. D. on the Yankees' first offensive play. It was a Zimmerman pass again. This time Dan needed mostly speed and little shiftiness to carry the intercepted ball 48 yards for a score.

BRIEFLY—All-American Harry Gilmer was allowed out of the hospital long enough to watch his Redskin teammates win a game . . . He'll go back, however, until his damaged leg is completely healed . . . Also missing from action, but in uniform, was Halfback Bob Nussbaumer who was stuck to the bench for the first time as a Redskin . . Todd's five completions added 158 yards to the 'Skins overall offensive total of 610 . . . The fifth was his 101st catch since joining the team . . . Wayne Millner still holds the top total . . . Next Sunday the Yanks get a return match in their own' bailiwick, where they could be tougher, and there follows a Griffith Stadium meeting with the surprising Detroit Lions of their remaining games, they would still probably be invited to New Orleans. Charlie Justice is their great attraction and New Orleans still remembers his scintillating performance against Georgia in 1946.

Maryland's Orange Bowl chances are not completely hinged on the outcome of the Tar Heel tilt. The Terps still have South Carolina (this Saturday in Columbia), Vanderblit and West Virginia to play.

Vanderbilt, trounced 20-7 last year, is definitely laying for Maryland. Terp scouts who saw Vandy blot out Yale, 35-0, and Auburn, 47-0, tremble when they think of the November 20 assignment facing the Old Liners.

"They're just as good as North Carolina," said Scout Bill Meek, who's seen both teams play.

Then, too, there's unbeaten, untied Clemson which must be considered in the Orange Bowl plans. Although the Terps have lost once, if they beat North Carolina and Vanderbilt they'll have an edge over Clemson for the bid.

Miami football fans, who don't like to buy a pig in a poke, saw Maryland play and were impressed. They haven't seen Clemson operate.

IN SHORT—Clemson's outstanding record this season saved Coach Frank Howard his job. He would have been replaced this year if Clemson experienced a losing season . . . Tennessee has 45 "hand-picked" freshmen and the Vols are expected to be the Vols of old next year . . . Gene Kinney, Maryland football captain, was presented with an expensive blanket before the Maryland-Miami game . . . If GW can muster enough strength, the Colonials should whip The Citadel Saturday. Two weeks ago Bo Rowland said he entertained no idea of beating Maryland or Lafayette, but "we're pointing to The Citadel instead" . . . Georgetown makes its semi-final home stand at Griffith Stadium Friday night. N. Y. U.'s Violets are the foes. . . .

against the great Army team of 1946 before Navy bowed 21-18.

Bartos is commander of a rifle platoon in the Twenty-second Marines, a fleet Marine force regiment stationed at Quantico. Like all Marine combat units, the Twenty-second is kept constantly in a state of preparedness and is ready to move on short notice. The Twenty-second serves a dual role, it's used for instructional purposes at Quantico.

Bartos finds time to be the big wheel on Maj. Hal Harwood's undefeated Quantico eleven. The 21-year-old lieutenant tallied eight touchdowns in Quantico's first five victories this season and averaged 11 yards each time he carried the ball.

A native of Lorain, Ohio, Bartos says he'd like to take a crack at professional football. He performed for the Eastern All-Stars in a charity game against the New York Giants and thought he did pretty well.

But Bartos says he has other reasons for wanting to leave the Marine Corps. "I want to get married, get a home and settle down," explained the likable footballer, "and particularly, I'd like to study for a mechanical engineering degree."

Schmeling Loser, Says He'll Retire

Berlin, Oct. 31 (AP)—Max Schmeling, 43-year-old former world's heavyweight champion, lost a slow 10-round decision here today to Richard Vogt, 36, of Hamburg, German light heavyweight champion, and then announced "this is my last fight." Schmeling weighed 194, Vogt 187.

It was so cold and raw the fighters had to keep covered between rounds. The dull fight was enlivened in the last round when Vogt severely pummeled his older opponent.

In the dressing room after his defeat Schmeling said he planned now to retire permanently and return to Hamburg, where he has a real estate business.

40 Midget Pilots After 20 Places On Uline Show

Tom Lane, director of Majestic Raceways, last night was confronted with the problem of selecting quality from quantity for his opening midget auto racing show Thursday at Uline's.

From 40 to 50 top drivers of the American Racing Drivers' Club have forwarded entry blanks and only 20 of these can qualify.

Classic Teams Win Games

Successfully hurdling their opponents over the weekend, the Trojans of Virginia State College and the Yellow Jackets of West Virginia State College today looked forward to their important meeting in the annual Capital Classic next Saturday night at Griffith Stadium.

The Trojans kept their unbeaten slate clean as they whipped Union College at Richmond on Saturday, 7-0, while West Virginia State was turning in a victory over Bluefield State at Bluefield, W. Va., 39-0.

21-Game Card

Anacostia, Tech Head Highs Slate

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The Interhigh battle for the playoffs and unbeaten Georgetown Prep's bid for its sixth straight victory highlight this week's 21-game football card.

Central, the leading Interhigh team, is idle, but Anacostia will be busy trying to solidify its grip on second place. Last year's champion McKinley Tech will provide the opposition for the Indians of Anacostia.

That game should be a humdinger. Once-beaten Anacostia can gain the playoffs by winning its three remaining games. However, a loss to improving Tech might prove disastrous.

Tech and Wilson have lost only two games and still have a good chance for the playoff berth. Wilson has a chance to improve on its position Friday when it meets up with Coolidge, which has won only once this season.

Last-place Roosevelt, still shooting for its first league triumph, collides with Eastern at Eastern Friday in the only other interhigh tussle of the week.

St. John's, last year's Catholic high champion of Washington, gives Georgetown Prep its strongest local test Friday when it meets the Little Hoyas at Garrett Park.

The Little Hoyas dissolved all doubts as to their caliber last week by whipping Loyola, perennial Baltimore powerhouse, which was undefeated before the Prep game.

New Feather Champ Will Watch Bout

Newly crowned Featherweight Champion Sandy Saddler will be at Turner's Arena tonight to watch his stablemate, Archie Moore of St Louis, meet Lloyd Gibson, outstanding Cincinnati light heavyweight, in the 10-round feature bout.

Saddler took the 126-pound title from Willie Pep last Friday.

Moore is expected to be an 8-5 favorite over his younger, faster opponent.

Winner of the bout may be signed for a big fight this winter at the National Guard Armory, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced last night following his return from New York where he watched Saddler knock out Pep for the title.

Tonight's fight stacks up as slugger against boxer. Moore is rated one of the most dangerous hitters in the ring today. He has kayoed more than half the men he has faced, listing among his victims Jimy Bivins, Bert Lytell, Lloyd Marshall, Holman Williams, Jack Chase and Nate Bolden.

Young Gibson's record is unblemished in four years of fighting. He recently has beaten Ricardo Radelli, Charles Hayes, Tony Ricco, Billy Cooper and Joe Green.

He holds a decision over Italian champion Italo Palmeri, and he has been beaten only by Marcel Cerdan, the middleweight champion, who won a decision over Lloyd in the Inter-Allied championship tourney in Rome in 1944.

Moore is in line for a title bout with Britisher Freddie Mills if he beats Gibson.

plunged over from the 1 to put Buffalo four points ahead, 21-17.

A Ratterman-to-Mutryn pitch moved for 49 yards and another touchdown early in the final quarter, Mutryn getting up after being tackled by Mule Corley and racing the last 35 yards.

Ratterman crossed up a packed defense with two passes after the Bills had taken over on their 11 for the final score. One went to Lou Tomasetti for 26 yards, and the second found O'Conner in the clear for a 35-yard dash into the end zone.

Brookland Clinches Metro Title

Brookland-Woodbridge Merchants yesterday clinched the Metropolitan Amateur Football League's 160-pound Western Division title by defeating Anacostia Lions at Fairlawn, 18-0.

Northeast Body Works defeated defending champion Southwest Merchants at Gonzaga, 14-4 in another 160-pound game.

Arrow Linen kept within two points of Eastern Division, leading Northeast Body Works by smothering the Maryland Mohawks at Fletcher Field, 40-18.

Alperstein's Department Stores mastered Silver Spring A. C. at Montgomery-Blair, 21-4, in the other unlimited contest.

The surprising Anacostia Lions, who have yet to win a game, held Brookland-Woodbridge scoreless during the first half.

Brookland started rolling in the third period, scoring all its 18 points as Eddie Brandt went over from the 6; Bob Brandt ran back a pass interception 50 yards, and George Greenville bolted 60 yards off tackle for the final score.

Southwest and Northeast played a scoreless first half. Northeast scored in the third period on Adrian Kidwell's plunge from Southwest's 6. Teddy Dyer broke 50-yards off left tackle for the final score in the fourth.

St. Bonaventure Beats St. Louis, 21-0

St. Louis, Oct. 31 (AP).—The St. Bonaventures continued undefeated last night with a 21-10 victory over St. Louis on a muddy field before a disappointed homecoming crowd of 6000.

Center Mitch Smiarowski intercepted a pass by St. Louis Quarterback Bob Astroth in the second period to start the New Yorkers off on their scoring jaunt. Fullback Bob Kay carried the ball across after a run of 26 yards. Frank Ferris made the extra point from placement and the Bonnies were never headed after that.

Chamberlain Player Dies of Injuries

George E. Sullivan, 18-year-old halfback on the Chamberlain Vocational High School football team, died in Providence Hospital yesterday from injuries suffered in a game Friday.

Sullivan

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Sullivan, 1103 Branch ave. se., was injured in a game between Chamberlain and Woodward Preparatory School, played in the Anacostia High School stadium. His death was attributed to a ruptured spleen.

Forest Powars, 2222 Q st. nw., coach of the Chamberlain team, said Sullivan "had the wind knocked out of him" while blocking in the second quarter, and sat out the remainder of the game. Although pleased at Chamberlain's 32-to-6 victory, Sullivan admitted to the coach that he felt nauseated and "pretty punk" after the game.

Treated by his family doctor Friday night, the boy was sent to Providence Hospital Saturday when he complained of severe pains in his abdomen and left shoulder. Dr. Philip Caulfield, who operated on the boy Saturday night, said his death Sunday at 9:25 a. m. was due to a ruptured spleen.

Sullivan, a husky 165-pounder who stood 5 feet 9 inches tall, was in his junior year at the high school. "One of the outstanding boys on the team," according to Powars, he was scheduled to get his football letter at the end of the season.

The boy, a District native, was a former member of Police Boys' Club No. 11, according to his father, a maintenance man for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The boy was a talented water colorist, his father said, and had also taken up photography at school this year.

A hearing on the boy's death will be held this morning at the District morgue. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 1 p. m. at Chambers Southeast funeral home, 517 11th st. se., with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

His parents are his only survivors.

Stoneham, Leo Parley With Cubs

Chicago, Oct. 31 (AP).—Owner Horace Stoneham and Manager Leo Durocher of the New York baseball Giants checked in at Wrigley Field today, but whether it was for football pleasure or baseball business was anyone's guess.

After watching the New York football Giants take a 35-14 pasting from the Chicago Bears, Durocher said:

"We've been exchanging trade ideas with the Cubs ever since the season ended. We'll talk with them again before we head back to New York. But there's nothing definite on the fire."

Sugar Radio Wins, Takes First Place

Sugar Radio increased its unbeaten skein to three games and took first place in the Washington and Suburban Soccer League yesterday as it beat Maryland Sports Club, 7-1, at Rosedale before a crowd estimated at 500 people.

Charles County was tied, 1-1, by O.S.I.A. at 24th and Constitution and dropped into second place. The other league games were all shutouts as Grasva defeated Rockville, 4-0; Martin's Bakery defeated Indian Head, 5-0, and Marlboro defeated Pan-American, 3-0.

Golfers Just Can't Seem to Settle Titles

It's getting mighty close to 1949 but two local clubs are still in the dark about their 1948 club champions.

Out at Indian Spring Country Club Eddie Ault and William McFerren were all set to fire away yesterday when McFerren, a commercial pilot, was called out into the wild blue yonder. At tee-off time McFarren was somewhere in Egypt. They'll try again next week.

Danny Burton and W. W. Seay came a good deal closer to settling things at Anacostia Golf Club. Darkness put the damper on their final match yesterday after they had completed 35 holes.

Burton had had a one-hole lead at 18 and was nursing it along when they were blacked out. The two finalists agreed to disregard yesterday's score and play a fresh 18-hole match next Sunday.

PRINCE GEORGES — Men's prize competition play ended yesterday with the turkey tournament which was won by Dr. M. Parks with a 75. Second low gross was the 77 posted by R. C. Spahr. Jack Smith, 98—29—69, won low net. The other low net winners—M. H. de Bruin, 86—15—71; S. D. Smith, 83—11—72; Sam Kapowitz, 88—16—72. All six winners carried off gobblers. The women will hold their turkey tournament next Sunday.

COLUMBIA—Ray Swearingen and Richie Edmonston defeated Page Cornwell and Richie Essex, 70 to 72, yesterday in an 18-hole playoff for the Cummings Cup. The two teams had tied for first place last week.

D.C. Night Boat Hits Tanker, One Killed

ing. A Navy tug pulled the District of Columbia off the bar three hours later and she proceeded under her own power to Norfolk.

Another tug removed the passengers to Norfolk Naval Station for shock treatment. No one was injured aboard the tanker.

Captain Eaton told investigators the steamer had left the Old Point harbor and had traveled about half a mile when the Georgia, anchored near the quarantine station, loomed up dead ahead in the thick fog.

Shaken and in tears, he sobbed, "Now I've got this woman's blood on my hands."

Investigating Coast Guard officials scheduled a hearing for today.

Miss McWhorter, whose home was in Tifton, Ga., apparently was killed while in bed in her stateroom, according to Navy Comdr. Wilson Starbuck, who was aboard one tug.

He said her body was thrust halfway through the steamer's shattered starboard side, crushed against the mattress by an angle iron support of a lifeboat davit.

According to Captain Eaton, the District of Columbia had started turning away from the tanker upon sighting it when a flood tide pulled his ship back and slammed it against the other.

The District of Columbia, only ship of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Co., left Washington at 6:30 p. m. Saturday on its regular Norfolk run, J. Allen Riordon, vice president of the company, reported.

Riordon, who praised Captain Eaton, a veteran of more than 25 years with the company, as "a wonderful master," announced the company would suspend operations "indefinitely" pending repair of the steamer. He said a survey of the damage would begin today.

The tanker carried more than 100,000 barrels of gasoline, kerosene and lubricating oil, Chief Officer George L. Coleman said.

"If the steamer had struck closer amidships, both ships would have broken into flame," he said.

Ordinary Seaman Nelson B. Broussard of Port Arthur, Tex., was on watch on the bow. He said, "I could hear the whistle for some time, but I could not see the ship. I kept ringing the bell every five seconds."

Broussard said he continued ringing the Georgia's fog bell furiously until the ships collided.

As the tanker's bow tore off 75 feet of the passenger steamer's starboard-side structure, the steamer's iron-guard fender ripped a 3-foot gash in the Georgia's bow just above the water line.

Acording to Navy Commander Starbuck, the dead woman's body could not be cut free from the twisted plates until the passenger ship had arrived at its pier about 4 miles away in Norfolk.

Sartorius told reporters he was seated on his bunk tying his shoes when the ships rammed together. The bunk was "carried up," he related, pinning him upside down in it. He was rescued within 10 minutes, he said, and treated by Capt. R. N. Graff, a British naval officer attached to the embassy here, who was with four British officers aboard.

Fell Into Water

Walton, who said "I'll never know what happened to me," reported he fell into the water when the deck and starboard bulkhead was torn from his stateroom. He said he fought his way back into the ship and through the debris until he stood dazed on the bridge clad only in his underwear.

Navy Lieutenant Yates said he felt the steamer give a wrenching motion. "I reached the open deck and saw the effect of the collision," he related.

"Everyone seemed calm as they put on life preservers. Within a short time it was apparent that the steamer would not sink. Then we merely waited for help. Several returned to finish their breakfast."

Miss Kate Porter of Portsmouth dressed hurriedly, left her cabin and donned a life preserver. "There was no panic," she said. "Everything seemed to be under control."

Miss McWhorter, a native of Albany, Ga., was graduated from Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga., in 1945, after majoring in economics and social science.

Bureau of Labor Statistics officials here said she had joined the bureau two months ago. She had just completed special training in Washington as a field representative for collection of consumer price information. During this month Miss McWhorter was to have compiled Norfolk consumer prices for a consumer index of that city.

Miss McWhorter is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. McWhorter, of Tifton, Ga., and a sister, Mrs. Louise Bickerstaff, of Columbus, Ga. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Captain Easton, master of the District of Columbia, joined the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Co. as a quartermaster between 25 and 30 years ago, according to Vice President Riordon.

Riordon said that 46-year-old Eaton "has an excellent record with nothing against it." Eaton, unmarried, has been a seafaring man all his working life, Riordon related. He added that this was the first tragedy experienced by the passenger steamer, of which Eaton had been master the past 20 years.

The steamer, now 23 years old, runs year around between Washington and Norfolk and carries up to 300 passengers. It is 300 feet long, has three decks, and 130 statesrooms, Riordon said.

Two other vessels operated by the steamship company were bought by the Government and turned over to the British during the war. The District of Columbia, taken over by the War Shipping Administration, was returned to the company in 1946 and is the company's only ship.

Violence Threat Reported Over As Troops Leave Tenn. Town

Loudon, Tenn., Oct. 31 (AP).—National Guard troops, ordered here yesterday when a sheriff reported possible mob violence stemming from the death of a hillbilly singer, withdrew today.

Col. Dwight L. McReynolds of Cleveland, Tenn., commanding the troops, ordered the withdrawal and reported "the situation here is under control."

Gov. Jim McCord at Nashville ordered the troops into this middle east Tennessee town after Loudon County Sheriff Henry McDonald and Loudon Mayor E. E. Watkins reported that mobs had threatened the sheriff and planned to dynamite the jail.

Feeling against the 58-year-old sheriff has been high here since the automobile death October 23 of Ray Brewster, Knoxville hillbilly radio singer.

McDonald and a deputy, Clifford Hughes, are accused of causing Brewster's death by shooting down the tires of his automobile, and causing it to overturn. They said Brewster's death occurred when his car ran off a highway after trying twice to ram the officers' vehicle.

McDonald said he was attempting to stop Brewster's car to serve a larceny warrant.

The Federal Diary

VA May Abolish Some Branch Offices Through Mergers

VA: It's only tentative, but a decision has been made by Administrator Carl R. Gray to abolish by merger several of the Veterans Administration's big branch offices. Gray is reported to have ordered his staff here to work on a plan that would retain no more than four of the offices.

The decision, if carried out, could easily mean the transfer back to this city of some of the functions of the branch offices. However, most of their functions would be transferred to other VA offices in the field.

RFC: There's a high-placed report of an imminent change on the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. This is it: that one of the Democrats on the RFC board will resign soon and he will be replaced by Donald S. Dawson, the President's administrative assistant for Federal personnel and a former RFC official.

This much is known—that Dawson could have had the RFC chairmanship when it was vacant several months. Tomorrow's election could upset plans for the switch. If Dewey is elected, Henry T. Bodman, Republican board member, will have strong support to be appointed RFC chairman early next year.

STATE: The staff of the House Appropriations Committee is planning an investigation of the State Department's intelligence operations. Let's hope its report will be objective and constructive and not filled with half-truths like its report on the department earlier this year.

COMMERCE has adopted a policy not to hire anyone who won't have 15 years of service when he's 70. The only exception is hiring for strictly temporary jobs. In other words, Commerce wants to be sure that all of its employes will be eligible to retire when they reach 70. This means that the department will not hire anyone for a probational appointment if he's over 55 and hasn't had previous Government experience.

AIR FORCE has appointed Clarence Osthagen as fair employment officer. He will report to Eugene M. Zuckert, Assistant Secretary for administration . . . NAVY: Mario Canaipi is the new personnel officer here for the Navy's Bureau of Supplies and Accounts . . . CIVIL SERVICE is looking for an executive officer for its fair employment board, and PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION also is in the market for an executive officer.

CLERKS: Just a reminder—tomorrow is the last day you can file for the Grade 2 and 3 clerical exam. About 30,000 already have applied for it. You can get application forms at Civil Service. It's too late to write me for them.

MESSENGERS: Civil Service has ordered the firing by January 27 of two classes of war service and temporary messengers in the Washington area. They are:

1. All nonstatus messengers, both veterans and nonveterans, who did not pass the messenger test, and (2) nonstatus messengers who are not entitled to veterans preference and whose names are not high enough on the list of eligibles to be certified to a job by January 27.

EXAMS: Civil Service will announce a test soon to fill about 60 highway engineer trainee jobs with the Public Roads Administration. College engineering students may apply for it. The jobs pay from $2498 to $2974 to start . . . Also coming up is a test for student aid trainees. The exam is being given to recruit college students to fill jobs in the fields of chemistry, physics, metallurgy, mathematics and engineering in the naval establishments here and nearby. The jobs will pay $2724 to start . . . Another test for P-1 jobs ($2974) also is on the schedule.

ACTION: Two members of Congress already are interested in the case of Jules B. Counts which was told here the other day. An Army scientist, Counts' both hands were blown off during an experiment he was making on a new explosive.

As a civilian Government worker, the most Counts can get from the Government is an inadequate $116-a-month. In the three months he has been in the hospital, he has been forced to draw on his savings to support his family. It will be at least another year before Counts can resume work, if then.

Another similar case has come to light—that of Leo Gowen, a chemist who works with explosives at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory here. He lost his right hand and had one eye severely injured at the laboratory several months ago from a blast during an experiment on an explosive.

Gowen didn't draw a penny in compensation from the Government. While he was in the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, he took annual and sick leave that he had accumulated. Now he's back at work, wearing an artificial hand. Half a dozen other cases of scientists who were injured are being checked by this column.

It's obvious to all that the Government doesn't adequately protect its injured employes. Military people and private employes who are injured on the job are treated much better. The Counts and Gowen cases will be used as examples to Congress as to why it should bring the Federal worker compensation system up to date. That law hasn't changed since 1925 when it was written.

3 Residents Of D. C. Die In Taxi Fall Off Bridge

Driver Escapes With Injuries; Pinned by Auto In 25-Foot Drop

Three District residents were killed early yesterday in Madison County, Va., when the taxi in which they were crossing a Rapidan River bridge sheared off 10 feet of the concrete bridge guard, shot into the air and fell 25 feet to the river bank.

Though the driver of the car was pinned under the vehicle after being thrown out when it flew into the air, he escaped with leg cuts and possible internal injuries.

The dead are Walter Johnson, 22; his wife, Gloria, also 22, and his sister, Dora Lee Johnson, 20, all of 510 Columbia rd. nw.

90 Miles From City

Virginia State police said the driver, Aubrey C. Jackson, 31, of 5112 Haynes st. ne., apparently lost control of the automobile as the group was crossing the bridge, on Route 29, just northeast of Madison, Va., and about 90 miles south of Washington.

The car struck the bridge guard on the left side of the road, police reported. It cut down four posts.

Jackson was pinned under the car on the bank for some time before he was extricated and taken to the University of Virginia Hospital in Charlottesville. His condition was reported as fair last night.

Precinct Detective John T. Bailey, 37, of 315 S. Columbus st., Alexandria, Va., suffered a compound fracture of the right leg when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver who was driving on the wrong side of Mount Vernon blvd., just south of Roaches Run. He was thrown a distance of 62 feet, police said.

Bailey had been on duty in Washington until 1 a. m. and was on his way home at about 3:30 a. m. yesterday when he saw the other car, described as a 1938 or 1939 Buick with Maryland tags, coming toward him in his lane. He stopped his car, got out and tried to flag down the oncoming driver, police said. The latter swerved over only far enough to collide with the left side of the detective's car before striking him as he was standing near the door.

Police said the impact broke the left headlight and tore off the left front hubcap of the Maryland car, which continued down the road. Bailey's condition was described as satisfactory at Alexandria Hospital last night.

Early yesterday a 26-year-old Washington woman was injured in a head-on automobile collision on Riverdale rd. at Edmonston rd. in East Riverdale, Md. She was Mrs. Elizabeth Clifton of 5111 Georgia ave. nw. Prince Georges County Hospital reported last night she was in fair condition with back injuries. Police had no details on the accident, except that Mrs. Clifton was a passenger in an automobile.

Four persons, including a girl, were injured Saturday night in a three-car collision when an automobile being chased by Montgomery County (Md.) and Metropolitan police collided with two others at Sheridan st. and Georgia ave. nw.

Driver of the car that was being chased was a 16-year-old Washington boy, Raymond E. Spears, 6615 8th st. nw., who was fined $100 on drunken driving and other charges in Hyattsville (Md.) Police Court last August. He was in satisfactory condition at Emergency Hospital last night with a possible skull fracture.

Richard W. Elms, 19, 908 Rittenhouse st. nw., a passenger in Spear's car, which was described as a "souped-up" Ford with two carburetors, suffered a possible skull fracture and is in serious condition at Emergency Hospital. Miss Jackie Higgins, 19, 616 Somerset pl. nw., a passenger in the first car struck, and Edward Morrison, 21, 5516 2d st. nw., driver of the second car, were treated for cuts and bruises.

Worst of Year

Fog Lifts To Give Rain A Chance

Washington came out of its worst fog of the year yesterday to run right smack into some more bad weather news—rain.

The weatherman said it will rain right through Election Day but the temperature will stay around a comfortable 65 degrees.

The dense fog which blanketed the city for nearly 12 hours over the weekend grounded planes, brought traffic to a near standstill and even gave pedestrians a bad time.

At the National Airport the field was closed from 10 p. m. Saturday to 10 a. m. Sunday. Northbound flights were routed through New York while southbound passengers alighted in Atlanta, Ga.

Unusually moist air, the weatherman said, cooled very rapidly Saturday night to produce one of the heaviest fogs of the year which settled along the Middle Atlantic Coast. Lack of any breeze let it hover in the area, he said.

Although no major accidents were caused by the fog, motorists ran off of the road, missed turns, and took hours to get home. In Silver Spring, Md., police hastily set up a warning light at the Georgia ave. underpass after a motorist ran over the dividing strip and stopped a few feet from solid wall.

Only ones benefiting from the fog, apparently, were Halloween hoodlums who used the cover to escape after committing acts of vandalism. Bethesda police vainly chased five youths who flooded the streets by opening fire hydrants.

Chest Workers Will Renew Goal Effort

Community Chest campaigners will launch a renewed effort to reach their $4,566,790 goal this week, after last Friday's announcement of a two-week extension of the drive to give volunteer solicitors more time to finish their assignments.

The Red Feather drive, now just past the 50 per cent mark with contributions of $2,284,509.81, was originally scheduled to end November 4.

"There is more of encouragement than discouragement in this campaign extension," Chauncey G. Parker, campaign chairman, said after an emergency meeting of the campaign committee.

Gives Reasons

"First, because campaign volunteers want more time to finish the job. We don't have to push them.

"Second, because we know that the delay in getting results has been almost entirely due to an honest mistake in starting the campaign too early."

Both campaign workers and givers were still out of town for the summer when the campaign opened, Parker pointed out.

Parker said the public "is aroused and interested, and ready to respond to campaign solicitation." He noted there is "little evidence of the apathy and resistance of last year" and cited the increased size of the average gift this year as encouraging.

Herbert J. Rich, chairman of Business Unit I, announced yesterday that more than 85 business firms have increased their gifts to the Chest over last year.

The Prince Georges Chest Unit meets at 6:45 p. m. today at the First Methodist Church, 5300 Baltimore ave., Hyattsville, Md., for a progress dinner.

General Meeting Set

On Wednesday, a general report luncheon for all units is scheduled at 12:15 p. m. in the Washington Hotel. The Alexandria unit, however, will hold a separate report meeting of its own Wednesday at 12:15 p. m. in the Old Club, Alexandria.

Fairfax campaign leaders plan a special executive committee meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. in the Chest office, 1057 West Broad st., Falls Church.

At 2 p. m. on Thursday, "Grandma" Moses' picture, "The Red Feather," painted specially for the Community Chests of America goes on display at 2 p. m. in the lobby of the National Collection of Fine Arts Gallery, 10th and Constitution ave. nw. The picture will be on view through Saturday.

Another general report luncheon is planned for Friday at 12:15 p. m. in the Washington Hotel.

9 Police Vehicles Chase Truck for About 50 Blocks

Seven police automobiles and two motorcycles chased a half-ton truck about 50 blocks through streets and alleys between Georgia ave. and Jefferson st. nw. and 16th and Whittier sts. nw. last night before the occupant was finally arrested.

Sixth Precinct Pvts. O. P. Williamson and G. K. Brown, in a cruiser, said they started chasing the man, Paul Stamates, 27, of 1209 Geranium st. nw., when his truck nearly hit a taxicab. They said Stamates was heading toward Montgomery County when the nine police vehicles crowded him to the curb on 16th st.

Stamates was charged with nine traffic violations and unauthorized use of the truck, owned by the Potomac Fish Market, 19 Municipal Wharf sw. His brother, Carl Stamates, 8802 Manchester la., Silver Spring, who operates the market said the truck was stolen.

Rifle Bandit Believed Shot In Gunfight

Hospitals, Doctors Alerted in Search For Slayer of Theater Manager

Hospitals and doctors were alerted by police last night to watch for a gunman who was believed wounded during a gun battle Saturday night in which two men were killed and three boys wounded.

The alert was part of intensive police efforts to find the bandit who shot and killed James E. Washington, 51, manager of the Rosalie Theater at 218 F st. sw., setting off an exchange of gunfire which resulted in the death of a bystander.

In further attempts to piece together all elements of the crime, police will make ballistic tests today to determine whether the bystander, Herbert Smith, 35, of 1224 7th st. nw., was killed by police or the bandit.

Shot in Chest

Smith died of a wound in the chest. The bullet is expected to be recovered today when an autopsy will be completed on him.

Washington, who lived at 1436 W st. nw., was killed instantly as he left the theater about 10:30 p. m. Saturday, carrying a canvas bag containing about $400 in receipts. He intended to deposit the money in a night deposit bank at 7th and E sts. sw., police learned.

Three youths were also struck by flying bullets during the gun fight. They were:

Carl Shedrick, 10, of 829 Delaware ave, sw., who is in good condition at Gallinger Hospital with a fractured right leg.

Richard Lee Jefferson, 13, of 620 O'Neil ct. sw., who was treated at Gallinger Hospital for a slight scalp wound and released.

Bandit Uses Rifle

Police said Washington was walking toward his auto, parked a short distance from the theater when the lone bandit approached with an automatic rifle. Washington, perhaps sensing a holdup, began to run. As horrified witnesses looked on, the bandit opened fire and Washington fell. He was struck in the chest and in the right wrist.

Two Fourth Precinct policemen, Pvts. J. E. Smith and W. Toler, were at a police call box about a half block away when they heard the shots and ran to the scene. As they approached the bandit opened fire on them, police said. Smith jumped behind a parked car, while Toler ran into the doorway of a drugstore. Both fired several times as the bandit fled east on F street.

It was after this exchange of shots that the bystander Smith apparently fell to the ground, mortally wounded, police said.

In the meantime, two more policemen, Pvts. H. R. Kershner and Thomas Allen, approached the scene in a scout car. Allen jumped out of the car and drew his gun as he saw the bandit running up the street toward him with the rifle. At this time, neither Allen nor Kershner knew that someone had been shot, police said.

Bandit Again Opens Fire

Allen ordered the man to drop his gun, but the bandit fired several shots at him. Allen ducked behind a parked car and fired at the man, who continued running east on F street and across Second street into an alley.

Kershner, meanwhile, had turned the scout car around at the intersection and had started back to the scene when he saw the man running into the alley. The bandit fired several times at the car as he fled, one of his bullets apparently blowing out a tire of the car, police said.

Allen said he thought he saw the man stumble once. Hospitals and doctors were consequently alerted to look out for anyone applying for treatment for a bullet wound.

The bandit was described as a Negro, 24 or 25 years old, of slim build and weighing about 140 pounds, wearing a khaki jacket.

Police said they could not be sure that he had gotten the bag of receipts. The bag may have been taken by a bystander during the shooting, they said. Neither the bag nor the automatic rifle had been found by last night.

Man Lost 4 Days Is Found Dead

Missing four days from his tenant house on the C ook Farm near Cabin John, Md., Walter Hinton, 73, was found dead of a heart attack yesterday, lying in shallow water in Rock Run, half a mile from MacArthur blvd. near Carderock.

Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner, said Hinton was clinging to a rock and apparently died Thursday while trying to pull himself out of the stream. He had suffered from a heart condition.

Rockville police are trying to locate a brother. The body was taken to the W. Reuben Pumphrey funeral home in Bethesda.

9600 March in Procession Of 68 Holy Name Societies; Reformation Marked Here

3000 Protestants Attend Federation Of Churches Service In Constitution Hall

Members of the city's Protestant churches last night joined in a mass service in Constitution Hall marking the 431st anniversary of the Reformation.

Attended by about 3000 persons, the service was sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches. Similar services were held in many cities throughout the Nation.

The "Festival of Faith" opened with a procession of about 100 clergymen, some of them in vestments. They were followed by 500 young persons who marched up the center aisle and into balcony seats.

The National Lutheran Chorus, under the direction of R. E. Snesrud, led the congregation in singing traditional hymns of Protestantism.

Dr. Reissig Speaks

Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, told the assembly that the service showed that Protestants can meet together when they so desire.

The Rev. Dr. A. Mackay, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, told the gathering that such a meeting was a testimonial to the fact that Protestantism is becoming resurgent in our time.

He said the Protestant rebirth in our time is not sectarian, but rather is a great movement toward unity.

The Protestant Church, he said, is taking the lead in the ecumenical movement where the essential oneness of the church may be expressed.

Dr. Mackay said it is the Protestant mission in the world today to stand between totalitarianism, the "anarchic disintegration of life and its values."

"Not a Schism"

"The Protestant Reformation," he declared, "was not a schism from the church; it was a schism in the church. It was not the discovery of a new way to believe in God and to serve Him; it was the recovery of the ancient Christian way of faith and practice."

He named three characteristically Protestant beliefs:

1. The Bible is the supreme medium of unity with God. If we need anything in this age of "cultural sterility" it is to rediscover the Bible, he said.

2. Jesus Christ is the sovereign Lord of Life. Any religious system in which there emerges a hierarchy which demands to be served and does not exist to serve as an abomination, he declared.

3. The Christian Church is basically a fellowship. We do not want a world church with a centralized administrative authority any more than we want a world state, he concluded.

ALTAR BOYS MARCH—A contingent of altar boys from Nativity parish march in the Holy Name Society's parade on Constitution ave. yesterday. More than 9600 persons participated

Archbishop O'Boyle Leads Celebration by Men, Boys of Feast Of Christ the King

Catholic men and boys about 9600 strong yesterday joined in a two-hour parade and religious ceremony marking the celebration of the Feast of Christ the King.

Members of Holy Name Societies in 68 parishes in Washington, Prince Georges and Montgomery counties marched in the parade, which was witnessed by thousands of persons along the line of march.

Leading the colorful procession down Constitution ave. was the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington. The archbishop mounted a reviewing stand between 14th and 15th sts. nw. to review the parade along with other clergymen and laymen.

15 Bands Play

Fifteen bands, sparked by the Metropolitan Police Band, played martial music during the parade.

Marchers and their friends and families assembled in the Sylvan Theater at the foot of the Washington Monument for the religious service.

Tracing the growth of the Catholic church in the United States since 1790, Archbishop O'Boyle declared that Catholics should be "fiercely proud of what our ancestors in the faith have accomplished for God and country."

He asserted that today "we are called to make our contribution to the Catholic life of this country, and in so doing contribute to the stability, to the virility and to the glory of America."

Hits "Trinity of Evils"

"Wherever the anxious eye may turn, there rears up the spectacle of decadence of moral life, the pride, the inordinate ambition, the corrosive selfishness, the outright falsehood and all that which mars human dignity and disregards God," the Archbishop declared.

"The first line of defense of the very existence of this Nation is not steel ramparts manned by men in the grim robes of war, but the strong moral fiber and unflagging faith that ennobles the souls of its citizens," he said.

"Every true Catholic," he declared, "views with horror and disgust the sinful and social consequences of abortion, birth contrel and so-called mercy killing. These constitute a trinity of evils which cry to Heaven for vengeance."

"I know that every true Catholic must view with alarm and distress of soul the apparent complacency with which we permit human beings to live in slums," he said.

Urges Catholic Action

Calling for personal programs of Catholic action, he praised the work of Miss Mary Merrick of Washington who organized the Christ Child Society. He urged "general obedience and willing cooperation" of members in carrying out the work of the church.

The program of Christ, the Archbishop said, "cries out to us to exercise toward all men charity and brotherly love." He called for "selfless zeal" in meeting the problems which the age creates for the church and Catholicism.

The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, vicar general of the archdiocese of Washington, said pontifical benediction, and the ceremonies were concluded with the recitation of the Holy Name pledge and the singing of "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

Holiday in Church Schools

All Saints Day to Be Observed Today by Catholics of Area

All Hallows or All Saints' Day—the holy day of which Halloween is the eve—will be observed here today by Greater Washington Catholics.

Holiday masses will be said in all Catholic churches, and for pupils at Catholic parochial schools, as well as Catholic and Georgetown Universities, it will provide a one-day vacation.

The Halloween passed, police reported last night, with a relative minimum of vandalism in the area.

Most of the parties and celebrations took place Saturday night, 24 hours ahead of the witching schedule, but some have been held off until today.

A costume parade for Georgetown children will begin at 4:30 p. m. at Potomac and N sts. nw., and a parade and party sponsored by the Seat Pleasant Lions Club will begin at 7 p. m. in Capitol Heights, Md.

At Fort Meade the post fieldhouse will be thrown open for a "Belgian Village" party for families on the post, and at Hagerstown, Md., the traditional Mummers' parade will be held tonight.

At the Pentagon an All Saints' Day Mass will be celebrated by Chaplain William J. Moran of the Office of the Chief of Chaplains at noon in the corridor outside the Signal Corps auditorium on the fifth floor.

Among pranks reported to police last night were the rolling of a concrete sewer pipe onto a streetcar track at Lincoln Park; removal of a manhole cover at Ingomar st. and Nebraska ave. nw.; exploding of firecrackers at 6th and F sts. sw.; firing of BB guns in the 3400 block of 10th st. se.; and turning on of a fire hydrant in the 3500 block of Garrison st. nw.

There were also a number of reports of rock-throwing, with broken windows reported in the 2000 block of M st. ne., but police said the night was generally quieter than Friday and Saturday.

Halloween Pumpkin Causes $5000 Damage

A three-room apartment in a Government project near Suitland, Md., was gutted last night when a Halloween pumpkin's candle ignited a living room curtain, causing an estimated $5000 damage.

According to the Boulevard Heights Fire Chief Ralph Small, the apartment at 4322 Spring st., in the Carry Housing development is occupied by Sazous Mikedes, his wife and two sons. Damage, Chief Small said, was to the interior of the building and furnishings.

Consecration Rites Held at Ascension, St. Agnes Parish

More than 1000 members of the Ascension and St. Agnes' Episcopal Parish and other worshipers rejoiced last night, as Bishop Angus Dun consecrated the edifice at 18th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw., signifying that the parish is debt-free after a long struggle.

The occasion, celebrated with the pomp, pageantry and dignity of the "high" Episcopal Church, officially marked the merger last May 3 of the Ascension and St. Agnes' parishes, and the institution of the Rev. Albert J. duBois as first rector of the united parish.

The building now occupied by the combined parish was used for 75 years by the Ascension Parish. Members of St Agnes' Parish worshiped at 46 Q st. nw., until the merger.

In a brief sermon at the service, Bishop Dun, of the Washington Episcopal Diocese, pictured the event as a symbol of man's unity with Christ in all things. "To consecrate anything is to surround it and fill it with prayer," he said.

Jack, general traffic manager of the Aluminum Co. of America will speak to members of the institute on "Traffic Management and Its Position in American Transportation" at a dinner Wednesday at 7 p. m. in the home of the American University president, Paul F. Douglass, Massachusetts and Nebraska aves. nw. Two other evening meetings, besides full daytime sessions, are planned for November 17 and November 23.

Miss Patrice Munsel Sings Arias From Lind Repertory

By Richard Keith

In commemoration of the "centennial of Jenny Lind," Patrice Munsel, young American coloratura, gave a recital featuring songs and arias from the Lind repertory yesterday afternoon at Constitution Hall. Just what event in the life of the Swedish diva is being commemorated this season was not stated; she was born long before, and died long after, 1848-49, and apparently did not come to America until 1850. At any rate, Miss Munsel was striking and charming in her Jenny Lind gown.

Her program included arias from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," Donizetti's "Linda di Chamounix," Bellini's "La Somnambula," and Meyerbeer's "Robert il Diavolo." Two German and two French lieder, and a large assortment of other songs and encores made up the remainder of the recital. The most completely successful item was a song with a flute by Ravel. Here, Miss Munsel's clear and innocent voice was splendidly suited. She also entranced the audience with such encores as a little number called "Four Ducks on a Pond," and "Pale Blue Slippers."

The difficult coloratura arias that she sang are still beyond her technical and artistic attainments. Her voice, although beautiful and live, has a monotonous sameness that is seldom overcome. The bravura passages were perfectly in tune for the most part, but too often lacked the clean articulation of a really great coloratura. Nothing but complete insensitivity to the greatness of Bellini's music could have induced her to sing "Comin' Through the Rye" as an encore to "Ah! Non guinge." Miss Munsel has a naturally beautiful and flexible voice; if she wishes, she can become a fine soprano of a type that unfortunately is becoming rarer every year. At present, she is a radio and cinema diva rather than an operatic one.

Hayes Gives Recital

Roland Hayes, tenor, gave a song recital yesterday afternoon at the Asbury Methodist Church. Mr. Hayes is, and has been for many years, one of the truly great lieder singers. Many years of penetrating study and wide experience are now combined with a naturally great voice; the effect of this combination on the listener is one of personal intimacy with the music itself. In many ways, the greatest tribute that can be paid to an interpreter is that he disappears completely from the listener's consciousness and leaves only the music. This is precisely what Mr. Hayes does. His diction is perfect, his interpretation intense but restrained, and his voice still, after so many years, warm and beautiful. The program included songs by Purcell, Handel, Haydn, Schubert, Griffes, Villa-Lobos, and Hayes' own arrangements of Negro spirituals.

Lecturer Warns Against Return To Isolationism

Lecturer and journalist John C. Metcalfe last night urged citizens to guard against a return of isolationism and rising nationalism in this country and to leave our domestic politics at home when dealing in foreign policy.

Speaking before the student body of Dunbarton College of Holy Cross, Metclafe, burther opposed the destruction of the atom stockpile to effect a parity with the Soviet Union and suggested that this advantage be maintained and if possible extended.

There can be no compromise between democracy and communism, Metcalfe said, and the United States should not enter into a world program of disarmament until the iron curtain is lifted and the satellite states freed.

CTC Fare Hike Goes Into Effect Smoothly; Reaction Runs From Fuming to Philosophy

The Washington Post

Jean Pearson, 1524 Lee Blvd., gets change from Driver L. C. Gates

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

No one but Capital Transit Co. officials and stockholders could be expected to actually like the higher fares the company put into effect at 5 a. m. yesterday.

J. F. McCarthy

But, human nature being what it is, a spot survey of paying passengers' reactions to the costlier rides brought subtly varying shades of opinion, and even some philosophy.

Bus and streetcar operators, of course, had to listen to plenty of moans from stricken passengers hit in the pocketbook by the 3 cent sadded to the former 10-cent fare.

"Yes, I've had a few executives riding with me today who knew they could run the company better themselves," said L. C. Gates, 50, an old hand at dealing with streetcar passengers. An operator for the old Capital Traction Co. from 1919 to 1927, he has been with the Capital Transit since 1935.

"Most of them are all right, though," he added charitably, "and as for making change for those that don't have pennies, I guess I've got the jump on some of the other drivers because we used to have 6-cent and 8-cent fares on some lines in the old days."

Gates, who lives at 7207 F st., Carmody Hills, Md., said he had had a few "wise ones" who tendered $1.50 for a weekly pass, which now costs $1.75. Some just forgot or didn't know about the new fares, but others "think they can catch us," Gates said.

One thing seemed to be clear yesterday. The first day of the 13-cent cash fare brought less confusion and delay than expected, according to bus and streetcar operators, as well as company inspectors, who shuttled to the various terminals to see how things were going and provide new supplies of pennies where needed.

Sunday Traffic Light

One reason for the smooth state of affairs, of course, was the company's wise course in starting the new penny ante transit game on a Sunday, when traffic is comparatively light most of the day and when a number of passengers buy passes for the week.

J. S. Branton

Fred L. Madigan

The passes and the new 3-for-35-cents tokens, were selling like football tickets yesterday, drivers said, reducing somewhat the demand for pennies for cash fares.

With most of those who objected to the new fares, it wasn't so much the bother over making change, but just the plain added increase in the cost of living.

"I think it's terrible," said Mary McCallum, 21-year-old nurse at Providence Hospital, who lives at 329 Rittenhouse st. nw.

"I ride streetcars and buses a lot, and just going to and from work, I'd spend 36 cents more a week," she said. Only now, I'm going to buy a pass, instead of paying cash each time. These pennies are going to be too much bother."

"For 13 cents we ought to get better drivers," declared Miss Helen Rose, Navy Department secretary of 2635 Garfield st. nw. "Some of them are very nice, but there are not enough of them. What I don't like is when they pull up so fast that you almost fall on your face."

Helen Rose

Mary McCallum

People Declared 'Hogtied'

"They've got people hogtied," snorted George W. Cobert, 20, of 1536 N. Bryan st., Arlington, Va., as he rode a streetcar with his companion, Miss Jean Pearson, 18, 1524 Lee blvd., Arlington, who agreed.

More philosophical was John F. McCarthy, 48-year-old guard for the National Gallery of Art, of 1715 Q st. nw.

"Well, it's just one of those things," said McCarthy. "I guess the Capital Transit people know what they're doing, and as long as they and the PUC passed on it, it's got to be done. It's the American way of life; we'll gripe about it, but we'll pay."

Another philosopher was Fred L. Madigan, Department of Interior photographer of 3220 Connecticut ave. nw.

"I don't like it, but if we have to pay more, we have to pay more," he said, "I suppose they need more money. But I think they should have subways in the center of the city because I don't think the transit company is able to take care of people they way it is now. Besides, the streetcars and the buses are a nuisance and we should make more room for private cars."

Mary Nolan, Once Follies Star, Dies at 42

Hollywood, Oct. 31 (AP).—Mary Nolan, "hard-luck actress," who danced her way to world fame as Imogene "Bubbles" Wilson in the Follies, died today.

A chronic bladder ailment caused the death of the famed blonde beauty whose tempestuous career led her to international movie stardom and also into a debtor's jail cell.

The 42-year-old dancer weighed only 90 pounds when she died in a little stucco bungalow court.

The late Mark Hellinger had once said of her:

"Only two people in America would bring every reporter in New York to the docks to see them off. One is the President. The other is Imogene 'Bubbles' Wilson." But that was 1922.

MARY NOLAN
"Hard-Luck Actress" dies

Ironically, her death came soon after she had sold her life story to the movies, a publishing house and to a national magazine.

Tragedy struck early at Mary Nolan. At 31, she was "sick and broke." Before that, while barely out of her teens, she had sued comedian Frank Tinney for $100,000 for injuries she said she got when he beat her.

As Mary Nolan, she made "Sorrell and Son" in 1927.

Her movie career faded as damage suits mounted. In 1935, she sued Edward Mannix, Hollywood producer, for $500,000 damages and accused him of beating her. In 1937, she was jailed for an unpaid dress bill.

Last April, the Louisville-born actress said:

"I've had a beautiful life. I've tumbled into the most beautiful life in the world. I'd never change it."

Bar Association and had his offices in the Woodward Building. He retired in 1943.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marie Cotte Lynham, who lives at 8323 Draper le., Silver Spring, Md.; five daughters, Mrs. Joseph Fitzpatrick, 1506 East-West hwy., Silver Spring; Mrs. Donald Laidig, 323 Duke st., Alexandria; Mrs. Harold T. Ramsey and Mrs. Curt Buhler of New York, and Mrs. Clarke E. Duke of Milwaukee, and two sons, J. Arthur Lynham, jr., 5229 43d st. nw., and Richard Lee Lynham of the Draper le. address.

American Men Are Sissies Says Countess Palffy

By Marie McNair

IT'S NOT often that a vivid personality such as Countess Palffy flits this modern world's horizon.

Born in Boston's correct Back Bay, at home anywhere in Europe, Eleanor Palffy has known great and famous people. She has been a great hostess too, but she's remained a philosopher and a thinker. That's the reason her book, "Largely Fiction" which should be on the book stands on Tuesday, is bound to make fascinating reading.

During the war the Countess Palffy took a house in Geofgetown, volunteered with the Red Cross, went all over the country to make speeches. Leaving here, she went to New York, stayed there for a couple of year and then went home to Boston. "I'm so happy to be home again" she said, recently in her suite at the Ritz-Carlton. "I may be critical of some of my own people, as they may be of me, but that is as it should be. I love Boston and Bostonians."

"Largely Fiction" is bound to be a controversial book, taking as it does a theme which Countess Palffy believes accounts for most of the world's ills today.

Men and women don't want to pay for the experience of dramatic change that life offers in this accelerated age, says the author and so, she took four years out of her busy schedule to prove it. She's convinced that people, particularly the men, are not up to the times.

Studies of the stronger sex which Eleanor Palffy has pursued for material for her book, have forced her to come to the conclusion that American men are adolescent, lacking in initiative, afraid to face issues, leaning for moral support on their wives. They're jealous and envious, too, of women whom they should welcome on terms of intellectual equality.

How about it men?

BIG, genial, ruddy cheeked Col. the Hon., Angus McDonnell, who was with the British Embassy as attache during the war years, is back for a visit to the town where he left so many friends behind.

Probably the most popular man at the embassy during that period, Colonel McDonnell did as much as any other Briton who came to these shores to solidify Anglo-American relations. A lover of good food, he was also a noted cook, shopped personally for all the delicacies and unusual items that went into his dishes, and could whip up a meal to delight a gourmet in nothing flat. Colonel McDonnell thinks he'll be here only about two weeks, hopes to come back again. Meanwhile he's staying with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., in Georgetown.

TOWN TOPICS:

Ralph Forster, popular bachelor about town, is planning a visit to his native England for the first time since before the war. He's leaving on November 23 for about two months.

Mrs. John Allan Dougherty will leave on Tuesday for New York to visit her old friend, Mrs. Fenton Turck.

General and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb's country home, Rosecroft, in St. Mary's County, Md., will be the scene of a wedding next Saturday. The bride is Lucy Hillary, of South Africa, the bridegroom, Gordon E. Cole, jr., of Pasadena. Miss Hillary, who once had a part in "Sally," more recently has been with the South African Information Service in New York. The tie-up is that General Holcomb, once commandant of the Marine Corps, was later U. S. Minister to South Africa.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Staunch Advocate of Christian Principles, Devoted Mother Is Stymied By Realization That Her Bachelor Son, 35, Is Having Affairs

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For several months I have known that my son, a 35-year-old bachelor, has been living a consistently immoral life.

I haven't mentioned my knowledge to Thad or his father, or to anyone in the family, but it has been in the back of my mind continually; and I am at a loss to know what I should do, or whether I should do or say anything, or what a normal mother's reaction would be.

Thad's father and I were schoolday sweethearts and still are utterly devoted. Our three other children had normal romances. They are married now and leading fine Christian lives, and I am sure I did my best to teach all of them the Christian principles of living.

Thad has always been very good to his father and me, and, although I struggle against it, I find myself shrinking from his affectionate embrace and frequent kiss. Not that I am prudish; I can forgive a mistake; but I've always detested the sort of man who married only because he grew tired of sowing wild oats.

Is He Worthy of Pure Wife?

WHEN WE JOKE with Thad about his being an old bachelor, he replies, "Just wait; I'll bring home the sweetest girl this side of heaven." And sometimes I am afraid he will. Isn't that a terrible way to feel? But I don't want some pure girl to be hurt, as she's bound to be, regardless of all the philosophies that overlook a man's sins before marriage, as long as he is true to his wife.

If I loved Thad as I should, would I feel (as I do) that it were better if he married one of these girls who share his pleasures now? Could his waywardness be due to some lack in me or his home life? At times I am full of tenderness and long to say or do something to show him that he will pay, and pay dearly, for his wrong-doing; and other times I am full of disgust.

He reads your column very often. Perhaps you can say something to start him thinking. Thank you so much. E. B.

Man Is Rejecting Mother-Dominance

DEAR E. B.: You put great stress on Christian morals, and indeed make clear that you can't really love or respect—i.e., "accept"—the person who violates them, which suggests that Thad's latterday dabbling in immorality amounts to experimental rejection of, or figurative revolt against, mother-dominance.

Subjectively, if not consciously, he feels enslaved to you. On the unreconstructed infantile level (and all bachelor playboys are infantile) he feels "in love" with you, but hopelessly, because after all you are his father's sweetheart-wife.

As for your contribution to his waywardness, as I see the picture, it consists in self-adulating failure to deal with his emotional needs and filial sentiments, from earliest years, in a wise foresighted wholesome manner that would have precluded or dissolved infatuation and yet would have vested him with solid confidence that his mother's devoted interest in his welfare was a fact of life to count on.

Too Immature for Mate-Love

IT SEEMS that Thad, at long last, is vaguely moved to become a man, or to assert somehow an integrated selfhood in relation to life or sex; but his infantile attachment to the mother-image constitutes a block to emotional maturity that he can't surmount,—at least, not for so long as he doesn't understand the "conditioning" factors which keep him a stymied bachelor son, unable to experience mate-love with ardent assurance in spirit and senses, as "marrying" men do.

His affairs signify that, although trying to escape the frustration of mother-deification, he can't conjure (in his feelings) a "true" love, deep and satisfying, for any other female; and beneath it all is a characteristic infantile disinclination to grow up to the demands of adult heterosexual responsibility to wife and child. Hence he is drifting will-o'-the-wisp in the field of amour.

In conclusion, I suggest: (1) You've always fostered a flirtatious sort of sentimentality in relation to Thad, as witness his fond salutes, even now; also your suppressed, offended impulse to spurn them, almost as if you were a jealous two-timed sweetheart. (2) Your pangs at his idea of bringing home the sweetest bride this side of heaven, plus your vote for a sin-stained girl as the more suitable consort, hint that you balk at surrendering "good woman" supremacy in his emotional constellation.

For advice to both of you: Read "Their Mothers' Sons," by Dr. Edward A. Strecker (J. B. Lippincott Co., publishers), which deals authoritatively and at length with the causes and potential correctives of such behavior as Thad's and yours.

About Rain Spots on Satin

Can you suggest a method for cleaning a rain-spotted satin hat at home? I have tried cleaning fluid, which was unsuccessful. Two cleaning establishments refuse to accept it as this sort of work is not guaranteed.

S. D. B.

Sometimes rubbing the cloth between the hands or scratching the spots with the fingernail will remove them. If this isn't successful, then try dampening the entire piece evenly. This can be done by sponging lightly with clean water applied with a soft cloth or by shaking in the steam from a briskly boiling tea kettle. While it is still damp, go over the hat carefully with a pressing iron. Have a cloth between the iron and the satin.

Can you give me the recipe for a date-nut (pecan, I think) dessert which I think is wonderful? All I know of the making is that the dates, nuts, sugar and other ingredients are baked to make a crisp and then crumbled and folded into whipped cream or egg whites. I have looked through many cookbooks but have been unable to find anything like it. M. T.

Here is a recipe which seems to fit your description:

DATE TORTE PUDDING

¼ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups chopped dates
1½ cups broken pecan meats

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat sugar into eggs; add vanilla and stir in date and nut mixture; then add flour mixture. Turn into buttered shallow baking pan and bake in slow oven at 325 degrees F. for 50 to 60 minutes. This may be served with whipped cream on the top, or broken into pieces and folded into the whipped cream.

We have received from England some very old pieces of furniture. A few are rosewood, the others mahogany. Owing to the difference in climate, I see already a great deal of dryness. The pieces have been in storage since before the war and will, I feel sure, need a great deal of polishing and care before I can bring back their "prestorage" look. Can you tell me what should be done to (1) Keep them from drying out (2) Remove a thickish coat of dust, which seems to have sunk in, and (3) bring back the really nice patina they used to have when I last used them? M. W. T.

Furniture surfaces can be kept from drying out by applying a small amount of a good furniture oil and then buffing and rubbing the piece until there is none of the oil on the surface. The difficulty some people have with using furniture oils is that they apply too much, then fail to thoroughly rub in the oil, leaving it to lie on the surface and catch dust.

To answer your second question, before using the oil on the furniture, the cost of dust and dirt which causes the grayish appearance can be removed by washing the furniture with mild soap and lukewarm water. Make a light lather and wring a soft cloth out of this lather. Go over only a small area at a time. When washed, immediately rinse and buff dry with a clean dry cloth. When the entire piece has been washed and dried, apply the oil, buffing thoroughly as described above. The oil treatment should be applied once a week until the furniture no longer looks dry. Then it is necessary to use oil on it only three or four times a year. In addition to the oil, you could apply a thin, well-rubbed coat of wax to the furniture to give it protection from moisture and soil.

The lovely patina on well-cared-for furniture is acquired by keeping it clean, using only small amounts of oil and then rubbing it repeatedly with a soft lint-free cloth.

We should appreciate any information you can give us on a vacation wardrobe for New Orleans for late December-early January. M. and T.

A travel bureau tells me that the late December weather in New Orleans is comparable to our fall weather. Suits with a topcoat for evenings and cooler days would be in order. Because they do have days which would be too warm for a suit, a dress-jacket combination would be practical. The amount and kind of sports clothes you take would be determined by the activities of that sort in which you expect to participate.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Even Babies Can Be Bored

Does your baby ever fuss without apparent reason? You know he's dry, that he shouldn't be hungry, and that nothing is hurting him. Yet he still fusses.

It will pay to stop and think how long he has been in his crib or play pen without anything very new or different happening. Babies are human beings, too, and can be bored.

A change of scenery may be indicated. Perhaps you can take a few minutes off and go for a little walk, talking to him about the birds, the autos or the airplanes that you see. Even if he is too young to understand much, he will appreciate your companionship and your interest in him. Or let him sit where he can watch you working. If he can be given something similar to that with which you are working, he will like it. A bit of dough, a pan and a spoon, a flower to examine—anything that interests him. Fortunately, there are few things that don't.

A change of activity is satisfying to a baby.

What Does Hubby Use?

If the men of the family buy their shaving cream in pound jars, you are in luck at preserving time. They are fat, squatty jars with a wide top and a screw-on lid and all they need is a good boiling to get rid of all reminders of their former use and you soon have a collection of good-looking containers for preserves, jellies or relishes. While making the collection, they are splendid jars to use in the ice box to hold leftovers.

Ironing Damask

The ironing of damask table linen is vastly important if its lovely luster is to be brought out to the fullest extent. The linen must be quite damp and must be ironed until absolutely dry. Iron on the wrong side first and then on the right side and working from selvage to selvage.

Don't Overdo It

If you are fond of things quite salty or things rather peppery, be very careful in your seasoning and stick to the quantity mentioned in the recipe. Otherwise you may spoil the dish and someone who is not so fond of highly seasoned foods. You can always add that extra bit on your own plate afterward.

Red Cross Seeks Volunteers To Entertain in Hospitals

With a heavy schedule of fall and winter entertainments for hospitalized servicemen, veterans and civilians in Federal hospitals, there is a strong need for groups of junior hostesses to help with ward parties and other such entertainments, according to Mrs. Anthony Muto, chairman of the District Red Cross entertainment service.

Groups of girls between the ages of 18 and 25 are particularly needed to work as ward hostesses in the hospitals, Mrs. Muto said.

Small organized groups of women to conduct teas and coffee hours and furnish refreshments for ward parties are also needed at this time, Mrs. Muto said.

In addition, large organized groups of men or women, or mixed groups, are being sought to sponsor planned auditorium parties in the hospitals. These may be either groups of club or other organization members, or simply workers from a large business firm or Government agency.

Mrs. Muto urged that any groups interested in assisting with entertainment in hospitals served by community organizations through the Red Cross Entertainment Service, telephone Hobart 6800, for further information.

"Especially with the holiday season approaching, we want to provide cheer for the veterans who are hospitalized and for servicemen who cannot be at home with their families, because of sickness," Mrs. Muto said. "Although Christmas is still nearly two months away, we must know what groups we may depend on to help carry out our plans."

Last month, the Entertainment Service provided special entertainment for a total of 2673 hospitalized servicemen, veterans and civilians in Government hospitals. The events included a beach party, boat cruises, country club outings, tours around Washington, a fishing party, and parties to see spectator sports including football, baseball and boxing.

A total of 597 host and hostess groups served at 46 ward shows and 45 auditorium shows arranged for the patients by the Red Cross. The donor list for entertainment for the patients, both in and outside of the hospital, included 64 different groups or individuals.

Equalize the Cake

Take into consideration the richness of the cake before deciding on the frosting you will use on it. If the cake is rich with butter, a light boiled icing will finish the picture nicely, if it is a butterless sponge cake, it requires a rich butter icing to finish it. A cake that is not rich at all will be good with a cream or marshmallow filling that will take away from its dryness.

How to Insure Fresh Eggs

Knowing where to buy eggs and how to keep them are the only two ways that consumers can be sure of having a quality product at all times, according to United States Department of Agriculture marketing specialists.

Homemakers see the eggs they buy for the first time in retail stores—large quantity buyers in wholesale houses. Their first step toward obtaining a quality product should be to buy from those retailers or wholesalers who keep eggs under proper conditions. Their second step is to keep the eggs they buy under constant refrigeration until used—in the house, hotel, restaurant, or institution, as the case may be.

Suitable humidity and temperature and sanitary surroundings are essential for conserving egg quality. Eggs may show a decided drop in quality in three days if held at a temperature around 98° F. Such a temperature is not unusual in many localities during the summer. Temperatures between 70° and 80° F., or even several degrees higher (typical of many heated stores and kitchens in the winter), cause changes in quality to occur more slowly. However, eggs left at ordinary room temperature for three days may lose as much "freshness" as eggs kept in the refrigerator for two weeks. To prevent loss of moisture, the relative humidity in the dealer's refrigerator or other storage place should be around 85 or higher.

Your Baby and Mine

Introduce New Foods Gradually

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

New foods in the child's diet often create some minor disturbances. This is one reason why all feeding rules begin with the familiar: just one spoonful a day at first, to be increased gradually as the child grows accustomed to it.

There can't be very much reaction to one teaspoonful of food, but if this amount is offered each day the child has an opportunity to test its strangeness and to adjust himself to it.

The inclusion of cereal should not cause much disturbance unless it happens to be composed of cereal grains to which this particular child is allergic. Other than this unhappy circumstance, the child will find cereal a satisfying food once he has mastered the art of taking it by spoon.

Try Meats, Too

Meat, another newcomer in the diet, should be well cooked and strained or finely scraped, the first form being obtainable in cans. One teaspoon of one of the various kinds may be given each day for a week. Then try another kind. Most babies enjoy meat and react well to it.

Vegetables, when first offered, will tend to show up in the stools in their natural colors. But after a week or so of consistent feeding usually the child develops the capacity to assimilate them more thoroughly. The presence of vegetables in the stools is not abnormal, as their indigestible bulk is one of their assets.

The inclusion of egg may have dramatic results. Egg is one of the complete proteins to which protein-sensitive individuals respond with vigor. A rash, or vomiting or hotness about the child's mouth or cheeks, should warn the mother that in this particular form egg had best be abandoned.

Cooked Protiens

The cooking of protein makes it less offending, so if soft-cooked egg yolk is the best form used, try it hard-cooked. It does not pay to continue egg if the child shows any noticeable reaction to it. He can get his proteins in less disturbing forms.

So keep in mind that even if this is a good food and the baby should have it, begin in teaspoonful amounts and add to these warily. That should be all that is necessary to help it to slide into the diet uneventfully.

Dessert Hints

Use a packaged cup-cake or white-cake mix for quick dessert. Frost with orange topping made by blending a quarter cup of strained orange juice with a quarter cup of melted butter or margarine and about 3 cups of confectioner's sugar. Add the grated rind of the orange, if you like, and be sure to sift the sugar before using to get rid of any lumps.

Sprinkle baked custard with shredded coconut and nutmeg before putting into oven; serve with peach sauce.

Chopped prunes combined with pecans and brown sugar make a delicious filling for baked pears or apples. Serve with whipped evaporated milk or cream.

Vary a sugar cooky recipe by using brown, instead of white, sugar and sprinkle the tops of the cookies, before baking, with finely ground nutmeats.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

District Liners Rally To Aid of Dorothy Kilmer Fund

"How can the Police Chief say that the District isn't responsible for the actions of off-duty policemen, when police regulations clearly state that a policeman is never off-duty?" asks a contributor to the Dorothy Kilmer Fund.

Another question comes from a lawyer who indignantly says: "I handled a case in which they claimed that the District could not be responsible for damage done by a policeman who was merely discharging his assigned duties.

"Now they say they can't assume responsibility for things done by policemen who are OFF duty. What they seem to mean is that they won't be responsible, period."

A syndicated columnist whose writings appear in The Washington Post accompanies his contribution with a note saying:

"I think you'll get much more than $10,000—and at present inflated rates, that ought to take care of Dorothy for the rest of her natural next three months."

The "Alexandria Local" of the "District Line Union" comes up with a splendid idea to help. In their apartment, they keep a supply of envelopes addressed to Dorothy. Anybody who drops in is handed an envelope. The laundryman was the first victim, and responded with enthusiasm. He'd been meaning to send off a dollar, and hadn't gotten around to it yet.

Several Federal offices have taken up collections—among them the budget division of the War Assets Administration and the CAA's field operations office.

The Shirlington Business Men's Association is putting a collection jar in the store of every member, and the Thomas Circle Citizens Association (whose plea to Major Barrett was refused, thereby touching off this whole campaign) is going to take group action in its own neighborhood.

The Carlton Construction Corp., builder-erectors of Lustron houses in this area, will turn over proceeds from admission fees to its model home on Rock Creek pkwy. (between the Water Gate Inn and the Stables) to the Kilmer Fund. The Leon Typewriter Co. wants to give Dorothy a $150 machine and a special stand, plus a free typing course, so that she can learn a useful occupation.

In short, everybody seems to have pitched in and taken a hand to get the girl out of that wheel chair.

The first full day of contributions on Saturday brought in almost $800, and since there were no mail deliveries over the week-end, no additional report is available now. But inasmuch as this response stems from almost 500 separate letters, it looks like we're on our way to success.

You'll note that I haven't mentioned names of individual donors in this item, because it's going to be impossible to thank you all individually, as I'd like to.

But be assured of this: Dorothy is personally opening every one of those letters, and is getting a tremendous lift out of the messages of cheer they contain.

The fund will be deposited in a local bank, and administered by an agency of the Community Chest, whose function will be to see that all money collected in this campaign is used solely for the rehabilitation of Dorothy Kilmer, and used wisely.

Since none of these funds will go into the Community Chest, please remember that the Chest drive merits your separate consideration, and continued support.

Dorothy's case is heart-rending to be sure; but it's just one of thousands in this town of ours, and when we look into our hearts, we've got to find charity enough for all.

THERE'S MORE HERE THAN "MEATS" THE EYE

Minnie L. Goodwin of 805 C st. sw., isn't so sure that we ought to be critical of the girl who ate a live grasshopper to win a $2 bet.

"At least," sighs Minnie, "it was fresh. And she knew what she was eating. Which is more than she could say if she'd order $2 worth of 'chopped steak' in a restaurant."

PIED PREDICTIONS DEPT.

Several District Liners good and true call attention to our morning contemporary's football predictions for last week-end.

Listing the home team first, the opponents next, and the team favored to win last, our colleagues picked 'em like this:

"Furman vs. Wisconsin—Citadel; G. Washington vs. De Pauw—Maryland; Harvard vs. Washington State—Dartmouth; Illinois vs. Indiana—Purdue; Iowa vs. Worcester—Notre Dame; Upsala vs. Notre Dame—Upsala."

(This last prediction was apparently based on the supposition that the Irish would be all tuckered out after beating Iowa and Worcester in the same afternoon, and would therefore fall before the men of Upsala).

PERSONAL NOTES

Beatrice Neal, 6601 River rd., Bethesda, Md.: A very clever poem, but perhaps too partisan. I think we ought to kid all the candidates a bit without actually taking sides. (And even that modest goal is difficult to attain, because whenever we kid any of the candidates his supporters say, "Very funny—but isn't it the other fellow's turn now?")

Mrs. Thelma H. White, 1238 11th st. nw.: Yes, it would work with West Virginia (through Maryland and Pennsylvania) but you wouldn't be driving straight west.

Bill Powell, 2109 F st. nw.: My map isn't as detailed as yours, but I think you're right. That little dip in the Massachusetts border looks as if it would permit one to start just above the 42d parallel and go straight west through Rhode Island and Connecticut, and then find himself back in Massachusetts again.

RELAPSE

Each time I get a headache
The Doc gives me a pill,
And then I feel much better
Until I get his bill.

Leonard Lyons . . .

BUSINESS DEPT.: Edgar Snow, in introducing the Indian Ambassador at the Overseas Press Club, told of his last visit to India, where he met Vincent Sheean, who had just interviewed Gandhi. Sheean said that during the interview his watch stopped. Then Snow interviewed Gandhi, and during the interview his watch also stopped. He and Sheean decided that Gandhi must have exuded a strange magnetic force . . . A few days later Snow and Sheean saw Gandhi walking with Nehru. They told Gandhi about their watches stopping and asked him if he ever had noticed such magnetic manifestations. "The trouble with you two men is," said Gandhi, "you need a good watchmaker."

Art Dept.: Emily Genauer, the art critic, saw the film short on Henri Matisse at the Paris Theater, and told of her own meeting with the painter. Matisse discussed his technique and said: "When I start working on a painting, it's like a man getting on a train to Paris to go to Marseilles. I work on it until I feel I can go no further, like the passenger when his train arrives at its final destination. But when I look around at the station," Matisse sighed, "I find to my amazement that instead of being in Marseilles, I've wound up in Lyon."

Law Department: The Supreme Court had a tie vote, four to four, in the "Memoirs of Hecate County" book case. Tie votes are not uncommon at the Court. There was a tie, caused by Justice Jackson's disqualifying himself, in the libel suit brought by Representative Sweeney against Drew Pearson. Pearson's lawyer, Morris L. Ernst, met Chief Justice Stone and told him: "Ties are for ballgames, called on account of darkness or rain." He suggested a statute permitting a presiding judge of a Circuit Court of Appeals to sit in and cast a vote in the event of a tie . . . "If a man sits with the United States Supreme Court for even one day," Stone told the lawyer, "even for one day—it would doom him for life."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Dewey Unscathed in Gantlet Run

Editor's note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his daughter on the question of how she should vote.)

By Drew Pearson

Washington.

Mrs. George Arnold,
Los Angeles, Calif.

Dear Daughter:

It is difficult, even for an old and seasoned political hand like your father, to advise one who will vote for the first time.

Mrs. Arnold

Sometimes a seasoned political observer tends to size up an election the same way a couple of doctors discuss an important surgical operation. They become so immersed in the technicalities that they forget the patients are human beings, and that elections are a clash between several million human beings to pick another human being as their leader.

As a technician, I would say that Governor Dewey had conducted one of the most astute and skillful campaigns in recent years. He made nobody mad. He called no names; he answered no challenges. He ignored a great many of the issues. He knew that he was certain to win if he made no mistakes and aroused no tempers. So his whole campaign was carefully geared to that end.

Dewey even managed to escape answering a question every other candidate has had to answer, namely, place his war record before the voters. However, he managed to duck this, even though Mrs. Mathilda Burling, head of the Gold Star Mothers, specifically asked him in a telegram if he had a farm deferment in 1942. Even one of Dewey's Republican Women's Committee members in 1944, Miss Dorothy Frooks, addressed three inquiries to Dewey regarding his draft record, but got no reply.

Teamwork Under Dewey

Naturally, Dewey's evasion of these issues has disappointed some people. But looking at it from the political technician's point of view, a lot of corners are cut by candidates to achieve their main goal—victory.

Harry Truman, of course, has walked up to the plate and taken a healthy swing at every issue. He has not ducked one curved ball. The country knows exactly where he stands, which is his chief trouble in the South.

But the country also knows that, whereas Truman's record is excellent on paper, his record of performance is inept and sometimes inexcusable. He seems to have surrounded himself with men dedicated to the task of sabotaging all the fine things their boss stood for on paper.

On the other hand, Dewey's record in New York State has been excellent both on paper and in performance. And the men around him are Roosevelt brain-trust type dedicated to do or die for the boss and his policies.

So, undoubtedly, you'll have teamwork in the White House under Dewey. It may be very careful, sometimes cold-blooded, teamwork. There will be no fun and fireworks, none of the impulsive, sometimes courageous Trumanesque shooting from the hip.

May Prove Miracle Man

In sizing up the candidates, however, you also have to take a look at the political parties behind them. The Republican Party, since the Civil War, has drawn its financial support from the bankers, the utilities, and big business. Generally, of course, people get what they pay for, and the big GOP contributors have not expressed dissatisfaction with the results.

If Tom Dewey can break away from this traditional GOP hookup, he will be a miracle man. He is a tough little guy and, once elected, he may be able to do it.

The Democratic Party in recent years has drawn the bulk of its support from the big-city populations of the North, and for that reason has been far more liberal. It is bound to remain so if it is to keep Northern city support.

But the Democratic alliance with an unhappy, rebellious South has made the party exactly what Dewey said it was—confused.

Chance for Progressivism

During Roosevelt's first two terms, this country saw some of the greatest social and economic reforms in half a century. They were long overdue, and the Democratic Party deserves great credit for putting them across.

After January, the Republican Party, which claims to be the party of efficiency, will be given a chance to demonstrate this claim.

Harry Truman has put up a courageous and magnificent fight. If he had fought as hard and as effectively during all his three years he would not be in the trouble he is today. But, thanks to the combination of Dixiecrats and Wallaceites, he cannot possibly win this election. He will roll up a bigger popular vote than previously expected, which will be good. For it is always bad for one party to be too cocksure and overconfident.

Meanwhile, let's hope that Tom Dewey will be as broadminded as he is tough and can bring his party back to the progressivism of Teddy Roosevelt, Abe Lincoln and pre-Civil War days.

Your Father.

The Silver Spring Story . . . A Shining Example of Free Enterprise in Action!

A MESSAGE TO THE COMMUNITY BY WILLIAM PRESTON LANE, JR., GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND

RARELY in the history of our country have we had the opportunity to observe the birth and growth of a community such as Silver Spring, Maryland. From a tiny town to the second largest city in the state of Maryland is a remarkable achievement . . . an achievement in which the people of Montgomery County can take justifiable pride.

Silver Spring today is vigorous and wide awake. Silver Spring offers the people of Montgomery County all the services of a metropolitan city. Its independent merchants have taken the leadership in developing the community's business activities. Its public-spirited citizens have taken the leadership in making the community a wonderful place in which to live. Right now, in Silver Spring homes and apartments are going up . . . and the business community is rapidly preparing itself for this growth in population!

THE HECHT CO., Silver Spring, among many of the stores in Montgomery County has done much to provide the people of this area with the shopping services they so rightly deserve. Beyond this, however, are the unseen contributions all businesses make that enrich a community . . . the job opportunities for thousands . . . the substantial tax revenues that help support public projects, the development of off-street parking areas, surrounding the business district. All these improvements for the good of the people have been brought about by the concerted efforts of enlightened public servants, individual citizens and business organizations . . . in true American spirit of cooperation.

It is a sincere pleasure for me, as Governor of the State of Maryland, to congratulate the people of Montgomery County at this time. Silver Spring is typical of American Democracy and its development. Silver Spring should be a wonderful example to all . . . an outstanding illustration of free enterprise in action.
